Lectures by Rev. J. S. Long.—We are pleased to announce that the gentleman will deliver his two lectures, on the "Ethics of History" and "The Life of Bishop Doane," at the Common Hall, in this City, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The object of these lectures is to aid in the rebuilding of the Methodist Church in Washington, N. C., which was destroyed by fire on the 29th of April, 1864, on the evacuation of the town by the Federal forces,—an object which commends itself to Christians of all denominations and the community at large. Perhaps no place suffered so much during the war as this town. We believe that all the churches were destroyed, and the condition of the people renders it indispensable that they should apply for extraneous assistance to enable them to re-erect their houses of worship.

Mr. Long has lectured in Newbern, Wilmington and Fayetteville, and the press of those cities has spoken in the most exalted terms of his rare gifts of oratory. We have never seen, we may say, higher praise awarded to any public lecturer. That these commendations are fully merited, we are sure, and we proleat for those of our citizens, who may attend, a literary feast of uncommon attractiveness.

The last Fayetteville News speaks of Mr. Long's lectures in the following terms:

"Scarcely has it been our good fortune to enjoy a literary entertainment so pleasing, so instructive, so entirely satisfactory, as has been recently afforded by his delivery of his two lectures. The Ethics of History, on Friday evening, the 29th, and The Life of Bishop Doane, on Monday evening, the 29th. Endowed with the faculty of surprising command of language, gifted with an elegance of diction and a refinement of imagery, possessed of a powerful and well modulated voice, the speaker takes hold of the minds and sympathies of his audience, and carries them with him throughout his efforts.

If we are called upon to make a distinction between the two lectures, we will say that for literary and eloquence, touching pathos and great power, and solid evidence of great research and scholarly attainments, the Ethics of History was perfect. But we can do no higher praise to the address of the Life of Bishop Doane than to say that, with a miscellaneous audience, many of whom were of other denominations than that which claimed the deceased Bishop, and who were to be forced into sympathy with the subject, Mr. Long was, if possible, still more successful than on his first night, in giving pleasure and gratification to his hearers.

The price of admission to the Lectures will be 50 cents each.

SUNDAY WORK.—We take pleasure in stating that we were informed, this morning, that Gen. Miles, Chief of the Freedmen's Bureau in this State, now of this city, has given orders for the suspension of the business of the Bureau office hereafter on Sunday. We hope Gen. Howard, Chief Commissioner at Washington, will make this order of Gen. Miles' order in its application. We presume no necessity exists for the continuance of Sunday work in this department, in view of the fact that the Bureau's Department, it seems to us, might also be suspended in respect to that day, to afford all the employees of the government relief from labor on that day, and the privilege of enjoying the religious services of the Sabbath, in which all men should participate. We know that "the King's business requires haste," and there are occasions when God's day must, of necessity, be encroached upon, but in all cases the necessity should be imperative.

Our correspondent at Chicago, in noticing some weeks since the new league in that town, said it was of "such rich and rare material and workmanship, as almost to tempt one to wish for a rival." The first time the news reached it was to convey the message that it was to be converted into a mere paper in that village,—a case the necessity should be imperative.

It may be, however, that, under the new arrangement, the connection will be through and complete, and that, under its efficient management, this Road will very possibly facility to travelers and shippers.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Will you not urge upon our young men the importance of establishing debating and reading clubs and circulating libraries? Associated efforts will necessarily accomplish much that they might fall in as individuals, however industrious and persevering in their exercises and trials. Interchange of thought and conflict of opinions will effect a cultivation of mind, which might otherwise remain dormant forever, but being evolved, can be kindled into intellectual fires that may warm and illumine by their genial glow and brightening influence the present and future of our country; just as the striking of flint and steel together will produce a spark of material flame, which could not be produced from either without confining, but, being confined, may be kindled into flames to warm and cheer us, and to minister to our material welfare and support in thousands of ways.

We have many numbers of Base Ball clubs, with their match games, which are very interesting in their way, as they certainly are quite pleasant and exciting. The appearance of vigorous health and personal activity exhibited on these occasions, speaks well for the physique of the young gentlemen, and conclusively shows what regular exercise and training will do in the way of developing the physical man. Now it is not certain, that the same amount of time regularly and judiciously spent of evenings, in cultivating the mind, and in studying the rules and regulations as stringent as equally forcible in compelling obedience to prescribed duties, would result in an intellectual vigor and activity corresponding with this physical improvement. These mental exercises, with the purpose of storing the mind with knowledge and of speaking and writing correctly, normalize the habit of thinking accurately, a matter of the utmost importance, under all circumstances, and to every one, who hopes and expects to conquer and possess the world on the line of his operations, whether actually and actively engaged in the pressing pursuits of life, or only training for the necessary struggles of the world. Moreover, there would be fewer vices and less faults of any kind in the world, if we were in the habit of thinking before acting, which would be the fruit of such intellectual training; while the fact is undeniable, that familiarity with our best authors gives point and polish to our talents for business, as well as to our conversation and manners. Will not then the gold and silver of Johnson, Addison and Burke, and the diamonds and pearls of Milton, Shakspeare, Pope and Dryden weigh somewhat in the estimation of the treasure seekers of this world for a while?

"What is the world? What aches most to have, Now with his loss, and now to his cold grave?"

CLARK.

THE FAYETTEVILLE MAIL.—We deeply regret that the daily mail from this city to Fayetteville should have been suspended. It is a serious inconvenience to the business men of that place, which no other arrangement can possibly remedy. We are, however, sure that no blame can be attached to either Dr. Jobe, the special mail agent, or to the Postmaster of this city.

Dr. Jobe has just returned from Fayetteville, having effected an arrangement for carrying the mail from Wilmington to Fayetteville, tri-weekly, by the river boats, which, with the tri-weekly mail by way of Lumberton, will give them a daily mail. This arrangement, we presume, is only temporary, as the contract for the mail from this city to Fayetteville, which has already been made for four years by Mr. Clements, begins on the 1st of July next, which we hope will not be vitiated.

We regret very much that the people of Fayetteville did not call the attention of the Post Office Department to the importance of changing the old mail route. It is the longest stage route in the Eastern part of the State, over one of the worst roads we have, and so poorly supplied with food for horses, as to make it one of the most perplexing and expensive routes in the country. It appears to us that the daily mail route for the Northern mail to Fayetteville should be from this city to Jonesboro, or Morrisville to the present terminus of the Western (Coalfield) Railroad. This would reduce the stage one-half.

Besides, we think the public mind would be benefited by the means by the final completion of the Chatham Railroad, a work which may now be completed at an inconceivable expense, and which would accomplish much for the development of the resources of Deep River.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE.—We learn that a change of schedule has been made on the North Carolina Railroad, which went into effect on yesterday. The mail train from the East now arrives at 3:50 P. M., and leaves for the West at 4:05 P. M. The mail train from the West arrives at 9:15 A. M., and leaves for the East at 9:25 A. M. The Accommodation train from the East arrives at 10:40 P. M., and leaves for the East at 11:20 P. M. We understand that the through time, (mail train) from Charlotte to this city, will be shortened to 10 hours and 15 minutes.

This arrangement is a very convenient and objectionable one to the press of this City, but we will endeavor to accommodate ourselves to it as soon as practicable.

RALEIGH AND GASTON.—The announcement of change of schedule on that Road was received at 9 o'clock on hour, that we have barely time to call attention to it. It may be, however, that, under the new arrangement, the connection will be through and complete, and that, under its efficient management, this Road will very possibly facility to travelers and shippers.
