THE SENTINEL.

W. E. PELL, PROPRIETOR.

From the National Intelligencer.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS.

The development of the conspiracy against the President of the United States is growing hourly. A large portion of the evidence of the criminality of the conspirators we do not at present deem necessary or expedient to publish. There has evidently been some other a providential break in the great conspiracy, and each one of the subordinates is trying to save himself by an early confession. The testimony already accumulated is fearful. The parties implicated are seeking to raise their heads behind the epithets of partisan newspapers, but they will avail them nothing. Their guilt is acknowledged by their confederates, and they must abide the issue, and consent to be held up to public scorn and execration, as well as punishment for their attempted crimes.

The chief of the Bureau of Military Justice, the trusted and valued friend, counselor, and confidant of the treacherous Secretary of War, who has been plotting the ruin of the country in this matter, appears to be deeply and irrevocably implicated in this conspiracy with his old associate and manager of testimony—Conover alias Dunham.

The original of the following letter, in the handwriting of the Reverend Mr. Matchett, will be produced whenever necessary. We have seen it, and had it identified by more than one witness as the handwriting of the reverend associate and aider and abettor of perjury and conspiracy. It will be seen that this letter, confidentially addressed to the chief of the Bureau of Military Justice, shows a guilty complicity with Conover, the great manager of perjury and testimony, particularly in reference to this case. It is evident that there were some apprehensions in reference to letters and documents that might be used. It was desirable, on the part of the conspirators, to get them back into their possession; therefore the letters were made with Conover's wife—Mrs. Dunham—that "the letters and documents were to be retained by Mrs. Dunham, for the letter, Holt & Co. Matchett is understood to be the clerk of the assassination committee. He is the man who was sent to bring on the professional witnesses, who were to be examined by Ashley and Butler, to see if they and their testimony would suit the purpose. From this letter it is evident that he was acting under the instructions and as an agent of the chief of the Bureau of Military Justice. The letter bears internal evidence of its authenticity, but it that should be doubted, it can easily be proved. Neither Holt nor the reverend Matchett, the operator and manager of the gang of perjured witnesses, can deny its authenticity. The letter is as follows:

WASHINGTON, August 3, 1867.
DEAR SIR: I received the "copy" safe, for which I am obliged. The safe stands as yet untouched, waiting, I judge, for the termination of the trial now going on. Mrs. D. still is waiting the result and hopeful. The terms are as I stated; the letters and documents to be retained by us, and letters given for us in either case. She visited me yesterday, and seemed quite cheerful with prospects of the case, as you letter and Mr. Holt's has given her great confidence that you are not the persecutor you have been represented, and that if she should fall there, in getting the pardon, she shall not feel finally getting him out, at least under a change of office.

I am trying, as ordered by Judge C., to get the letters. I think we shall at length succeed. I think Mrs. D. is going to show symptoms of "retiring reason," and that her husband was guilty of a great crime, and ought justly to suffer a little! Your endorsement seems to have settled her mind very much, and she feels that you have done all you could, and all you ought to do. She is satisfied perfectly. I think they both feel that there is both dignity and power in the law yet, and that it is dangerous work to treat with contempt. I believe it will be all for the best that has gone up to date. She knows not how long I do, if she will bring me the letters.

I will inform you of any movements the moment necessary.
I am, very truly,
W. B. MATCHETT.

Addressed: "Hon. Judge Holt, Judge Alexander General, present." Marked "personal."

Physicians, as a class, are among the most devoted of men, where the interests of humanity and of their profession are concerned. A French paper gives an account of the death of a surgeon, and his two assistants at Heidelberg, under circumstances which prove the truth of this statement. The three had to attend an extreme case of diphtheria, and testimony was found necessary. During the operation a small clot of blood fell into the child's windpipe. Not having the proper instrument, the surgeon sucked the wound in order to extract it. Having failed, the others in succession applied their mouths to the wound, and at last succeeded in their object. They, however, all caught the maldy, and succumbed to it in the course of a few hours. This is only one of the many instances constantly occurring, which evince the unselfish benevolence of the medical profession. There may be exceptions, but they are few.

About the most amusing news of the day concerns Godard's balloon, which went up in Paris and alighted in the vicinity of Cologne. M. Flammarion says that because the balloon flew the French flag, the aeronauts were badly received by ill-disposed persons, who mistook their meteorological instruments for something dangerous, and were on the point of setting them on fire. The balloon had just been released when the police intervened; and of course a student of legal procedure to search the balloon for arms and pistols, and there was a quantity of ballast. This lighted the balloon of a sudden, and it went up, much to the terror of the French, and the surprise of all. By the latest accounts we learn that the unhappy policeman accomplished his descent into the sea by some means. The suspicion of the Germans at the night of the scientific instruments probably rubbed one of the red balloons which nearly broke out in Britain on the introduction of eight day clocks; the passenger was persuaded that they had something to do with the Gabelle or salt tax.

John D. Bright has been elected to the Kentucky Legislature.
Dunham has engaged to deliver six thousand in this country for 50,000 francs.
