THE DAVIS TRIAL.

BRITISH VIEW OF THE APPROACHING TRIAL IN RICHMOND—CAN IT BE FAIR?

[From the London Herald, Nov. 9.]

The trial of Jefferson Davis is to commence next week. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court has consented to lay aside the scruples which induced him to refuse to hold any judicial sittings in Virginia while Congress keeps that State under martial law, and to preside at the trial of the ex-President of the Confederacy. This must be a cause of rejoicing to all concerned, especially to the Government of the United States. Mr. Chase is a vehement and extreme partisan; but the arrangements of the Supreme Court do not seem to permit of such an interchange of districts as would be possible in England; and the alternative would be a trial before Judge Underwood, whose presidency would have rendered the trial a palpable mockery of justice. Mr. Chase's high official rank, his political and personal influence, and his legal education, render him at least as fit a representative of federal justice as any Republican judge could be. Of course a really fair trial is an utter impossibility. The issues likely to be raised are of a party character, on which every man in America has long ago made up his mind; and it would scarcely be possible to find, in the whole area of the Union, an unbiased judge or twelve perfectly impartial jurors. Nevertheless it is honorable to America that such a trial can take place without fear of a result that would exasperate one half the nation and disgrace the other. Nowhere but in England, and in the English-speaking country beyond the Atlantic, could a person of such rank be tried on such a charge with any show of justice or any prospect of other issue than a condemnation to death. No one entertains the slightest fear for the life of the Confederate leader. And this is one satisfactory consequence of the long delay that has taken place.

We have said that a really impartial trial is a simple impossibility, and this, not only because the acquittal or conviction of the prisoner turns upon a constitutional question, which was for years the subject of angry controversy, and at last came to be decided by the sword; but because political issues of great importance, upon which American parties are still divided, are involved in that question, and must be at least formally decided by the verdict. If Mr. Davis be convicted of treason, it must be on the ground that the act of secession was invalid, and that a citizen of Mississippi owed to the Federal government an allegiance paramount to that which could contessedly be claimed by his State. His acquittal would assert a contrary doctrine—would pronounce that the States were sovereign, at least so far as the citizen is concerned, and that secession was a valid act. Now these are points on which every American partizan—and what American is not a partizan?—entertains a strong and even angry conviction one way or the other, a conviction not likely to be affected by any legal argument. Nineteen twentieths of the white citizens of Virginia in their hearts believe Mr. Davis to be innocent. A negro jury or a Radical jury would certainly convict. But to put negroes on the jury on such a trial would be an outrage on justice and decency, and it would need the most barefaced packing to collect a jury of white Radicals. It is worthy of notice that another division of opinion and interest, arising from the collateral consequences of the opposite constitutional doctrines, prevails among the Radicals themselves. While most of them, regardless of mere legal consistency, assert at once the illegality of secession, and the right of Northern conquest, others—among whom, we believe, is Mr. Greeley—perceive that these two theories mutually exclude each other. If secession was invalid, then the Southern States were never out of the Union, and the acts of individual citizens, however numerous, could not involve the forfeiture of the rights of the States; and thus the condemnation of Mr. Davis on the charge of treason would involve the legal consequence that the Southern States are in full possession of all their domestic and Federal rights, and would carry with it the condemnation of the whole legislation of Congress subsequently to the war. If, on the other hand, secession was a legally accomplished fact, then the South is a conquered country, and must abide the pleasure of the conquerors; but then Mr. Davis is not a traitor but a prisoner of war. Technically, there can be no doubt that this dilemma is justly put; but technical legality has been contemptuously disregarded in the recent legislation of Congress. Still it is worth while to note that the logical interest of the Radicals lies not in the conviction, but in the acquittal of the Confederate President; and that more than one of their leaders has been bold enough to avow this fact.

We say, then, that the greatness of the political interests involved makes it practically impossible that the trial should be a fair one; that is, that the issue should be decided on its legal merits, as argued before the Court, and that Mr. Davis should be acquitted or convicted, simply as it appears that his conduct was or was not technically treasonable. But we do not therefore say that the verdict is a foregone conclusion, for we cannot tell what view the jury, or even the people, may finally take of the very complicated questions to be brought before them. However that may be, one thing is pretty certain, namely, that, in that Mr. Davis' conviction may not be followed by any sentence implying actual punishment. In the first place, it is clear that the moral responsibility of his acts is shared by the whole South, and ought not to be visited on any single man. Next, it is manifestly doubtful in the highest degree whether, according to the law, as it stood before the sword had modified it, his conduct was not strictly constitutional. Thirdly, what will really be tried is not Mr. Davis, but a political doctrine; and it is not just that a political verdict should bring punishment on an individual. And, finally, Mr. Davis is a man who has already suffered personal wrong and outrage; whose dignified conduct in adversity, abstinence from all political demonstrations, solicitation of sympathy or public display, has commanded, even more than his heroic struggle for his country's independence, the admiration of the civilized world; and the forfeiture of his property or his condemnation to further imprisonment, would appear as vengeance, and not as justice.

