

The Daily Sentinel.

JOSIAH TURNER, JR., EDITOR.

DISHONORED FAITH.

The Baltimore Sun gives us the following piece of information, which is suggestive:

The appointment of Thomas L. Tallich as Superintendent Clerk of the Treasury is proving a severe blow to all the clerks who failed to subscribe to the campaign fund of the Republican party. It seems that before he became Department Clerk he was secretary of the Congressional Republican Committee; and in that capacity had appealed to the clerks to give according to their means for the support of the Radical ticket. Many of the clerks refused, and Tallich kept a record of all such cases for future action. Now, it is said, he is continuing to have all those clerks removed, though many of them are sound Republicans, and only had the rashness to refuse to contribute what they could not afford. Not only has Tallich done this, but he has stretched his blighting arm over all the members of the Johnson Department Club and all the Conservative Democratic organizations who hold positions in the Treasury. The sweeping out has been pretty thorough and complete already. It is further said that in a short time hence a circular will be sent to all the clerks asking for a confession of their political errors prior to future removal.

Gen. Grant, before his inauguration and after it, proclaimed upon many occasions that no official would be removed or suspended by his political opponents. He declared that honesty and capability should be made the sole fitness for public place. He sticks to his political friends as freely as to his political opponents. He took peculiar pride in saying, "I do it offhand and more emphatically than any predecessor of his ever did." And, among other reasons for the policy he thus announced, he declared that he himself was not a partisan politician, and that he was not inclined to partisan politicians for his election. Yet the partisan exhibition that he makes of himself is more disgusting than any ever made by any other President. He not only promulgates orders through his cabinet not one of which shall be employed even as day-laborers in any department of the Government, but, as appears from the paragraph quoted above, he orders or permits the turning out of all clerks who did not contribute money from their poor salaries for the promotion of his election. The clerks, it is well known, have the hardest kind of a struggle for several days to entitle themselves as to their families upon the painfully small stipends they have received, and yet, by the authority or under the auspices of the great law of partisan procription, they are swept remorselessly from their places if they hesitated to aggravate the cruel hardships of their wives and children by contributing "black mail" on account of the Presidential election. The English language is a strong language, but hardly strong to do justice to such a case as this.—Louisville Courier Journal.

THE CHURCH HOME FOR ORPHANS IN MOBILE.

The undersigned, as Doctor, and in behalf of the "Church Home," presents the following statement of its history and present condition. He deems it due to the many friends who have responded so freely to his calls for aid to state for their satisfaction the result of their labors:

Less than three years ago, (in the summer of 1866,) the "Church Home" which had been established in Tuscaloosa, in the winter of 1865, was removed to its present locality on Warren Street, Mobile. Through the kindly influence of the Rev. Dr. Pusey, to whose efforts instrumental we are mainly indebted for the present existence of the institution in our midst, a sum total upon a desirable lot was offered for our accommodation—the amount, as at first occupied, was a small frame building with two rooms.

During the autumn of 1866, the present main building, in an unfinished state, was prepared for occupancy, and costed something over $2,000. In the Spring of 1867, a Banquet was held under the Presidency of Mrs. Wm. F. Hammon. The net sum of $3,000, not two months later, yet the sum of $4,000 was realized. This amount was expended in the erection of the present large school house, and in making other needed improvements upon the premises.

In the Spring of 1868, another Banquet was held under the Presidency of Mrs. Dr. Ketchum, and the net sum of $4,500 was realized. That amount, deducting a portion held in reserve for the purchase of lots for the ensuing Banquet, was expended in the erection of an infirmary, kitchen, Laundry, etc., in completing the inside works of the main building, and in the erection of a brick well enclosure upon the front.

The cost of the present improvements may be stated in round numbers at $10,000—the property is insured (participating policy) for $8,000.

The Institution is now, and has always been, entirely free from debt and incumbrance.

It is, in some part, sustained by the labor of the Boarders; and the aim is to make it, in time, self-supporting. All the work of the house is done by its inmates.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Orphan Children. No death has occurred among them. It would be difficult to find any similar institution in which the children show the traits of tireless energy and virtue.

There are now, under the nursing of the Home, twenty-six Or