VOL. II. RALEIGH, N. C., TUESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1867. NO. 307.

THE SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, Proprietor.

PRINCIPALS AND ACCESSORIES.

We called attention the other day to the remarkable declaration of Mr. Pierrepont, one of the counsel for the prosecution in the Surratt case, that in the cases of persons indicted for murdering a President there were no accessories—all the parties were principals. In his speech the next day, Mr. Merrick alluded to this degrading doctrine as follows:

"I must confess that I listened to that proposition yesterday with infinite amazement, not to say some amusement and a mingled pleasure. With amazement, that a lawyer of the reputation of the gentleman should advance a doctrine such as that; and with pleasure, when I felt that he would not have perilled his reputation by such a doctrine, except as the last resort for a desperate cause.

And he tells your Honor that it is your extraordinary privilege to enunciate from the bench, for the first time in America, this doctrine. Well, sir, he may regard it as a privilege; but, as the representative of this young man before your Honor and this jury, I will say that I do not want you to be exercising privileges, or decorating your name with the enunciation of new principles. I want you to exercise the duty of determining the law as it is, not to announce law that has never heretofore been announced in the country. He says it is in the law of France, and it is the law of England. As I said the other day, there is a class of gentlemen in the United States who, since the commencement of our late war, seem to have entirely lost sight of all the early and glorious traditions of our country, and abandoned all love for constitutional liberty and become dazzled with the prospective glory of stars and garters, titles of nobility and rank, crowns and diadems, dancing in mazy twistings before their eyes. There is a class of men like that, your Honor; and it may be that in the days of republican liberty we will have to meet that class of men in order to preserve our Constitution. Ideas of monarchy and rank are growing among the people. Why, the very dead of the Revolution, of the last war with Britain, and of the late war for freedom and constitutional independence, rise to condemn the gentleman and to repudiate his doctrine. Give me the Constitution of my country and her ancient liberty, undimmed by the darkness of a single declaration of title or of honor. The President is a simple American citizen, the representative of the free people of America. The monarchy of this country, grand and sacred beyond the touch, the reach of an assault, is the embodied will of the people in the Constitution of the United States; our only emperor, our only king, is the Constitution of the United States,—It is the only sovereign of a republic; the supreme law of the land; and when that ceases to be the supreme law of the land, and we attach to individuals in office special privileges, special powers, and a special grace, we take away a part of the sanctity that belongs to that Constitution to give it to men. Sir, I will never do it. If I might venture to use the language of the gentle man, and did not feel that it was transcending the propriety of forensic discussion and discourse, I would say that your Honor dare not do it.

Can he find a parallel case in England? Was anybody ever tried there for killing the President of the United States? No, sir. What will he do? He may find a case for compassing the King's death. Has the President of the United States ever had his temples pressed with a crown? Is he the State? He says he can find an authority in France. I grant it. To imagine the death of Louis Napoleon by the laws of France is treason. Was it treason here to imagine the death of Andrew Johnson? Is it treason to wish his death? If it be, then, when your grand jury meets, charge them to indict Thaddeus Stevens and all his corps.—(Sensation.) No, sir; it is not treason.—We can wish what we please in this free land, and public men are open to the freest and severest criticism. If in the Corps Legislatif an individual passes censure on the Emperor, what is the consequence?—The President stops him, or the sanctity of the Imperial person will not bear censure of a private individual. How is it here?—Here, thanks be to God, we have freedom of speech, with a restored Constitution, temporarily suspended by usurping power, but once again the birth-right of Americans. He may find you a case in France, and he may find you a case in England, where imagining or conspiring the death of the sovereign is treason; but that is not a parallel case. The pride of our country is, that neither the anointed of men nor the anointed of the Lord claim political power by virtue of the anointment.

There is no sanctity about the person of our President. The pride of our free institutions is that the President of the United States is like a private man. He is a servant, crowned by the hearts of the people, and sustained by them. He claims no fictitious authority—no fictitious sanctity.—The line of his duty is marked by the Constitution. The extent of his power is defined by law, and his relation to the people is well ascertained. If he cannot find in England any authority to controvert the principles I have laid before your Honor, can he find any in America? I will show your Honor that in the United States we have repeated again and again, ratified and confirmed, the principles which I have been reading from the English law."

From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

"SECOND SOBER THOUGHTS."

Reflecting people begin to lift their eyes and thoughts a very little above the horizon of the military reconstruction law, discussing, in the future, what may prove anything but beneficial to those who are casting the responsibilities of government upon a class just redeemed from two centuries of slavery. The Springfield Republican indulges in such reflections as follows:

"THE PRESENT HASTE IS THE SOUTH.—The prospect that at the first election under the reconstruction acts the Southern States will be carried by the Republicans is in itself gratifying. But the way in which this is to happen gives to thoughtful men some anxiety for the future. The foresight that the negro vote is to control everything is not having a favorable influence upon the white men of the South, and we cannot forget that the whites constitute two-thirds of the population of the State that are to be surrendered to the control of a mass of ignorant blacks, and that these white men must inevitably become the dominant class very soon, whatever happens this year. A majority of the whites will not attempt to register, or are excluded if they attempt, and of those registering it is thought that a majority will vote against reconstruction on the Congressional plan. The blacks, and a small fraction of the whites, will do the voting and reconstructing, and have possession of the State machinery under the new government. It will be "good enough" for the Obstructionists, indeed, but how is it coming out? We know what the Hunnicutts and other leaders of the negroes have threatened, and what hopes and purposes they have raised among their credulous followers. Shall we see Brownlow despotism and anarchy extended over the entire South for the next ten years, and order preserved only by keeping the eight millions of whites quiet under the rule of four millions of negroes by stress of Federal bayonets?"

