VOL. III. RALEIGH, N. C., WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1868. NO. 278.

The Daily Sentinel.

WM. E. PELL, Proprietor.

FORE WARNED, FOREARMED.

As the time approaches for the assembling of the Democratic National Convention, the interest manifested by the people grows more absorbing, from the fact that the future hope of the country and the perpetuity of constitutional government on this continent depend upon the success of the nominations to be made there. The Constitution adopted by our Revolutionary Fathers, which secured to us "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," has been ignored by the present Radical faction for the purpose of perpetuating their power. No constitutional guarantee, however sound, is allowed for one moment to stand in their way, in the full exercise of their ill-gotten power. They have destroyed States and created new ones in direct violation of the Constitution, and if their power to work evil continues much longer they will not hesitate to destroy the State governments. Their revolutionary aims will then have been accomplished. It is evident from the signs of the times that the Radicals are determined to carry the election, not by the votes of the people, but by falsifying the returns, which will be a pretence for the present Radical Congress to disregard the wishes of the people at the ballot box, and proclaim whom they please as President or military dictator. They boldly declare that the present Radical Congress will have the counting of the votes, which is virtually declaring that they will elect their candidates at all hazards. This is a subject which the New York Convention should take into consideration, and forewarn the people of the dangers by which they are surrounded, and that they may be forearmed in time to meet the emergency. If constitutional government must perish here, where it has flourished for nearly a century, where can it be maintained? This is a subject worthy the consideration of the American Democracy, who should swear upon the altar of God and their country to maintain the Constitution of their fathers or perish with it. The Convention should take bold and decisive action upon this vital question which animates the hopes of our people, and let this Radical faction understand that the ballot box shall remain pure, and the votes of the people be maintained at every hazard.—Wash. Express.

A RADICAL CONSPIRACY PLOT.—We have information of a plot in contemplation by the Radicals in Congress, which is calculated to startle every reflecting man in the country. It is the purpose and expectation of these Radical conspirators to control the Presidential election per fas aut nefas—They intend, we hear, to elect a President by the House of Representatives, regardless of the popular choice, throwing out votes at discretion where they find them adverse, especially from the South. In all these States they will fabricate votes from spurious electors, and the purpose is that the present House of Representatives shall have the practical control of the matter. In case of a legitimate expression of the popular choice, they do not count on victory; and by the aid of the House of Representatives and the regular army they think to control the matter. General Grant is to be elected by the House, and his sword is to usurp the office of President from the duly elected candidate of the people. Such is the prospect before us if these conspirators shall not be taught to quail before their designs are consummated.—National Intelligencer.

GENERAL HANCOCK AND THE MILITARY COMMISSION.—In justice to General Hancock, whose claims to the Presidential nomination the Record has not seen the propriety of recognizing, we would dispel an illusion in regard to him that is still, we believe, before the eyes of a good many haters of military tyranny. General Hancock was not a member of the commission that sentenced Mrs. Surratt to the gallows. At the time of the "conspiracy" trials General Hancock was in command of the "Middle Military Division," with headquarters at Washington. Orders were issued to him to make such military dispositions as he should consider necessary to maintain order on the day of the execution, which was conducted, we believe, under the supervision of General Hartranft, who had the custody of the prisoners. It was optional with General Hancock to resign his commission rather than carry out the orders he had received. Had he done so, however, the orders would have been carried out all the same by some other officer. General Hancock had no direct connection either with the trial or the execution of Mrs. Surratt.—He simply commanded the department in which the execution took place. We make this statement with no other object than to remove an error into which many persons have fallen.—Metropolitan Record.

The above we clip from the Metropolitan Record, knowing every word of it to be true. We can add that General H., in person, recommended the suspension of the execution of Mrs. Surratt, subsequent to Payne's confession, in which he fully exonerated that lady, and aided her daughter in the attempt to obtain an interview with President Johnson early on the day of the execution. No blame can be attached to General Hancock for this foul murder. His duty forced him to witness the doom of an innocent woman, whose fate he had earnestly striven to avert. Like a soldier, he obeyed; but military discipline was powerless to repress the tears that filled his eyes at the consummation of the atrocious decree of that infamous "Commission." Two of the parties who used their influence with Mr. Johnson to have Mrs. Surratt hung have, by their own hands, gone to meet their Maker; the others directly concerned in this case are ostracised by all decent people, and even B. F. Butler has had the courage to rise on the floor of the House and denounce the hanging of this woman as a cruel murder. The day of retribution is coming! How long, oh, how long, will it be delayed.—Rank. Evening Express.

That able, earnest and unflinching advocate of Conservative principles, the National Intelligencer, in a trenchant article upon the late misgivings of the New York World, closes as follows:

"We repeat that the American people are now terribly in earnest. We are destined to witness such an uprising, such an enthusiasm, such a determination of the people to restore the Constitution as has never been witnessed in this country. Let us prove ourselves worthy of and responsive to these great and generous emotions of the people. We dare not look them in the face with a lie, a sham, a platform which does not go at once to their hearts. We cannot deceive them if we would. We would not deceive them if we could. If this struggle is merely for spoils, we will have none of it. If the crime by which the white race of the South have been put by bayonets under the yoke of the negro be not, in issue, then nothing is in issue. If we see that our brother have need and do not help him in his extremity, how can we meet him, or face our own hearts and consciences? If we do not protest against these foul crimes; if we do not, in the most plain and direct language that we can use, declare that these statutes and acts of tyranny are unconstitutional, void, and to be extirpated, then we fail in our duty; we have nothing in common with the great yearnings of the popular heart; we will not deserve victory, and therefore we will not achieve it. But we have full faith and trust in the delegates who are to meet at New York. We shall look to them with great confidence for action that shall mean something more than shams and generalities. Coming fresh from the people, animated by the generous and burning indignation of those who sent them, we do know that they will give forth no uncertain voice. We believe that what they will do and say will be as the peal of a trumpet. The air is full of popular electricity. Everywhere men are burning to wipe out and utterly crush this dastardly, this inexpressibly base, cruel, corrupt dominion of Radicalism. Let our delegates strike, with a will, a good, honest, manly blow for freedom. Never fear the people. They are all right—right in the East, right in the great Central States, right in the giant West, right in the oppressed and suffering South—nowhere more right than among the sons of toil in the great city of New York. Let the word be spoken truly, bravely, and the very first response will make quake with fear the heart of every Radical tyrant in the land. Whether it bring shame to the cheek, or a sickening, deceitful smile to the lips of those who would tamper with the convictions of a great nation, is a small matter. Let it pass."
