PUBLIC CORRUPTION.

"In plain sooth, the age of sensuality, of unchecked corruption, of dense, class ignorance, is coming down on us like night. A free press alone, have given more notes of warning than it has; but the press dislikes, in a free country, to print unpalatable truth, even when it discerns such truth, and the journals that profess "fearless devotion to principle" are notoriously the ones whose articles betray the most laborious solicitude to catch the applause and flatter prejudice of the greatest number. Meanwhile, at what are called our "great centres;" coarse brutes, who ought to be digging railways or drawing hand-carts, lay down the law for the whole community, and by dint of vast wealth, amassed under circumstances impossible in any other civilized country, degrade the social tone, and spread in every direction an unbridled rage for the pleasures of the senses. Intellectual elevation or ambition is scoffed at, and those who strive to inculcate a taste for better things are either hated or despised. Nothing is thought of but the delights of the table, of fine clothes, of showy dwellings and equipages—in a word, of physical raptures of every description. If there is a pretense at anything else—whether in the pulpit, in the theatre, or in literature—the pill must be gilded so as to appear "sensational."—All this is so widely admitted, so shamefully notorious, that its recital is trite enough; we repeat it merely in elucidation of the subject under discussion. It is impossible when people think all things of their bodies and nothing of their minds, that either a Democratic or any other pure form of government can long be maintained. Unless a great change comes over American people, it will not be maintained by themselves. They are rushing toward the precipice at railway speed, and the universal corruption that good men deplore is the prelude of a decomposition which is as certain as fate."—Round Table.

FORNEY.

Forney was serenaded on Thursday last by the republican negroes at Lynchburg, Virginia, where he and his party halted on their pilgrimage southward. He told the negroes that he was going South as "a messenger of peace, good will and fraternity," at which the sable crowd shouted "good," "good," "good." It was very good! What an angel of peace is Forney! While Forney is crating to the negroes of the South, the white people of that unhappy land will not forget that it was this same individual who daily repeated in the Press last summer, the savage and vindictive proposition to revive, for campaign purposes, all the hatred engendered in the war. When Forney asserts that he is on an errand of good will, the people of the South will not trust him. If he swears it, they may be sure he means mischief. Not one of the atrocious measures proposed in Congress for the subjugation of the South was there that did not find as eager and officious advocate in this man Forney.—Every fraudful scheme to stifle the voice of the people, to wrest from them their State constitutions, and put them under the heel of the soldiery, found a ready apologist in this missionary of new born love for the South. He urged on Congress the atrocious proposition to arm the negroes of the South, and set them at the throats of their white neighbors—a proposition from which every radical who had a heart in him, shrank in horror. In his malignity, he invented tales of terror, he coined wild and incredible stories of the white man's barbarity to the negro of the South, in order to make party capital. Yet he goes among the Southern people now with honeyed words on his false lips, and brass of his feelings of fraternity! With the same cruel complacency did Marat boast of his love of his fellows while urging his party to the commission of every atrocity, in his newspaper so appropriately named the "Friend of the People."—Harrisburg (Pennsylvania) Patriot.

COFFEE AS A CIVILIZER.

Dr. Draper makes out a very strong case in favor of "coffee as a civilizing agent."—He says: Those who have made it a subject of study and examination tell us that when prepared as a strong infusion without milk, coffee acts powerfully on the sympathetic nervous system and the organs supplied by it, quickening their action and increasing their vitality. That it renders the contraction of the heart and other muscles more powerful; enables the body to resist cold, moisture, and the deadly poison of miasmatic districts; counteracts the languor of torrid climes; prevents or ameliorates attacks of spasmodic asthma; alleviates laxity of the kidneys and bladder; and it is even said that oculus is not as common since it has been generally used. It also acts with energy on the brain, removing the sensation to fatigue and disposition to sleep, which has always made it a favorite with students. It obviates the excessive indulgence in the use of wine and spirits; is an antidote to opium, belladonna, and the vegetable poisons that act on the brain; and relieves the nervous headache to which many are subject. In brief, it is not merely a fashionable potation—it is one of the great civilizing agents; for, by increasing the power of accomplishing brain and muscle work, it has increased the power and influence of man.

"THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW."—Periodically the well-known and greatly admired poem, "The Beautiful Snow," goes the rounds of the newspapers accompanied generally by a brief history of the author. By a majority of papers the authorship is credited to "Dora Shaw," a St. Louis actress. By others it is insisted that a girl who died in a hospital at Cincinnati wrote it, and that it is the faithful story of her sad experience. The "Rev. P. Mason" has written a letter to the New York Tribune, asserting that the poem was written by Mr. W. A. Sigourney, and published in a weekly paper in New York called the Golden Age fifteen years ago. To attribute this poem to Dora Shaw or Mr. Sigourney either is simply ridiculous; neither one of them wrote it.—Now and then a poem of rare beauty appears anonymously, and is immediately claimed by some obscure writer of mediocre verse. It was not long since that that strong minded female, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, laid violent hands on one of Owen Meredith's poems ("Whom First we Love we Seldom Wed,") and had it going the rounds as her own. Out upon these poetical hyenas.—Louisville Courier-Journal.
