JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF WAR.

The strength of the army on the 30th. of September was 48,081, which by the 1st. of January next, will be reduced by the expiration of term of service alone, to about 43,000. All volunteer officers except one have been mustered out of service.

It may be reasonably expected that a considerable reduction of the infantry of the army may be made within the next year without detriment to the interests of the country. I recommend that such reduction be authorized by law to be made gradually by ordinary casualties, by discharge of incompetent and unworthy officers, and by consolidation of regiments. I also recommend that the four regiments constituting the Veteran Reserve Corps be disbanded, officers unfit for active service to be retired, and all others to be transferred to active regiments.

The report of the Quartermaster General shows the total expenditures of that department, during the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1868, including claims for stores taken for the use of the army during the war, to be $36,506,381 53. Claims for property taken during the war have been allowed to the amount of $500,313 98; rejected, $2,654,430 38; and are still pending to the amount of $6,903,691 18.

In the national cemeteries 316,233 remains of soldiers have been collected, of which 175,764 are indentified. The total cost has been about $2,700,000.

In the Medical Department the actual expenditures during the fiscal year were $842,134 20, and the balance on hand was $1,473,792 20, on the 30th. of June last.

The disbursements for reconstruction purposes have been $2,261,415 02. There remains an available balance of $467,626 46 which, it is believed, will cover all future expenses.

During the year, claims for additional bounty were allowed to the number of 241,992, involving an expenditure of $23,649,157 78. Claims were rejected to the number of 12,407, and 109,104 were still unsettled at the close of the fiscal year.—Since the date of the act 435,199 claims have been received, 387,091 paid, 32,403 rejected, and 15,705 were yet unsettled at the date of the Paymaster General's report. The total disbursements on these claims have been $37,764,774 16, to which must be added the claims settled by the accounting officers of the treasury, bringing the aggregate up to more than $54,000,000.

Large reductions of the officers and agents of the Freedmen's Bureau have been made during the year, and arrangements are in progress to close it up by the 1st of January next, except the educational and claims divisions. The abandoned lands yet in possession of the bureau are mostly worthless for cultivation, and will be restored at once or dropped from the returns.

The actual current expenses of the War Department for the last fiscal year were $65,748,094 71, to which is to be added the sum of $9,961,406 43, old war debts paid during the year, making the total expenditures of the department $78,704,501 14. The appropriations for the present fiscal year were $35,400,557 47; the estimated deficiencies for the current year are $13 975,000. It is estimated that the sum of $65,682,388 85 will be required for the expenses of this department for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1870. There will be a surplus of $60 240,221 81 from unexpended appropriations to be paid into the treasury at the close of the present fiscal year.

THE COMING PEACE.

Troops," says Grant, hearing the pack. "The troops on the plains are all needed: troops are still needed in the Southern States." "Troops," says Sherman. The Indians must be reservationed and this "desired result can only be obtained by coercion." "Troops," says Brevet Major-General Davis, from Alaska, and dwells on the needlessness of a civil government for the Territory at present.' 'Troops,' says Brevet Major-General Ord. from Arizona; 'an increase of the force, with a view to more energetic operations against the Apaches—the worst of all Indians is recommended by the division commander, 'who speaks highly of the agricultural capacity of the Territory." Ah! he does, does he? Then let him grow his crop of armed men on that fruitful soil. "Troops," says Thomas, from Department of the Cumberland; "no improvement in the state of public and social affairs." and "the necessity for the presence of troops is as "great as heretofore."—"Troops," says Stoneman from Virginia; but then, for a wonder, he wants no more, finding "two regiments of infantry and one company of artillery" quite sufficient for the birth-place and tomb of Washington.—"Troops," cries Meade, from the consolidated Second and Third Military Districts; "more power." I want my military finger in the civil pie. "Troops," says Reynolds, from Texas, who found it necessary for reconstruction purposes "to withdraw troops from the frontier posts to such an extent as to impair their efficiency for protection against the Indians"! Of course, perish the settlers, so that reconstruction live.

"Troops, troops, troops," almost every man-jack among them is crying, from Lee's have-peace down, all save Brevet Major-General Alvan C. Gillem, who writes: "The civil courts have continued to dispense justice, under the supervision of the military authorities, and there has been no necessity for the use of the troops stationed in the State!" This State is Mississippi; Mississippi is not reconstructed, neither reconstructing, and, therefore, has no use for troops.

This is the bright exception. Everywhere else there comes up a roar for soldiery.—Grant heads it and Secretary Schofield claps his hemi-demi-semi quaver to its tail. There is "unusual disposition to lawlessness and crime and comparative inefficiency of civil government in those States" says he—those reconstructed States—and "the only laws of Congress providing for the employment of the military force of the United States in support of the government of any State were passed in the infancy of the republic"—for a wonder, he didn't get it nation—"with a jealous care to avoid undue interference by the national government in State affairs, and not designed for such a condition of society as now exists in the Southern States." All of which means "troops," and so the song, which began with 'troops, troops, troops,' winds up with 'troops, troops, troops.'

And this is let us have peace.—N. Y. Herald.

COMMODORE MEADE.—The Commodore was brought before Judge Sutherland on Tuesday. When the old Salt came into court, he was surrounded by counsel and friends on both sides, with the intent of confusing and embarrassing him. But much to the annoyance of these good people, the Judge invited the Commodore to take a seat on the bench by his side. When he stepped upon the platform in compliance with Judge Sutherland's request, he said: "Yes, I will come before the Court, and I come very much as Paul came before Agrippa. I think myself happy because I shall answer for myself this day before thee, touching all the matters whereof I am accused."

The Judge conversed with him for some time, to be able to form his own opinion.—Witnesses were then examined, and at the close, the Judge discharged the Commodore, who departed amidst the congratulations of the crowd.

A man had better take care how he indulges in outbursts of passion, or violent phrases, or peculiarities of any sort, if he happen to have kindred or friends, who may profit by his seclusion in a Bloomingdale asylum The peculiarities of the Commodore do not appear to be of very recent date Being of the old school and very punctilious, he carried discipline at all times to the verge of severity. It is stated that some eight or ten years ago, while in charge of a receiving ship, in New York harbor, he gave orders that no boat should approach his vessel, except the one that belonged to it. His wife, very naturally supposing that such orders were not intended to include her, employed a contraband boat to take her on a visit to her husband in his floating home. As soon as she ascended the vessel, he ordered her to be put in irons—for his orders were to be obeyed by all—irrespective of persons.—Richmond Whig.
