DISTEMPER IN CATTLE—PREVENTATIVE.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Having seen it stated the past year that the distemper prevailed amongst the cattle around Richmond, as also in some other places, I feel disposed to republish the substance of a communication of mine in the Southern Planter for 1854, which, as a preventative, I have never yet known to fail.

About the first week in May procure a trough to correspond in size to the number of cattle; place it where they are penned, and bore a hole through the bottom to let off the surplus water after a rain. Fill it nearly full of red clay, then put on a liberal quantity of salt, and when the cattle are penned at night, they will invariably go to the trough and lick to their satisfaction.—The first rain that falls the salt will saturate the clay, and the cattle will consume the whole of it. This remedy must be continued until the first hard frost.

My father was the first that I know of who adopted this treatment, he having heard that cattle afflicted with distemper had been known to resort to red clay and get well. He, I suppose, recollecting that nature often performed a cure beyond the powers of art, salted his cattle some two or three times a week on a red galled spot, and although his neighbors cattle were dying rapidly around him, and that for several years, yet he never had a solitary case amongst his stock. For some two or three years he kept them in his enclosures, but after this, in consequence of an imperfect fence, his cattle would go on an adjoining common, and roam with his neighbors' distempered cattle from week to week, yet they entirely escaped this infectious disease. These facts speak for themselves, and go to prove that my father's remedy is a specific to stay this fatal malady.

An uncle of mine told me years ago, that the distemper being amongst his cattle, one of his milch cows was taken with the disease, went off, and when found, was in a gully eating red clay, and got well.

One of my sons at one time lost all his cattle except a milch cow, and when taken with the disease she went off, was gone several days and when found, was in a gully eating red clay, and she got well.

Here we have the instincts of nature beautifully exemplified, and we may add, the dog, when sick, seeks relief from herbs, and the guayakil, when bitten by a serpent, finds an antidote in a certain plant.

In the Southern Planter for '45, *lime water is recommended as a sovereign cure for distemper even in the last stages of this disease, and by the way, this is said to be the best known remedy for distemper in horses.

The late Dr. Wm. S. Morton, in a communication to the Southern Planter in '54, on distemper in cattle, said: "I strongly suspect that what we call distemper, is the bloody murrain of Scotland and other parts of Great Britain, and that it was carried to North Carolina by Scotish emigrants.—The above suggestion I have reason to believe is correct, as I once lived in North Carolina, and from authentic information, I learned that the first cases of distemper occurred in that State near Fayetteville, which was settled principally by the Scotch. Hence the new name—"Carolina distemper."

W. R. HATCHETT.

KEYSVILLE, Va., April, 1869.

*Half bushel of water to a peck of lime; let it stand until the water is clear, then pour off the water, and drench with a quart twice a day, until the animal recovers.—Three or four doses are generally sufficient.

THIN SEEDING.

As our readers are aware, English farmers have of late years experimented considerably in the matter of thin seeding, especially with the wheat crop. Mr. Mechi has long been the strenuous advocate of the practice.

A member of the Olmskirk and Smithport Agricultural Society, recently reported an experiment of this kind in which he sowed but a peck to the acre. It was dibbled in drills, with a machine adapted to the purpose, in one and a half hours. Manure was sown upon the wheat soon after it came up, and it received four days work weeding. His return was 481 bushels of 66 pounds, besides about 2 bushels of light wheat, suitable for feeding. The experimenter remarks as follows concerning the practice:

I have heard it objected to this sowing that from the want of shelter of thickness, the crop would be late, and which, in ordinary seasons, would be an important consideration; but mine was of the first ripe in this district. I am so thoroughly satisfied with the result of this experiment, that I have this season sown one field which not in very good condition, with a half bushel per acre. I believe that the system requires only to be tried to be generally adopted. It is a subject of national importance, as the amount of grain now wasted in overstowing is enormous, as the following calculation will show:

"By the Board of Trade returns just published, the acreage under wheat in Great Britain this year was 3,648,360 acres, the average sowing on which would be at least 2½ bushels (allowing half a bushel, or double mine,) would give two bushels per an acre saved, or 7,295,320, at 9s per bushel—£23,281,434 sterling.

Governor Hayes will not have a clear field at the next Ohio Republican Convention. The friends of General J. A. Garfield are anxious to have him contest the nomination with Hayes, and a Republican journal, the Painesville Telegraph, also talks about Robert C. Schenck and Samuel Galloway.

The California State election in October will be held to fill two vacancies on the bench of the Supreme Court, the terms of the present incumbents expiring. District and county judicial officials in that State also will also be chosen. The Senators elected this year will participate in the choice of the United States Senator who will succeed Mr. Cole in 1873.

The terms of eleven State Senators expire this year in Pennsylvania, and their successors will be chosen in October. Seven are Radicals and four Democrats.

Immigrant wagons filled with men, women, and children, of all ages and sizes, are pouring into Minnesota from the East, North, and South.

But two of the fifty-eight Companies permitted to do business in New York and Massachusetts had so large an income for the year 1868; but two had so large a number of Policies in force, but one among all those incorporated under the laws of the State of New York had so small a per centage of Expense to Income during the year 1868.

Its expenses are lower than most Companies', and consequently its ability to make and pay liberal dividends to the Insured is greater than that of most other Companies, it is one of the great Companies of the land in Income, in Assets, in Number of Policies, in Amount Insured, in Solidity and Strength, in Soundness, Cheapness, Promptness, and Success.
