BASIL DUKE'S ACCOUNT OF MORGAN'S RAID AROUND CINCINNATI.

From Gen. Basil Duke's History of Morgan's Cavalry, we make the following extracts relating to the raid around Cincinnati.

Gen. Duke, it will be remembered, was the second in command to Morgan on this memorable raid:

"Moving at 5 o'clock, A. M., from bivouac at Summansville, Indiana, the command reached Harrison by 1 o'clock of the 13th of July. Here Gen. Morgan began to manœuvre for the benefit of the commanding officer at Cincinnati. He took for granted (for it was utterly impossible, moving as rapidly as we were forced to do, and in the midst of a strange and hostile population, to get positive information regarding any matter) that there was a strong force of regular troops in Cincinnatti. Burnside had them not far off, and Gen. Morgan supposed that they would, of course, be brought there. If we could get past Cincinnati safely, the danger of the expedition, he thought, would be more than half over. Here he expected to be confronted by the concentrated forces of Judah and Burnside, and he anticipated great difficulty in eluding or cutting his way through them. Once safely through this peril, his escape would be certain, unless the river remained so high that the transports could carry troops to intercept him at the upper crossings. The cavalry following in his rear could not overtake him as long as he kept in motion, and the infantry could not be transported so rapidly by rail to the eastern part of the State that it could be concentrated in sufficient strength to stop him. His object, therefore, entertaining these views and believing that the great effort to capture him would be made as he crossed the Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, was to deceive the enemy as to the exact point where he would cross this road, and denude that point as much as possible of troops. He sent detachments in various directions, seeking, however, to create the impression that he was marching to Hamilton.

"After two or three hours' halt at Harrison, the division moved directly toward Cincinnati, the detachment coming in the course of that afternoon. Hoping that his previous demonstration would induce the sending of the bulk of the troops up the road, and that if any were left at Cincinnati his subsequent threatening movements would cause them to draw into the city, remain on the defensive, and permit him to pass around it without attacking him, he sought to approach the city as nearly as possible without actually entering it and involving his command in a fight with any garrison which might be there. He has been sometimes accused of a lack of enterprise in not capturing Cincinnati. It must be remembered that Cincinnati was not the objective point of this raid; it was not undertaken to capture that city. Gen. Morgan knew nothing, and, in the nature of things, could know nothing, of the condition of affairs in the city, or whether it was weakly or strongly garrisoned.

"Starting that morning from a point 50 miles distant from Cincinnati, and reaching the vicinity of the city after nightfall, he must have possessed more than human means of obtaining information, had he known these things then, and he did not have a rapping medium on his staff. Moreover, of the 2,460 effectives with which he had started, he had not 2,000 left. He could get fights enough to employ this force handsomely, without running into a labyrinth of streets, and among houses, (each one of which might be made a fortification,) with the hope that the town might be unoccupied with troops, or that it might be surrendered. Our 'copperhead friends,' who could have given the necessary information, were too loyal, or too busy dodging Burnside's Dutch corporals to come out.

"The men in our ranks were worn down and demoralized with the tremendous fatigue, which no man can realize or form the faintest conception of until he has experienced it. It is as different from the fatigue of an ordinary long march, followed by some rest, as the pain given by an hour's deprivation of water is unlike the burning, rabid thirst of fever. Had the city been given up to us, and had the least delay occurred in getting boats with which to cross the river, the men would have scattered to all quarters of the city, and twenty-four hours might have been required to collect them. In that time the net would have been drawn around us. But it must be borne in mind, independently of all these considerations, that Gen Morgan had given himself a particular work to accomplish. He determined, as had been stated, to traverse Ohio.

"To have re-crossed the river at Cincinnati would have shortened thereid by many days, have released the troops pursuing us, and have abandoned the principal benefits expected to be derived from the expedition.

"In this night march around Cincinnati we met with the greatest difficulty in keeping the column together. The guides were all in front with Gen. Morgan, who rode at the head of the second brigade, then marching in advance. The brigade had no trouble, consequently. But the first brigade was embarrassed beyond measure. Duke's regiment was marching in the rear of the second brigade, and had it kept closed up we would have had no trouble, for the entire column would have been directed by the guides. But this regiment, although composed of superb material, and unsurpassed in fighting qualities, had, from the period of its organization, been under lax and careless discipline, and the effect of it was now observable.

"The rear companies straggled, halted, delayed the first brigade, for it was impossible to ascertain immediately whether the halt was that of the brigade in advance or only of these stragglers, and when forced to move on they would go off at a gallop. A great gap would be in this manner opened between the rear of one brigade and the advance of the other, and we who were behind were forced to grope our way as best we could. When we would come to one of the many junction roads which occur in the suburbs of a large city, we would be compelled to consult all sorts of indications in order to hit upon the right road. The night was intensely dark, and we would set on fire large bundles of paper or splinters of wood to afford a light. The horses' tracks (on roads so much traveled) would give us no clue to the route which the other brigade had taken, at such points, but we could trace it by noticing the direction in which the dust 'settled' or floated. When the night is calm, the dust kicked up by the passage of a large number of horses will remain suspended in the air for a considerable length of time, and it will also move slowly in the same direction that the horses which have disturbed it have traveled. We could also trace the column by the slaver dropped from the horses' mouths.

