From the Asheville News and Farmer.

WESTERN NORTH CAROLINA.

Letter From Hon. T. L. Clingman.

We take the following interesting and valuable letter from a pamphlet just published at New York, by the "American Agricultural and Mineral Land Company":

NEW YORK, June 12th, 1867.

To Wm. Frazier, Esq., President of the American Agricultural and Mineral Land Company, New York:

DEAR SIR:—The short period during which I expect to remain in this city, and the pressure of business engagements, will prevent my replying at length to your inquiries in relation to the western part of North Carolina.

For a great many years I have resided on the west side of the Blue Ridge, the range of mountains which divides the waters falling into the Atlantic from those descending to the Mississippi River. Having for more than sixteen years been a Representative or Senator in Congress from that region, I used in my canvasses to visit every part of it.—I have also ascended the principal mountains for the purpose of measuring or observing them, while my fondness for geology and mineralogy has carried me into almost every valley. My general acquaintance, therefore, with this entire region, probably exceeds that of any other person.

It may be regarded as an elevated table land of more than two hundred miles in length, with an average breadth of fifty miles, and is crossed in different directions by many mountain chains. The height of the lower valleys may be stated as ranging from two thousand to twenty-five hundred feet above the level of the sea, while the principal mountain chains rise four thousand feet higher. This elevation, notwithstanding its southern latitude, gives it a delightful summer climate.

Mr. Wm. McDowell, who made observations for the Smithsonian Institute, at Asheville, for several years, informed me that the thermometer during the warmest summer weather did not rise above eighty-two degrees Fahrenheit. Even the climate of Switzerland is not equal to that of this region: not only at Geneva, but in the high valley of Chamouny, I once found hotter weather than I ever experienced in this section; while there, one is occasionally chilled in mid summer by cold blasts from the masses of snow on the higher Alps. In western North Carolina, none of the mountains are high enough to bear snow in summer, yet the region is sufficiently elevated to afford a climate which is cool, dry, bracing and exceedingly exhilarating. No country is more healthy, being alike free from the diseases of miasmatic regions, as well as those common in rigorous or damp climates.

What especially distinguishes this section from all other mountain regions that I have seen, is the general fertility of its soil.—This is true, not only with reference to its valleys, but also of its mountains. Their sides and even tops are generally covered with a thick vegetable mould, on which the largest trees and grasses grow luxuriantly. At an elevation of five thousand feet above the ocean, the grasses and weeds are so rank as to remind one of the swampy lands of the lower regions. On the tops, and for a considerable distance down the sides of the higher chains, there are several varieties of evergreen or "winter grass," as they are generally called there. These are so nutritious that cattle are kept in good condition on them all the winter. A friend of mine he on the war kept four or five hundred horned cattle on one of these mountains, and with the exception that they were supplied with salt occasionally, they subsisted entirely both in summer and winter on those grasses. The older cattle, he assured me, soon learned to understand the effect of the seasons, and without being driven, they led the herds, in the spring, down the sides of the mountains to obtain the young grasses that came up with the warm weather, and, when these were destroyed by the autumn frosts, they returned to the tops to get the evergreen vegetation, and found shelter under the spreading branches of the balsam fir trees in stormy weather. I have seen in Haywood County a five years old horse that was said to have been foaled and reared entirely on the top of Balsam Mountain, and was then for the first time brought down to see cultivated land and eat food grown by the hand of man.

Those portions of the mountain that are without timber are, of course, covered by the thickest coats of grass. The balsam trees which cover for so great an extent the Great Smoky, Balsam, and Black Mountains, could be easily gotten rid of at a cost of not more than a couple of dollars per acre. It is so soft as to be easily cut, and if felled and suffered to lie a few months, its leaves would become quite dry, and it might be burned with the greatest facility. When thus destroyed, it would not spring up again but in its stead a very thick sward of evergreen grass. Immense winter pastures could in this way be prepared, and thousands of cattle thus sustained in the winter, with only an occasional supply of salt.

Where the lands in this part of the State are placed under proper cultivation, they produce abundantly. On choice spots, more than one hundred bushels to the acre of Indian corn has frequently been obtained, and this valuable grain is everywhere produced in sufficient quantity. Wheat, also, does well, while oats, rye and barley are particularly good. It is especially suited to the production of grasses, timothy, orchard and herds grass, or red top being usually preferred. Clover and blue grass grow well, but are never good as in many Counties having more lime in the soil.—Last summer I lived with Mr. N. W. Woodfin near a mountain farm of his; the land of which had originally cost him less than one dollar per acre. It had been cleared by cutting out the undergrowth and girding the large timber so as to deaden it, and then put in grass, nearly twenty years previously. It was covered over with a thick growth of timothy and orchard grass, much of which appeared as thick and as tall as a fair wheat field. In some places we found both of these grasses rising high enough, as we sat on our horses, for us to take the top of the stalks growing on each side, and cause them to meet above the withers of our horses. I never, in fact, saw better grass anywhere than grew generally over this entire tract of twelve hundred acres.

