IMPEACHMENT.

VOTE ON THE 11TH ARTICLE.

FULL REPORT OF PROCEEDINGS.

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

The excitement of last Tuesday was repeated to day at the Capitol, and was, if anything, more intense than upon that day. The hall of the House was crowded with applicants for tickets of admission to the High Court of Impeachment, while the passages leading to the Senate Chamber were thronged again. The rules that had been laid down by the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate for observance on Tuesday last were fully carried out to day. The force of Metropolitan Policemen which has been in attendance for the preservation of order seemed to have been drilled, and the officers of the law were stationed at all points about the corridors and in the galleries, with instructions to nip in the bud any demonstration of approval or disapproval at the action or vote of any Senator, or of the Senate as a body sitting as a High Court of Impeachment.

The House did not assemble until 12 o'clock, but before that hour nearly every member was in the Hall, and they gathered in knots at different points and somewhat excitedly discussed the probable result of to-day's operations. The Democrats generally expressed themselves confident of acquittal in the event of the vote being taken, while the Republicans as a general thing were doubtful, although some of the more sanguine still nursed a hope that Mr. Johnson would be found guilty on a sufficient number of the articles to justify his removal.

But all speculations were destined to come to an end, for at 12.10 a message was received from the Senate, and the House, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded in a body to the bar of the Senate.

After order had been restored and the members of the House had become seated the question was taken upon Mr. Senator Sumner's motion to vote upon the eleventh article first, and it was agreed to, all the Senators voting, one way or the other, except Mr. Grimes, who had not yet entered the Senate Chamber. Senator Howard was in his seat enveloped in a thick shawl.

A motion was then made to proceed at once to vote, as ordered by the Senate, when Senator Fessenden rose in his place and suggested a postponement of the vote for half an hour, by which time Senator Grimes would be present. At this moment, however, Senator Grimes, looking pale and feeble, came into the door to the right of the Chief Justice, and took a seat there.

The eleventh article was then read and the roll called, and the question was asked each Senator successively.

Senator Anthony being first on the roll, and being counted as doubtful, all eyes were turned upon him, and in a faltering voice he voted "guilty."

A buzz ran through the galleries, but having been admonished by the Chief Justice, and squads of policemen being stationed about the hall, no loud demonstration was made.

Then followed two votes for acquittal, Messrs. Bayard and Buckalew, but their votes excited no remark, as this was to be expected. Cameron, Cattell, and Chandler voted successively for conviction, and when Mr. Cole's name was called curiosity was again excited, because it had been reported that he was one of the doubtful ones upon some of the articles. With a steady voice, however, he voted "guilty." Conkling, Conness, Corbett, and Cragin voted, as it was expected they would, guilty. So on the other side, Davis, Dixon, and Doolittle voted successively for acquittal; the latter responding in a tone of voice, loud and clear. Drake was next called, and he tried to throw in his voice a tone of unconcern, when every one knew that he had long ago committed himself, and that he was concerned for the result. Edmunds and Ferry next voted successively for conviction. The Secretary then called Mr. Fessenden. The Senator rose and stretched his tall form to its full length, and stood erect. He placed his thumbs in his pants' pockets, and thus listened to the reading of the questions by the Chief Justice. Senator Sumner, who sits behind him, leaned over to catch a glimpse of Fessenden's face. The latter was perfectly composed and in the clear voice of an honest, conscientious man voted "not guilty."

The Clerk then called "Mr. Fowler!" The latter was from his seat to the left of the Chief Justice. He placed his hands upon his desk, and listened to the reading of the question. All eyes were directed toward him, for he was considered doubtful, and a tremendous pressure had been brought to bear upon him. The question having been read, he made a response which was not distinctly heard, and he was requested to repeat, when in a tremulous voice he answered "not guilty." The friends of the President breathed more freely, while Sumner, Chandler and Howard made a desperate but unsuccessful effort to conceal their disappointment. The vote now stood 12 for conviction and 7 for acquittal, and both parties became nervous. Senator Frelinghuysen is next on the roll to Fowler, and he voted guilty, although he has been claimed by both parties. Still, he was not positively counted on.

The name of Senator Grimes was next called. As stated above, that gentleman occupied a chair to the left of the Chief Justice, and the latter, alluding to his recent indisposition, suggested that he be permitted to vote in his seat while voting, and no objection was made, and the Iowa Senator voted for acquittal. Senator Harlan followed with a vote for conviction. Senator Henderson was next called, and he rose personally in his place under a battery of Radical eyes from the Radical side, while Conkling, Thayer, and Patterson, of New Hampshire, leaned forward with anxiety. The Missouri Senator had not spoken against the 11th article, and although his vote was claimed for acquittal, his Radical friends still hoped. He was true to his principles, however, and voted not guilty. Mr. Henderson's followed with a vote upon the same side. Senator Howard's name came next, and he placed his shawl upon his desk in front of him. The Chief Justice made the same suggestion in his case as in that of Mr. Grimes, but the Michigan Senator preferred to stand, although very weak, and he voted for conviction, and was followed by Senator Howe on the same side. Johnson and McCreery followed, voting not guilty, and Morgan, Morrill, of Maine, Morrill, of Vermont, and Norton voted successively for conviction, making the vote stand twenty for conviction and twelve for acquittal. Norton increased the latter to thirteen, and Nye and Patterson, of New Hampshire, increased the votes for conviction to 22. Mr. Patterson, of Tennessee, was next called, and some one in the reporter's gallery made the remark, "He's a pretty man to be called for a vote," to which a response was made, "The beauty of the thing will be apparent when Wade's name is called." Senator Patterson, of Tennessee, voted for acquittal. Pomeroy and Ramsey then voted for conviction.

