prived of both these senses, he could tell a negro from a white man by the sense of smell. Am T not correct? If this be so, a wonderful difference, indeed, must crist between the two races. If needs not a Prichard, a Biumenbach, a Camper or a Cuyler to point out the black skin, the momentations must be made back the send the Cuvier to point out the black skin, the prograshous muzzle, the wooly bead, the brond flat nose, thick lips, broad, flat foot and long beel; small retreating chin, rece-ding foreboad, the narrow and compressed shape of the negro skull, check bones pro-jecting foreboad, the narrow and compressed beat; with a peculiar characteristic odor, There are, however, other important anat-omical and physiological differences, for a knowledge of which we are indebted to the mean of science. They have pointed out to us the deoply marries and elliptical alveolar edges, and The forward obliquity of the iront testh of the upper jaw, with the great strength and large size of the lower inw. The skin, as they have shown, is composed of five integu-ments, with the coloring pigment deposit, while the Caucasian's skin is composed of but three integuments and is devoid of the coloring pigment deposit. This is an im-portant structural difference, and is by the celebrated Mr. Flourins deemed sufficient widenee that the neuron is of different adopted by Dr. Morten-tink of measuring the internal capacity of the skulls. By this rule, he found the same deficiency in the Ethopic skull. So we find the weight of the white man's brain to be greater lihan that of the negro. This result is exactly the one to be expected, considering the capacity of the canins—an index of intellectual power. The convolu-tions of the brain are different. The same-rior and frontal lobes of the white man show a far better mental development than those of the African. From the foregoing facts, it seems that it ought be appearent to every man, whe will study them, that there is a clear and distinct difference between the recea, not only in general appearance but anatomically and physiologically—a difference in the construction and eronomy of both. This should, I think, he sufficient to show that it is not the mere color of the skin, alone, that parts the white from the black race. God created in white from the black race, and greated in different to a was and good purpose, and wa should not black rece. God created us different, for a wise and good purpose, and we should not disregard the distinctions made by Him.-It is not my purpose, air, to offer an argu-ment to prove that the negro has so aoul, as some writers are doing. This question of etheology has nothing to do with that— the soul, heing both invisible and intangi-ble, should not be made a subject of polit-iest diversions that the subject of polit-

The head and face of the African rade is bors sentially different from sail others, as to be actually prognathous in its anatomical con-struction—that is, more like the lower order of animals than any other species of the genus home. The lower animals, according to Cuvier, are distinguished from the Euro-pean and Mongol men by the mouth and the most favorable circumstances, ca-der the most favorable circumstances, ca-nable of self government. the emancipation in 1833; and now, alter a period of thirty years, the English govern-ment has been competited to take the right of suffrage from them, at seat for the pres-ent, and, perhaps, forever. The negro gov-ernment has been a plain and audeninkle failure. The productive industry is goue. The commerce amounts to nothing, com-pared with what it once boasted. disturbances and collisions of various kinds among the people, while the negrors them-selves, in their free state, i ave made no ma-terial progress, not even sufficient to stop the clamor over them in favor of their pre-tended friends and advocates, but, on the other hand, have furnished material more and more, every day, for these opposed to the theory of making them the white man's political and social equal. The negro, in the United States, has had sufficient opportunities, m many of the States, to have accomplished contrac-ter, had it been his lot and fortune to do so. The truth is, is then not advanced in the direction of eivilization and vistue, in any essential degree, although is has had abun-dant opportunities in some of the States equal to those of the white man. The free colored people of all the old thirteen States were permitted up vote and enjoy other rights, at the formation of our Constitution, with the exception, perhaps, of out one.