Irish potatoes, cabbages and turnips are grown in the greatest quantities, while no country excels this for fruits. Its apples, both in size and flavor, excel those that I have seen in any part of the world; while peaches, pears and grapes grow abundantly. Besides the Catawba, there are a great many other native grapes. One gentleman thinks he has obtained a hundred varieties of native grapes, some of which he considers superior to the Catawba. That this country is admirably adapted to the production of grapes and wine there can be no question. The fact that varieties of grapes can be selected, that ripen at different periods of the Autumn, will make the vintage longer than it is in Europe, and thus increase the amount of wine made. All kinds of live stock thrive in the country, though horses and horned cattle have been more generally raised, because they require less care from the farmer. Sheep are very healthy and grow well everywhere. As large sheep as I ever saw were some that were suffered to run in the woods, both in summer and winter, without being fed. Mr. Woodfin also stated to me, that he could, from the stock of his farm above alluded to, at all periods of the winter, obtain good mutton and beef from the animals that were subsisted on the grass. Even when sheep are to be kept in large numbers, it is certain they would do with half the feeding they require during the long winters in New England. Snow seldom remains many days at a time, even on the mountain tops in North Carolina; and when the grass is good, little is required in the form of hay or other food for the stock.

The minerals of this region have hitherto been turned to very little account. There are some narrow belts of marble and limestone, which furnish a sufficiency of lime for use, and from which good marble can be procured at certain points. The different ores of iron, of the best qualities, exist in great abundance in many places, and from them superior iron can be made. Large and promising veins of copper have been cut in several localities in Jackson County, and surface indications leave little doubt but that similar deposits will be found in other Counties. Gold has been profitably mined in the Counties of Jackson, Macon and Cherokee, but less extensively than in the section east of the Blue Ridge. It is quite probable that good veins of this metal will, in time, be opened, and there is encouragement to search for lead and silver at several points. The barytes and chromeores can be brought into use when the railroads are finished that have been provided for by the State. Though coal does not exist, its want will not be experienced for a long period, as the immense forests will supply fuel for a great number of years, and long before they can become exhausted, railroads will permeate all parts of the district, and will bring in supplies of this valuable mineral from localities not far distant.

The country is everywhere intersected by bold and rapid streams, and the supply, therefore, of water power, is beyond any demand that can ever exist for it. These streams, from the elevated valleys in which they are first collected, have a descent of not less than one thousand feet before they escape into the State of Tennessee, and present at various points, therefore, rapids and falls where the water can be conveniently used for manufacturing purposes.

Though this region lacks the boldness and grandeur of the Alps, this deficiency is more than balanced by the fact that every part of it is susceptible of settlement and cultivation. The fact that the mountains as well as the valleys are covered by a luxuriant vegetation, gives to them a green and inviting appearance, which renders many of the scenes peculiarly attractive to the beholder. The present population, though sparse, is quiet, industrious, intelligent and moral; the negroes there not being numerous enough to constitute an important element in the whole society. I know of no country more inviting to industrious emigrants, when one considers its excellent climate, water and soil, its mining and manufacturing resources, and its cheap lands and good population. Very truly yours,

T. L. CLINGMAN.

RECONSTRUCTION,—SUPPLEMENTAL BILL NO. 2.

PASSED AT THE JULY SESSION.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it is hereby declared to have been the true intent and meaning of the act of the second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, entitled an act for the more efficient government of the rebel States, and of the act supplementary thereto, passed on the 24th. day of March, in the year 1867, that the governments then existing in the rebel States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas and Arkansas were illegal and void, and therefore the same governments, if continued, were to be continued subject in all respects to the military commanders of the respective Districts and to the authority of Congress.

SECTION 2. And be it further enacted, That the commander of any district named in said act shall have power, subject to the approval of the General of the armies of the United States, to have effect till disapproved, whenever in the opinion of such commander the proper administration of said act shall require it, to suspend or remove from office, or from the performance of official duties and the exercise of official powers, any officer or person holding or exercising, or professing to hold or exercise, any civil or military office or duty in such district, under any power, election, appointment, or authority derived from or granted by, or claimed under any so-called State or the government thereof, or any municipal or other division thereof, and upon such suspension or removal such commander, subject to the approval of the General aforesaid, shall have the power to provide from time to time for the performance of the said duties of such officer or person so suspended or removed, by the detail of some competent officer or soldier of the army or by the appointment of some other person to perform the same, and to fill vacancies occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise.

SECTION 3. And be it further enacted, That the General of the armies of the United States shall be invested with all the powers of suspension, removal, appointment and detail granted in the preceding section to district commanders.

