DAILY SENTINEL.

WM. E. PELL, PROPRIETOR.

[From the Richmond Enquirer.]

NORTHERN FANATICISM AND SOUTHERN PHILOSOPHY.

When the Rev. Mr. Beecher recently returned to Brooklyn, an audience of over five thousand faithful followers greeted him at his church on a Sunday evening. His so-called sermon treated, for a wonder, of religious matters, but as soon as the written part had been read he felt free from constraint, and, symbolising this freedom by leaving the flower-decked table, which serves him as pulpit, he walked about rambling with his improvised remarks through the whole range of popular subjects, from the impeachment of the President to the last murder in Arkansas. A benediction he did not dare give, for what man can bless his fellow-man? His brother minister, the Rev. Mr. Blanchard, a week afterwards, addressed a large audience of Spiritualists in New York on the subject of Free Thought and Free Pulpit. Free Thought meant to him and to his audience an absolute abandonment of all authority that could fetter man's mind: the wisdom of antiquity, the light of learning, the weight of experience and, above all, "the absurd tyranny of the Bible!" Placing himself as the third brother between Mr. Beecher, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Trothingham, of Boston, he proclaimed the uprising of a church, which was to know no other guidance but the sublime reason of man and the direct revelations of the Great Spirit. For the Free Pulpit he claimed the undisputed right to discuss all sacred matters, and what matters were not sacred? Surely politics concerned the happiness of men, and was not that a sacred thing? Surely woman required an advocate and an interpreter of her rights, and was not her cause a sacred thing?

The Sunday after this, the last and highest tribute to perfect freedom was paid by the inauguration of a church in Hoboken, the professed creed of whose members was declared to be Atheism and Infidelity; the speaker stated that they believed neither in the scriptures, as inspired writings, nor in the existence of God. Among other remarks, which it would seem wrong to repeat, he said that the building was to be not a church, but a "Mansoleum to Jehovah!"

These are not isolated instances, but only stray expressions called forth by the reopening of fashionable churches after the summer vacation. But they open a view into the heart of Northern society, which would make the stoic turn with disgust and fill the Christian with ineffable sorrow. It is sad enough that four hundred thousand inhabitants of New York never go to church, as a recent census has revealed, but we doubt,—with all reverence, be it said—whether their souls are not safer than those whom infidels and deceivers pretend to instruct and to guide.

The fact is, that true faith is simply dying out at the North under the influence of Radicalism. As the powerful dogma of the Reformation could not be confined by human wisdom or man's violence to matters of religion, but soon brought light and independence to science, to art, and to all the higher powers of man, so Radicalism, also, does not content itself with undermining the belief in constitutions, but goes on blighting the faith in all that men have heretofore held sacred. Their doctrine is emphatically a doctrine of destruction. Down with the sacred compact of glorious old States; down with the principles of the noble founders of the Republic; down with the ancient virtues of generosity and charity! In their stead, Radicalism gives to the Union Main liquor laws, negro dominion and unbearable taxes. They have successfully upheaved the foundations of the Republic and torn down its pillars; what wonder that they now attack the church as well as the State, and, as they have substituted their own will for the Constitution, prefer their own reason to revelations from on High.

We hope and trust that the South will be spared at least this humiliation, to see infidelity darken its bright skies. We have drained the bitter cup that is held to our lips by implacable enemies. We are even now at the dregs and we are sorely tried.—But if all is lost, our honor is safe yet, and God be thanked, our faith has stood the trial. In our darkest hour, in the moment when all was lost and despair crept into many a heart, no impious curse was heard, no reckless reproaches were sent to Heaven. The nation bowed in reverend submission before the decree, and ever since, we have accepted our sorrowful lot as coming from on High. For there is faith yet in the land. When dangers threaten us on all sides, when brutal enemies rejoice and our servants are made our masters, when our homes are in danger of confiscation and our children left without bread, we still look upon our foe but as the instrument in the hands of a higher power; and when the Radicals rule supreme in the land with violence and perfidy, we remember that there is one who rules over all the earth and that with Him is justice and mercy. We cannot close our land to the Northerner or to the foreigner who comes to settle among us; we cannot keep out teachers and preachers who intrude on our soil; but we can close our ears to the siren song of the worshipper of reason and shut our hearts against the eloquent words of the infidel. Atheism has never prospered in the broad light of Southern good sense, and Spiritualism has always been a folly in our eyes. Let us but preserve our faith and all is safe. Let us believe in God, who watches over our beloved land; let us believe in ourselves, our manhood and our strength; let us believe in justice on high and we can with bear the darkness of the moment for the sake of the brightness of the future!

The President on the Effect of the Veto.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, in his dispatches of Wednesday evening, says:

"The President has been visited by a large number of persons to-day, and judging by the reports, he seems to have expressed himself quite freely. He is stated to have said, among other things, that one result of the elections would be the defeat of the Convention party in all the Southern States where the whites have a registered majority; that New York will certainly go against the Republicans in November; that impeachment is as dead as Radicalism; and that the people have declared their confidence in him and his policy in a most unmistakable manner."

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

ASSETS $7,000,000.

THIS COMPANY ISSUES TEN YEAR NON-FORFEITING ENDOWMENT POLICIES, contracting to pay the amount insured at death or the specified time.

An endowment policy presents the double attraction of providing for one's family or other dependents in case he should be cut off before a specified age, or of securing to himself independence, in case he attains the age. Thus insuring for ten years, a note for one half of the cost will be taken by paying six per cent interest.

This plan gives, in addition to all the advantages of life insurance, a safe and convenient INVESTMENT for one's savings, till they have accumulated to a definite amount; which he receives in one sum at the specified time.