The name of Mr. Ross was then called, and he rose promptly and voted for acquittal, much to the disappointment of his colleagues of the Senate and House. Spaulsbury followed on the same side, making the vote for acquittal 15. Sherman voted for conviction, and Sprague followed the lead of his colleague, Mr. Anthony, and voted in the same direction. Stewart, Sumner, Thayer, and Tipton followed on the same side and then Mr. Trumbull's name was called, and, rising in his seat, pronounced the words "not guilty" with more emphasis than any other Senator had given them. Next was called Mr. Van Winkle, and the excitement now became intense. Seventeen votes only had thus far been cast for acquittal. Mr. Vickers was, of course, certain, and the only dependence now of the President's friends was upon Van Winkle and Willey. The vast audience on the floor and in the galleries held their breath as the question was asked, and the West Virginia Senator voted "not guilty." This secured acquittal, for Vickers was certain, and he followed Van Winkle. Then the hum of voices was again hushed, for Senator Wade's name was now called. "Is he going to vote?" was whispered about the galleries, but all curiosity was soon put at rest, for he rose to the left of the Chief Justice and voted guilty—this (with the exception of the vote given upon the motion to take the vote first on the eleventh article) being the first vote he had cast since the trial commenced. Now was heard the name of another doubtful Senator, Willey, of West Virginia, and there was much curiosity to know how he would vote, although it did not matter much, because acquittal was already secured. Contrary to the best expectations, however, he voted for conviction. Williams, Wilson and Yates closed the roll call, and the President was acquitted on the eleventh article—the test article—two-thirds not having voted for conviction. The galleries breathed freer now, that the result was ascertained, and but for the presence of so many policemen a cheer to almost rend the roof of the Senate chamber would have been heard.

Pending the roll-call Members and Senators had provided themselves with yea and nay lists, and noted the varying votes. All the managers were present, occupying the seats they had occupied during the trial, while the President's counsel, including the Attorney General, were also present, occupying their old seats. They, too, noted the progress of the vote with much interest.

As soon as the result was known several motions to adjourn immediately and to adjourn for a number of days were made and severally disposed of, as was also a motion of Senator McCreery to adjourn the Court of Impeachment sine die. After a while a motion was made and prevailed, that the vote on the eleventh article just taken be officially announced. The names were read, and the Chief Justice announced the President acquitted on the eleventh article; and a motion was subsequently made and prevailed, that the High Court adjourn until the 26th. instant.

The members of the House immediately returned to their Hall with varying emotions, the Democrats being jubilant, while the Radicals were decidedly nervous and excited, and could do nothing but mutter about bribes and corruption.

The impeachment managers hid their diminished heads, but Stevens, Boutwell, and Logan in a short time walked into the Hall. Mr. Boutwell, however, soon left, and Mr. Logan cropped out a request for leave of absence, which was granted, and he immediately took his hat and departed. Mr. Stevens failed to put out, occupying, as usual, his seat at the Clerk's desk.

As soon as the House was called to order, Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, as Chairman of the Committee of the Whole, announced the result of the vote in the Senate, but the dose was a nauseous one, and a petted child, taking a dose of castor oil, could not have manifested more disgust than did the Illinois member, when he announced the President's acquittal. It is needless to say that the dose was equally nauseous to nearly every Radical member, and it would not have been a matter of surprise to see the Speaker faint as he directed the Clerk to spread the report at large upon the Journal.

Mr. Eldridge then offered a resolution to investigate the facts of the letter written to Mr. Henderson by the Missouri members, but the House again refused to entertain the motion.

The House then proceeded with its regular business.

At three o'clock Mr. Bingham offered a resolution directing the managers of impeachment to examine alleged corruption with regard to impeachment, and it is now being considered.

The Bankrupt Act.

We have been requested to publish the Bankrupt Law. This is impossible. It makes a pamphlet volume. In order, however, that our readers may understand it, and may therefore not be liable to be imposed upon by parties, who are influenced by the interests of others, we have taken some pains to compile from several sources the following general principles of the Act, for the benefit of all who contemplate seeking its benefits. But first of all, we advise our friends not to determine hastily what they will do, until they have had the counsel of a responsible and intelligent Attorney, upon whom they can rely.

1. The manifest design of the Bankrupt Law is to benefit honest, but unfortunate debtors, whose just liabilities are greater than they can pay.

2. To become a voluntary bankrupt under this Act, the debtor must owe at least $300, which, of course, he is not able to pay in full.

