THE SENTINEL.

JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

TUESDAY, JULY 13, 1869.

Conservative and Democratic Nominee.

FOR SENATOR,

FOR THE NINETEENTH DISTRICT,

JOSHUA PERRY,

OF FRANKLIN.

OUR CANDIDATE.

We announce to day, the name of Joshua Perry, Esq., as candidate for the vacant Senatorship in this District. Mr. Perry is a man well known, of sterling integrity and moderation, and Conservative in his views on political subjects. He has an interest in the welfare of the State, and has never shown two faces on questions before the people, nor sang political roundelays in different keys to suit his hearers. We are proud of having such a candidate to vote for, and we feel confident that if the friends of good order and the enactment of wise laws, throughout the District, will but do their duty, we can elect him by a handsome majority. Now let all hands go to work, bring out all the votes, and the result cannot be otherwise than satisfactory.

TAKE UP YOUR CARPET BAGS AND MARCH.

There seems to be a general rejoicing in Virginia over the late election in that State. Virginia was always foremost in great movements. She is now foremost in the work of ridding the South of the misgovernment, corruption and oppression of carpet baggers.

Every carpet bagger will receive the election as an order issued by the people "take up your carpet bags and march."

The people of the South have been too patient under carpet bag rule. Strangers and foreigners will conclude that our meek and quiet submission was but a want of true courage. In this they are greatly mistaken. No people ever came out of an unsuccessful revolution without signs of depression and loss of spirit. That our people have been crestfallen and dispirited, no one can deny. They have had enough to humble and dispirit them.

When England attempted to govern Ireland by carpet-bag influence, such as a Congressional faction has put upon the South, all Ireland was aroused. At first there was no resort to arms; every peaceable remedy was exhausted. In every town, county and city, meetings of the people were held. In the city of Dublin the High Sheriff was called to preside over the meeting; a resolution was adopted which was felt throughout all England. If we could have adopted and enforced the same resolution, our political and constitutional right would have long since been restored.

The people of Dublin and all Ireland declared that, "we will not from the day hereof, until the grievances of our country shall be removed, directly or indirectly, import or consume any of the manufactures of Great Britain, nor will we deal with any merchant, or shopkeeper, who shall import such manufactures."

When a Radical faction in Congress excluded eight millions of people from their birth right by denying them their political privileges and constitutional rights, there was nothing wanting on the part of the excluded, but a declaration such as the Irish made against the English. The North, in palpable violation of the Constitution, denied us all political privileges and constitutional rights. We should have denied them all commercial and social relations. Such a policy would have given employment to all the idle, both men and women. When money was made it would be invested in the improvement of the soil. Now every dollar made in the South is by our merchants, hurried to the North.

This city is the rendezvous for straggling carpet baggers. Gen. Laflin, we learn, has not been to Pitt county since his election, more than a year ago. How could he live there? He is like Dr. Grissom, he will not eat with negroes, and the white people of Pitt will not allow him to eat with them. Laflin can say, with truth, in the language of another, "when I go home not five decent white men will shake hands with me." No wonder Laflin can't stay at home. No wonder he has not been home. Governor Holden, we hear, is trying to make a scapegoat of carpet baggers for his late political errors and sins. When the carpet baggers are ordered to march, the Governor must go with them. They have shared in the triumphs it is proper that he should partake of their troubles and sorrow.

DANGEROUS ARMED MILITARY GOVERNOR OF NORFOLK AT THE YARBOROUGH HOUSE.—If the Confederate soldiers of Col. Cantwell's old Regiment desire to call on their old Colonel, they will find him at the Yarborough House. He is no longer Governor, or Colonel, but Judge Cantwell; striving with Governor Holden, and the Quartermaster, Judge Bodman, to make treason policies. The two may quit their work as soon as they make treason as odious as they are. In saying this much we mean no "contempt of Court."

The Conservative and Democratic Convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate to fill the vacancy at present existing in the 19th Senatorial District, composed of the counties of Wake and Franklin, was held yesterday, according to previous notice, at Franklinton.