RECONSTRUCTION.—SUPPLEMENTAL BILL NO. 2.

PASSED AT THE JULY SESSION.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it is hereby declared to have been the true intent and meaning of the act of the second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, entitled an act for the more efficient government of the rebel States, and of the act supplementary thereto, passed on the 24th day of March, in the year 1867, that the governments then existing in the rebel States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas and Arkansas were illegal and void, and that after the same governments, if continued, were to be continued subject in all respects to the military commanders of the respective Districts and to the authority of Congress.

SECTION 2. And be it further enacted, That the commander of any district named in said act shall have power, subject to the approval of the General of the armies of the United States, to have effect till disapproved, whenever in the opinion of such commander the proper administration of said act shall require it, to suspend or remove from office, or from the performance of official duties and the exercise of official powers, any officer or person holding or exercising, or professing to hold or exercise, any civil or military office or duty in such district, under any power, election, appointment, or authority derived from or granted by, or claimed under any so-called State or the government thereof, or any municipal or other division thereof, and upon such suspension or removal such commander, subject to the approval of the General aforesaid, shall have the power to provide from time to time for the performance of the said duties of such officer or person so suspended or removed, by the detail of some competent officer or soldier of the army or by the appointment of some other person to perform the same, and to fill vacancies occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise.

SECTION 3. And be it further enacted, That the General of the armies of the United States shall be invested with all the powers of suspension, removal, appointment and detail granted in the preceding section to district commanders.

SECTION 4. And be it further enacted, That the acts of the officers of the army already done in removing in said districts persons exercising the functions of civil officers and appointing others in their stead are hereby confirmed; provided that any person heretofore or hereafter appointed by any district commander to exercise the functions of any civil office may be removed, either by the military officer in command of the district or by the General of the army; and it shall be the duty of commanders to remove from office, as aforesaid, all persons who are disloyal to the government of the United States, or who use their official influence in any manner to hinder, delay, prevent or obstruct the due and proper administration of this act, and the acts to which this is supplementary.

SECTION 5. And be it further enacted, That the boards of registration provided for in the act entitled "an act supplementary to an act entitled "an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States," passed March 2, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, shall have power, and it shall be their duty, before allowing the registration of any person, to ascertain upon such facts or information as they can obtain, whether such person is entitled to be registered under said act, and the oath required by said act shall not be conclusive on such question, and no person shall be registered unless such board shall decide that he is entitled thereto; and such board shall also have power to examine under oath (to be administered by any member of such board) any one touching the qualification of any person claiming registration. But in every case of a refusal by the board to register an applicant, made in every case hereinafter provided, the board shall make a note or memorandum, which shall be returned with the registration list to the commanding General as of the District, setting forth the ground of such refusal, or such striking from the list: Provided, that no person shall be disqualified, as a member of any board of registration, by reason of race or color.

SECTION 6. And be it further enacted, That the true intent and meaning of the oath prescribed in said supplementary act is (among other things) that no person who has been a member of the Legislature of any State or who has held any executive or judicial office in any State, whether he has taken an oath to support the Constitution of the United States or not, and whether he was holding such office at the commencement of the rebellion or had held it before, and who has afterward engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof, is entitled to be registered or to vote; and the words "executive or judicial office in any State" in said oath mentioned shall be construed to include all civil offices created by law for the administration of the general law of the State, or for the administration of justice.

SECTION 7. And be it further enacted, That the time for completing the original registration provided for in said act may, in the discretion of the commander of any district, be extended to the 1st day of October, 1867; and the boards of registration shall have power, and it shall be their duty, commencing fourteen days prior to any election under said act, and upon reasonable public notice of the time and place thereof, to revise for a period of three days the registration lists; and upon being satisfied that any person not entitled thereto has been registered, to strike the name of such person from the list. And such board shall also during the same period, add to such registry the names of all persons who at that time possess the qualifications required by said act who have not been already registered, and no person shall at any time be entitled to be registered or to vote by reason of any executive pardon or amnesty for any act or thing which, without such pardon or amnesty, would disqualify him from registration or voting.

SECTION 8. And be it further enacted, That section 4 of the said last-named act shall be construed to authorize the commanding general named therein, whenever he shall deem it needful, to remove any member of a board of registration, and to appoint another person in his stead, and to fill any vacancy in such board.

SECTION 9. That all members of said Boards of Registration and all persons hereafter elected or appointed to office in said military districts, under any so-called State or municipal authority or by detail or appointment of the District Commanders, shall be required to take and subscribe to the oath of office prescribed by law for officers of the United States.

SECTION 10. That no District Commander or member of the Board of registration or any of the officers or appointees acting under them shall be bound in his action by any opinion of any civil officer of the United States.

SECTION 11. That all the provisions of this act, and the acts to which this is supplementary, shall be construed liberally, to the end that all the intents thereof may be fully and perfectly carried out.
