DAILY SENTINEL

THE DAILY HERALD

REMOVAL OF SECRETARY STAR.

We suppose that the President will make no immediate attempt to eject Starkey by force; and that the ridiculous repudiation of Congress is a little premature.

When the proper time comes for a forcible election, Grant's dismemberment of orders will be but a slight obstacle. He is bound to obey the orders of the President. There is a duty from which Congress can no more release him, than it can dismiss the President of the other command of the army. The right of command implies the duty of obedience. If Congress tells General Grant to obey, it thereby attempts to strip the President of the command of the army, an attempt which can succeed only by the overthrow of the Constitution. General Grant refuses to obey orders, he is amenable to military discipline. It will be the duty of the President to cause his arrest for insubordination and mutiny, and organize a court-martial to try him. The President can at the same time order a general general to take possession of the headquarters of the army.

We do not suppose the President will quite yet exert his full authority in this form. He will probably first apply to the Supreme Court, who will summon Mr. Stanton to show by what authority he assumes to retain the office from which he has been removed. There is every reason to believe that the court will adjudge the tenure of Office unconstitutional.

STORY NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

(From the New York Herald.)

After giving an account of the recent incidents in Washington which are reported elsewhere, and propounding certain queries, the Herald thus concludes its leader of Saturday:

"But what means this promotion of the fighting General Thomas to the rank, by brevet, of General Grant. Under the circumstances it is inferred that the object is to call General Thomas (Sherman having declined) to the new Military Division of the Atlantic, with his headquarters at Washington. General Grant having lost the President's confidence, is Gen. Thomas, de facto, to take this place? If so, what for? Such questions as these are perplexing and suggestive of an impending conflict at Washington, which may revive some of the decisive events of the Long Parliament of England and of the first French republic and of the empire. The case at Washington, as it now stands, is simply this: If the Radicals fail to act properly and decisively they may fail; and from their failure Andrew Johnson may cast out all competitors and walk over the broken fragments of the republican party into the next Presidency."

REVEREY JOHNSON AND THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

(From the New York Herald.)

Dear Sirs, I have your favor of the 20th.

If the Constitutional amendment to which you refer has not been already ratified by the requisite number of States to make it a part of the Constitution, I think that any State which has assented to it must withdraw, that instant; and, although it is the opinion of some persons that it has received the sanction required by the Constitution, that is not my opinion.

Yours, with regard,

REVEREY JOHNSON.

Hon. C. H. Winfield, Senator, Chamber,

Trenton, New Jersey.

DISTURBANCES AT THE SOUTHERN CONVENTIONS.—Almost every piece of intelligence we receive from the Conventions being held in the Southern cities conveys some story of turbulence and brutal violence. The last affair of this kind occurred in Tallahassee, Florida, the day before yesterday. A disturbance took place in the Convention, a rare conflict of words; but it was settled after the adjournment by a physical force demonstration out of doors among the negro delegates, in which one man was shot and a good number were arrested by the police. This is the incident bad and bloody son of negro rule which is one day to bear terrible fruits in the present radical legislation to be so imminent. When power is placed in the hands of a turbulent element of society, what can we expect but violence and bloodshed? It must be remarked, however, that the conflict in most of these cases is not between the whites and blacks, but between the unfortunate negro themselves, deluded and educated as they are by the possession of power which they are wholly incompetent to use in any other way than in subordinating still their barbaric instincts.—New York Herald.

A DANGEROUS COMING.—It is manifest that the people greatly underestimate their danger—North, East, and West, to say nothing of the South. The form of government which will be developed until the reconstruction of all portions of the southern states, as soon as the quiet Grant, the buck will be thrown off, if it can possibly be said that there is any week at all now. That the present form of government will last another another six months of the Radicals, no man of intelligence at the metropolis, of either party, would have the effrontery to assert. The subversives daily essay to justify the methods of the revolutionaries, who no longer, in this respect, treat their opponents in debate with decency.—Washington Letter of Baltimore Gazette.

FORNEY PUBLISHED, in his Chronicle, two columns of letters purporting to be written from various places in Alabama, giving accounts of outrages upon loyalists in that State, and winds up with the following paragraph in brackets:

"The names of the towns from which these letters are written, (the originals being on file in the rooms of the committee,) are withheld for obvious reasons.—Ex. Com.

The "obvious reasons" being, of course, that the letters were manufactured in the Chronicle, offices of the Reconstruction Committee, and that there is no particular point in Alabama could lead to the detection of the manufacture.

RECONSTRUCTION.—The Radical senator held a session to-day to consider political affairs, and especially as to the disposition of the reconstruction bill. He and his colleagues agreed that Alabama should be admitted to the Union in which it is to be done, was not agreed on. The question is, the way for the admission of all those States. Washington Advertiser quotes Senator George
