THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, PROPRIETOR, GENERAL LONGSTREET AND HIS

POSITION Since the appearance of Gen. Longstreet's better and the criticisms upon it by the conservative prost, he has avowed that his views have been minconstrued; yet the pleasure evinced by the Radicals in his recent pardon and the endorsement of Gen.

Jeff Thompson, show that the conservative letter and the criticisms upon it by the con-Jeff. Thompson, show that the conservative press was not in error in its criticisms as to the legitimate meaning of the letter,

Gen, Longstreet has simply faller into a very common error of military men, whose ethical views are not always sound or Scriptural. Whatever may be the views of pubtural. Whatever may be the views of pub- A written compact or constitution exist liciats or writers upon the laws of nations, between the States of the United States. or however readily the world has yielded to ound christian morals obliger markind to believe that might makes right. The only arbitet of right and wrong is the Bible, nor states, by resolutions unanimously passed

We had thrown aside General Long-street's letter, disgusted at the positions he assumed, yet unwilling to say anything, which might impugu this gallant soldier. But our Northern exchanges bring us a wild halloo from the whole Radical camp, in exultant approbation. The Philadelphia Press Forney's paper—the organ of Stevens and Butler and Ashley, and the whole crew of Southern haters, Radical disorganizers, impeachers, and confiscators, with trantic joy, claspic General Longatreet in its loving embraces. It says : "These letters of the ex-rebel leader are the best compaign documents yet issued. If they had been written for the very purpose of being used in Pounsylvania this full they could not be clearer or more telling.

We hope to see the Longstreet letters pub-lished prominently in every Union paper in Pennsylvania, and let the Republican journals in each county never rest until they have forced their publication in the trembling shoets of their Democratic cotemporaries and neighbors.
They will full like hot shot into the camp of the Democracy. They convict that time serving organization of cowardice and bad

t asts with the devoted columns that charged along the Confederate lines from Richmond to Chattaneoga!

Richmond to Chattaneoga!

It may yet be expedient to invite Lieutenant General James Longstreet to Pennsylvania as a campaign erator this coming election.

We know of nothing that would more advance the interests of our party and cause."

What is it in General Longstreet's letter, which elicits this furious appropriation of General Longstreet as one of their party, by the remorations persecutors of the South.

It is the following clause:

made to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of constitutional law. The sword has decided in favor of the North and what they claimed as principles exact to be principles and are become law. The views that we hold cause to be principles exact to be principles and are become law. The wires that we hold cause to be principles exact they are opposed to law. It is therefore our duty to abandon ideas that are obsolete and conform to the requirements of law."

According to this Railieal logic of General Longstreet, it is "a self-exident proposition"—that when our Lord was crucified—Christianity should have died. Force had settled that he was an impostor; and if General Longstreet had been one of his disciples, he would not, like Judas, have hanged himself—but he would have joined his nour-ciples, he would not, like Judas, have hanged humself—but he would have joined his nurderes, and have helped, them to persecute his other disciples and to count his cause.

When Gallileo gas tried by the loquisition, and residenced of the imprisopheral has asserting that the dearth-moved round the sun, scootding to General Longstreet, the facts of mature were abolished. Force had settled them against Gallileo, and against God. This was a safe resident proposition. It General Longstreet was in his house upon his farm, and a robbit—his neighbor,—should enter it, and beat and kick him out of his farm. General Longstreet, doubt less, would neekly say to him, 'We had a fight for the farm, and you licked me, therefore it is your, "The highest of human less is the lass that is established by an appeal to arms"—a self evident proposition, ar!

In the matter of the late contest, it is doubtfut, nay almost impossible, that either party should have been wholly right. In our judgment, both were wrong in some respects, and led captive by the wicked one.

States, by resolutions unanumously passed in both branches, declared that the war was waged on the part of the United States, with no purpose of subjugation, but to restore the Union of the United States, with the constitution, and all the rights of the States unimpaired. But let us suppose the assertion of General Longstreet to be truethat on account of different and opposing constructions of the constitution—the Hence, whatever of principle was held by constructions of the constitution—the Northern States took up arms, and invaded Hence, whatever of principle was held by the North or South, was not determined to be wrong or right by the results of the war. God, in the administration of his natural or moral government, does not always, at the time, vindicate the right or condemn the wrong. He has His own time and way to do thus. Hence oppression and wrong and crime are often suffered by Him, to siffict the innocent. Yet He will ultimately, in of physical existences. During a recent discussion in the British Parliament, when the debt of the United States was the subject, it was said that the payment of interest rather than principal was the law that is established by appeal to arms.

The great principles that divided political parties prior to the war were thoroughly discussed by our wisest statesmen. When argument was exhausted resort was had to compromise. When compromise was unavailing, discussion was renewed, and expedients were sought, but none could be found to suit the emergency. Appeal was finally made to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of contract to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of contract to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of contract to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true construction of contract to the sword, to determine which of the claims was the true policy. Mr. Case approved this view and said: "When he was in America, before the war, he spent all the time he could among the slaves, and he was introduced to one who was very rich and abundantly able to buy his freedom. He asked him why he did not do so. 'No hurtistication was renewed, and expedience the could be found to suit the energency.