3. Petitioners under the Bankrupt Act are required to render a schedule of all their debts and liabilities, of every kind and description whatever, and also an inventory of all their estate, both real and personal, including all property and effects of which they are possessed, or in which they may have an interest, (though not in possession) in conformity with certain Forms prescribed by the "General Orders" of the Supreme Court of the United States. These schedules, verified by the oath of the debtor, are filed in the District Court Judge, Register in Bankruptcy, or U. S. Commissioner, and accompany the petition, and, when filed, is the commencement of proceedings in Bankruptcy. If it should be found out, pending the proceedings at any time before the bankrupt is discharged, that he has, by any shift or subterfuge, made a false or partial schedule, this would be evidence of fraud and would defeat his discharge.

4. When the petition is by a firm or copartnership, a full set of schedules of the respective estates of the members of the firm should also be added.

5. When the petition is filed, the case is immediately referred to a Register, who examines the petition and schedules annexed thereto, and if they are correct in form, makes a certificate to that effect to be filed with the Clerk, that adjudges the debtor a Bankrupt and issues a warrant to the messenger to summon all the creditors named in the petitioner's schedules to meet at the Register's office, at a certain time and place, to prove their claims and elect one or more Assignees to take charge of the Bankrupt's estate.

6. A creditor can, however, prove his claim at any time previous to the last dividend, which will generally be six months subsequent to the adjudication of Bankruptcy.

7. No creditor has any standing in a Bankrupt Court until he proves his claim.

8. Creditors have no right to compel the Bankrupt to answer questions concerning the disposal of property by him acquired subsequent to filing a petition in Bankruptcy. In other words, the date of declaring of the petition by or against the debtor is the date at which the question of Bankruptcy follows, the old order of things passes away and a new leaf is turned over. On this point decisions have been various. The safe rule appears to be, that the applicant in Bankruptcy has a perfect right to claim whatever he has made after his application, by his personal exertions, but any profits he may have made from investment or credit, may be liable to the claim of the receiver up to almost the period of his discharge.

9. The Bankrupt can apply to the Court at any time after the expiration of six months, and within one year from the adjudication, for the discharge in bankruptcy, and in case no assets come into the hands of the assignee, or no debts be proved against his estate, at any time after the expiration of sixty days.

10. As soon as an Assignee is elected or appointed, the Judge or Register will convey to him, by deed of assignment, all the bankrupt's property except what is exempted, viz: "Household and kitchen furniture and other necessaries not exceeding in value ($500) five hundred dollars; also his wearing apparel and that of his wife and children, and such other property not included in the foregoing as is exempt from levy and sale upon execution or other process by the laws of the State in which the bankrupt resides, to an amount not exceeding that allowed by State exemption laws in force in 1864. A safe 'Counselor suggests, under this head, that the common impression that persons may become bankrupts and yet be allowed to retain their houses and lands, or other property of considerable value, is a great mistake. Under the Act, no honest Bankrupt in this State can have allotted to him, free from the operation of the Act, exceeding $700, besides the wearing apparel of himself and family. Bankrupts in this State are not entitled to homesteads under this Act.

11. It is the duty of the assignee, within twenty days after the assignment to him is made, to allot to the bankrupt such articles as are exempted, and file an inventory of the same with the value of each article so allotted, and creditors may make objections to the report of the Assignee at any time within twenty days after it is filed.

12. As to costs in bankruptcy proceedings, section 46 of the Bankrupt Act provides that the petitioner, before a warrant issues, shall deposit fifty dollars with the Register, or with the Clerk, to be delivered to the Register as a security for his fees, (General order XXIII. provides that the fees of the Register, Marshal and Clerk shall be prepaid or secured before they can be compelled to act. It is also provided by General order XXX. that where the debtor has no means, and can prove the fact to the satisfaction of the Court, upon application, an order will be made requiring all the costs in the case to be paid out of the fifty dollars deposited with the Register. If, however, there are assets, but not enough to pay the Messenger after deducting the Bankrupt's exempted property, so that nothing comes into the hands of the Assignee, the fees will have to be paid by the Bankrupt; but if the Assignee receives assets, the fees of the Messenger will be paid by him before any dividend is made among creditors.

13. Some suppose that the Register is entitled to $50 fee. The fees of the Register, Messenger, Clerk, and costs of publication of notices in Bankruptcy, are fixed by law, and if they demand higher fees, they are liable, as in other cases of malfeasance in office. In ordinary cases of Bankruptcy, the fees may amount to $100. In some cases more, in some less—the costs depending on the amount of labor and litigation involved in each case.

14. Differences of opinion among Attorneys have existed in this State, as to the limit which the Act makes as to the time for make application in Bankruptcy. Some have supposed that no debtor will be permitted to apply for Bankruptcy after some early day in March, unless he is able to pay fifty per cent of his debts. We are assured that this is not the case. The Act did not go into operation for the purpose for which it was enacted until June 1st, 1867. It gives twelve months from that time, to all honest debtors, whatever may be the extent of their indebtedness which they cannot pay, in which to present their applications. After the 1st of June next, every debtor must be able to pay fifty per cent of his indebtedness in order to a successful application in bankruptcy, unless he first obtain the consent of a majority of his creditors.