SECTION 4. And be it further enacted, That the acts of the officers of the army already done in removing by said districts persons exercising the functions of civil officers and appointing others in their stead are hereby confirmed, provided that any person heretofore or hereafter appointed by any district commander to exercise the functions of any civil office may be removed, either by the military officer in command of the district or by the General of the army; and it shall be the duty of commanders to remove from office, as aforesaid, all persons who are disloyal to the government of the United States, or who use their official influence in any manner to hinder, delay, prevent or obstruct the due and proper administration of this act, and the acts to which this is supplementary.

SECTION 5. And be it further enacted, That the boards of registration provided for in the act entitled "an act supplementary to an act entitled 'an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States,' passed March 2, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, shall have power, and it shall be their duty, before allowing the registration of any person, to ascertain upon such facts or information as they can obtain, whether such person is entitled to be registered under said act, and the oath required by said act shall not be conclusive on such question, and no person shall be registered unless such board shall decide that he is entitled thereto; and such board shall also have power to examine under oath (to be administered by any member of such board) any one touching the qualification of any person claiming registration. But in every case of a refusal by the board to register an applicant, made in every case hereafter provided, the board shall make a note or memorandum, which shall be returned with the registration list to the commanding Generals of the Districts, setting forth the ground of such refusal, or such striking from the list: Provided, that no person shall be disqualified, as a member of any board of registration, by reason of race or color.

SECTION 6. And be it further enacted, That the true intent and meaning of the oath prescribed in said supplementary act is (among other things) that no person who has been a member of the Legislature of any State or who has held any executive or judicial office in any State, whether he has taken an oath to support the Constitution of the United States or not, and whether he was holding such office at the commencement of the rebellion or had held it before, and who has afterward engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof, is entitled to be registered or to vote; and the words "executive or judicial office in any State" in said oath mentioned shall be construed to include all civil offices created by law for the administration of the general law of the State, or for the administration of justice.

SECTION 7. And be it further enacted, That the time for completing the original registration provided for in said act may, in the discretion of the commander of any district, be extended to the 1st. day of October, 1867; and the boards of registration shall have power, and it shall be their duty, commencing fourteen days prior to any election under said act, and upon reasonable public notice of the time and place thereof, to revise for a period of three days the registration lists; and upon being satisfied that any person not entitled thereto has been registered, to strike the name of such person from the list. And such board shall also during the same period, add to such registry the names of all persons who at that time possess the qualifications required by said act who have not been already registered, and no person shall at any time be entitled to be registered or to vote by reason of any executive pardon or amnesty for any act or thing which, without such pardon or amnesty, would disqualify him from registration or voting.

SECTION 8. And be it further enacted, That section 4 of the said last-named act shall be construed to authorize the commanding general named therein, whenever he shall deem it needful, to remove any member of a board of registration, and to appoint another person in his stead, and to fill any vacancy in such board.

SECTION 9. That all members of said Boards of Registration and all persons hereafter elected or appointed to office in said military districts, under any so-called State or municipal authority or by detail or appointment of the District Commanders, shall be required to take and subscribe to the oath of office prescribed by law for officers of the United States.

SECTION 10. That no District Commander or member of the Board of registration or any of the officers or appointees acting under them shall be bound in his action by any opinion of any civil officer of the United States.

SECTION 11. That all the provisions of this act, and the acts to which this is supplementary, shall be construed liberally, to the end that all the intents thereof may be fully and perfectly carried out.

A FIRST CLASS SCHOOL FOR BOYS,

ELLICOTTS MILLS, MD.,

(NEAR BALTIMORE,)

THIS SCHOOL WAS ESTABLISHED FOR the purpose of enabling the Rev. Dr. Bond, who has successfully conducted it for many years, to give to his pupils the same advantages that are afforded in the best and most expensive Northern schools.

It has been, already, eminently successful. The Hall is a large and beautiful edifice. The Household is under the immediate charge of the Doctor and his wife. The pupils are all received as members of the family, and treated with parental kindness. Every effort is made to form their manners, habits and to the cultivation of courteous manners, while every care is taken to unite the comforts of a home with the strict discipline of a school. In these respects, this Institution claims to have no superior in the country.

The Teachers are all gentlemen of fine classical attainments, and the instruction is of the most thorough kind.

THE

AMERICAN BITTERS.

The Great Southern Tonic,

AND THE MOST PALATABLE ETC-

MACHIC EVER USED.

FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, DISORDERed Digestion, Flatulency, Sluggish Circulation of the Blood, Bilious complaints arising from a deranged condition of the Digestive Organs, or of the system generally.—The total loss of appetite it is the most wonderful and will heal sores in the mouth. It removes those natures and enables the system to triumph over disease. In enfeebleness attended with nervous and general nervous derangement, it is positively unique, giving strength and tone to the nerves. To animate Ladies and Children it is invaluable—and in fact wherever a pleasant and agreeable tonic is wanted, this should be used.

Dr. Johnston F. Jones, one of the most scientific and well known Physicians in Rensselaer County, testifies to the great merits of these many others who have been greatly benefited by the use of these bitters.