A ROMANCE AND A WEDDING—A BELGIAN BARON MARRIES AN TREASURY CLERK.—The Baron Henry Van Havre, who is connected with one of the most aristocratic and wealthy families of Belgium, came here a few years ago as Secretary of Legation. He is about thirty years of age, tall and commanding in appearance, and an ardent lover of poetry and music. About six months after his arrival he happened to pay a visit to the Treasury Department. Miss Camilla Webb was a clerk. She was born in the Southern part of Virginia, and came to Washington about five years ago. She was accompanied by her widowed mother, and though in comparitively poor circumstances, they were known to some of the most respectable society here. The Baron effected an introduction to Miss Webb. About a year ago he returned to Europe and travelled extensively over the Continent. After spending about five months there, he resolved on coming back to this Country, impelled by a desire to express his attachment to Miss Webb, having failed to find abroad any more attractive object. Three days ago the wealthy and aristocratic Baron, accompanied by his intended bride, Miss Webb, and attended by a party of intimate friends, proceeded to the Catholic church of St. Aloysius and had the nuptial ceremony performed. The Baron is a Catholic and his wife an Episcopalian. To-day, the Episcopal ceremony of marriage was completed in presence of a select and fashionable congregation. The bride, who is about twenty years of age, was dressed in pearl colored silk, and with her wealth of golden tresses, bright blonde complexion, and delicately-chiselled features, created no small degree of admiration. In the evening they left for New York, whence they sail for Belgium.—New York Herald.

Time Quick and Rates Low.

THIS NEW TRUNK LINE FORMS A GREAT FREIGHT ROUTE between Baltimore and Weldon, Warrenton, Raleigh, Hillsboro', Lexington, Salisbury, Morganton, Charlotte, Lincolnton, Goldsboro', Newbern, Beaufort, Wilmington, Chesterville, Winnsboro', Columbia, Sumterville, Manchester, and all intermediate points on and near these great Railways and their connections.

The Powhatan Steamers connect at Petersburg with Petersburg Railway for all points in the Carolinas. Cars are run alongside of Steamers' Wharf and goods transferred with careful handling. Cars are run through without breaking bulk between Petersburg and Raleigh, Charlotte, Goldsboro', Wilmington, &c., &c. This Inland Line possesses many advantages over a Sea Route. Marine risk is small and insurance is comparatively nothing. The Wharf of the Powhatan Steamers being situated in the very centre of the great shipping district of Baltimore, renders it convenient to shippers, and drayage is very small.

Great attention paid to consignments of Cotton, Corn, Wheat, Rosin, &c. &c. All produce forwarded at the lowest possible rates.

☞ To insure transportation over this Inland Fast Line, mark all goods, whether Northward or Southward bound, "VIA PETERSBURG."

☞ Freight landed in Baltimore day following delivery to the Steamers.

Through Receipts are given and fixed rate per 100 pounds guaranteed both ways.

☞ Rates in every case same as via Bay Line and Portsmouth to and from Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York.

SAUNDERS'

CATHARTIC AND ALTERATIVE PILLS.

RECOMMENDED BY THE BEST PHYSICIANS—Purely Vegetable, No Calomel in them. Never Gripe; being Coated with Gum Tolu are perfectly tasteless.

For regulating the Bowels, and for the cure of Bilious Fever, Bilious Headache, Constipation or Costiveness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Piles, Dyspepsia, Liver Diseases, Dizziness, loss of Appetite, Sick Headache, and all diseases where a reliable Cathartic medicine is required.

Dr. W. P. Mallett, who has no superior as a Physician in North Carolina, has examined the formula by which these pills are made and highly recommends them.

Col. W. J. Martin, the distinguished Patriot and Professor of Chemistry in the University of North Carolina, has analyzed them, and certifies that they contain no Mercury or any other mineral constituent whatever.

THE

AMERICAN BITTERS,

The Great Southern Tonic,

AND THE MOST PALATABLE STOMACHIC EVER USED.

FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, DISORDERED Digestion, Flatulency, Sluggish Circulation of the Blood, Bilious Complaints arising from a morbid condition of the Stomach and Bowels. An Elegant Tonic in debilitated states of the Digestive Organs, or of the system generally.—For the loss of appetite it is the most wholesome and effectual Tonic in the world. It strengthens nature and enables the system to triumph over disease. In weak fulness attended with tremors and general nervous derangement, it is peculiarly adapted, giving strength and tone to the nerves. Delicate Ladies and Children it is invaluable—and in fact wherever a pleasant and agreeable Tonic is wanted, this should be used.

Dr. Johnston D. Jones, one of the most scientific and well known Physicians in the Southern States, testifies to its great value, besides many others who have been greatly benefited by the use of these Bitters.
