This clamor against Mr. Greeley for bailing a man, charged with the assault in the conquered and the var to make quite of the prisoners, is entirely unreasonable and unfair. For neither of these offences has Mr. Davis been indicted; and, instead of peace, I would have had no panishment of peace, I would have no panishment, even if she allow had been responsible for the war, on that she would not do it, were she to be called peace? Into the enjoyment of this true peace the nation should have entered more than two years ago. From the military of these offences in stead of for tresson, Mr. Greeley would, perhaps, have desired going ball for him. Though, even in the conquered and the war to make quite things else to keep the South from taking on the true and necessary attitude.

I spoke of what was to be required of the South. It is true, that there will be much of instead of requiring her to do it. I admit that she would not do it, were she to be still the slaveholding South. But a new and wery different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and very different spirit will rule her in her and of trees.

The work, now, of the conquering Morth will deave the the war, there will be much to the requiring bert do it. I admit that she would not do it, were she to be still the slaveholding South. But a new and very different spirit will rule her in her and the part of the south arrived the south arrived to be sti been pleading in yain for his trial. Moreover, Hr. Greever, like every just man, does not allow himself to leef sure that the accessed is guilty until he is tound to be guilty. And he thinks that they who are the sure that Mr. Davia is guilty of one of both of these horibits offences, and any ot taking as steps to bring him into court and to prove his guilt, have no right to insist-that others shall like themselves, believe without proof, and condemn without triel. But, to return to my reterence to certain of my writings and speeches. In these writings and speeches, In these writings and speeches. In these writings and speeches, In these writings, and speeches. In these writings and speeches, In these writings, and speeches, In the constitution, sine would have had the cight to bold the South guilty of transm. But I argued that, as see elected to carry it ou under the law of war—under international instead of munity original to be a support of the south state of the substitutions of the south war to the world war—under international instead of munity original writings and speeches and the will so to be the world war—under international instead of munity or the world war—under international instead of m but to win it. It is true, that we could do no less than kill slavery. But that was not pusishing the South. To have left it alive would have been to fail of removing the occasion for another and a specity wat. And we could do no less than give the blacks the ballot. Nor did we in this punish the South. Not to have given it to them would have been to leave our magnanimous and indispensable allies in virtual slavery - a virtual slavery - a virtual slavery, too, which might, under this vital deprivation, have soon become literal lavery. But having abolished slavery and