"It was a terrible, trying march. Strong men fell out of their saddles, and at every halt the officers were compelled to move continually about in their respective companies and pull and haul the men who would drop asleep in the road—it was the only way to keep them awake. Quite a number crept off into the fields and slept until they were awakened by the enemy. At length day appeared, just as we reached the last point where we had to anticipate danger. We had passed through Glendale, and across all the principal suburban roads, and were near the Little Miami railroad. We crossed the railroad without meeting with opposition, and halted to feed the horses in sight of Camp Dennison. After a short rest here, and a picket skirmish, we resumed our march, burning in this neighborhood a park of government wagons. That evening, at 4 P. M., we were at Williamsburg, 38 miles east of Cincinnati, having marched, since leaving Summansville, in Indiana, in a period of thirty-five hours, more than 90 miles—the greatest march that Morgan had ever made. Feeling comparatively safe here, Gen. Morgan permitted the division to go into camp and remain for the night."

"The disposition for wholesale plunder exceeded anything that any of us had ever seen before. The men seemed actuated by a desire to 'pay off in the enemy's country' all scores that the Federal army had chalked up in the South. The great cause for apprehension, which our situation might have inspired, seemed only to make them reckless. Calico was the staple article of appropriation—each man who could get one tied a bolt of it to his saddle, only to throw it away and get a fresh one at the first opportunity. They did not pillage with any sort of method or reason—it seemed to be a mania, senseless and purposeless. One man carried a bird-cage, with three canaries in it, for two days. Another rode with a chafing-dish, which looked like a small metallic coffin, on the pummel of his saddle, until an officer forced him to throw it away. Although the weather was intensely warm, another, still, slung seven pairs of skates around his neck, and chuckled over his acquisition. I saw very few articles of real value taken—they pillaged like boys robbing an orchard. I would not have believed that such a passion could have been developed, so ludicrously, among any body of civilized men. At Piketon, O., one man broke through the guard posted at a store, rushed in (trembling with excitement and avarice) and filled his pockets with horn buttons.—They would, with few exceptions, throw away their plunder after awhile, like children tired of their toys."

"Before quitting Ohio, it is but just to acknowledge the kind hospitality of the citizens. At every house that we approached, the dwellers thereof, themselves absent, perhaps unable to endure a meeting that would have been painful, had left warm pies freshly baked upon the tables. This touching attention to our tastes was appreciated. Some individuals were indelicate enough to hint that the pies were intended to propitiate us and prevent the plunder of the houses."

AT THE WONDERFUL REVELATIONS

MADE BY THE GREAT ASTROLOGIST,

Madame H. A. PERRIGO.

She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the zodiac stars that overcome or predominate in the configuration—from the aspects and positions of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest Astrologist on earth. It costs you but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information, $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered, and likeness enclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. Reference of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, enclosing a small lock of hair.

MEDICINES, &C.

SAUNDERS'

CATHARTIC AND ALTERATIVE PILLS.

RECOMMENDED BY THE BEST PHYSICIANS. Purely Vegetable. No Calomel in them. Never Gripe; being Coated with Gum Tolu are perfectly tasteless.

For regulating the Bowels, and for the cure of Bilious Fever, Bilious Headache, Constipation or Costiveness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Piles, Dyspepsia, Liver Diseases, Dizziness, loss of Appetite, Sick Headache, and all diseases where a reliable Cathartic medicine is required.

Dr. W. F. Malloy, who has no superior as a Physician in North Carolina, has examined the formula by which these pills are made and highly recommends them.

Prof. W. J. Hooper, the distinguished Patriot and Professor of Chemistry in the University of North Carolina, has analyzed them, and certifies that they contain no Mercury or any other mineral combination whatever.

THE

AMERICAN BITTERS.

The Great Southern Tonic,

AND THE MOST PALATABLE STOMACHIC EVER USED,

FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, DISORDERED Digestion, Flatulency, Sluggish Circulation of the Blood, Bilious Complaints arising from a morbid condition of the Stomach and Bowels. An Elegant Tonic in debilitated states of the Digestive Organs, or of the system generally.—For the loss of appetite it is the most wholesome and effectual Tonic in the world. It strengthens nature and enables the system to triumph over disease. In continuous attendance with treatment and general recovery is sure to follow. It is peculiarly adapted, giving strength and ease to the nervous, to females during pregnancy, and it is invaluable, and it may, without exception and remorse, be given where the doctor is sent for.

This valuable and well known Preparation, in the Southern States, testifies to its great value, besides many others who have been greatly benefited by the use of these Bitters.