At 11 o'clock the Convention assembled at the town academy and was called to order by Mr. Jones Fuller, being elected Chairman; Geo. S. Barker of Franklin and J. C. Syme of Wake, were appointed Secretaries. After the transaction of some unimportant business, Capt. J. J. Davis introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That we place before the people of the 19th Senatorial District, Joshua Perry of the county of Franklin, as a candidate upon the platform of the Constitution, universal suffrage and amnesty, an honesty and economical expenditure of the public money, a reduction of the Taxes by which our people are oppressed, and in opposition to the extravagance and peculations of the present administration.

Mr. Davis, in advocacy of the resolution, made a well-timed and able speech, in which the vileness of the present administration was shown up in its true colors, and the true path for all to pursue who have the State's interest really at heart, &c.

The Resolution was then put to a vote and unanimously adopted, when

Mr. Perry arose and in brief but pointed remarks accepted the nomination, endorsing the principles embodied in the resolution, viz: universal suffrage, universal amnesty, reduction of taxes and a more economical administration of the State Government.

Capt. J. Q. DeCarteret, of Wake, being called upon next, addressed the Convention in a spirited and forcible speech, replete with sound arguments and logical conclusions, and gave the present mismanagement of the State affairs many keen thrusts and hard blows.

After some further business the Convention adjourned.

The Convention was well and largely attended, and its proceedings were of the most pleasant and harmonious character, forming quite a contrast to the drunken, disgraceful and turbulent Radical pow-wow which recently brought out a candidate at Louisburg.

WE RECOMMEND the following to the very careful perusal of those of our citizens who paid such loyal reverence and devotion to the late Federal Decoration day.

Taken in connection with the scenes enacted at Arlington, it speaks volumes for the intense christianity and saintly qualities, claimed by the Radical party:—

GEN. F. P. BLAIR, JR., ON THE SOUTHERN SOLDIERS OF THE LATE WAR.—The remarks of Gen. F. P. Blair, at the banquet meeting of the Society of the Army and Navy of the Gulf reunion meeting, held at Long Branch last week, for which he was called to order amidst hisses and other demonstrations, were made after a short speech by Gen. Sheridan, lauda*t*ory of the volunteers of the Union army. Gen. Blair had been called out for a speech, and what follows is thus reported by the New York papers:

Major General Blair said he would say a word for a people who had not yet had a voice raised in their behalf. "I will speak of the people who were once our enemies, and I know that when I speak of them before soldiers I speak before those who will heartily respond. Those against whom we contended, whom we aspersed as rebels, and whom we triumphed over as well. They were a great and generous people; they were worthy of the steel of our best. We have heard here of Farragut and Sheridan, but we shall yet hear of Lee and Stonewall Jackson. [Hisses and cries, and great confusion.] Who is it dissents?—[Numbers of voices, 'We dissent,' 'I dissent,' 'Think of Andersonville and Libby Prison.'] It would be little merit for us to have triumphed over a weak enemy. [The speaker was again interrupted by a storm of hisses.] I speak of them as our late adversaries. [Cries of 'Traitors.'] Are there no voices to be raised for them?—[Cries of 'Yes' and 'No,' great confusion and cries of 'Traitor.']

Admiral Farragut here decided that to introduce anything which interrupted the harmony was out of order.

THE editor of the North Carolinian, published at Elizabeth city, says: "We return our thanks to the people of this city and county for their courtesy and kindness to us a stranger. This has been without distinction of party. It is gratifying to us and lends materially to lighten the labors devolving upon us in our enterprise."

Now, is it not a wonder that he has not been killed and eaten before now? seeing "as how" he is a Northerner and a Radical, come right down here, South, among what a great many Northern newspapers publish, and a great many Northern readers seem to believe, a set of little less than cannibals! He has received courtesy from persons "without distinction of party!" Will not that astonish his Northern friends! The fact is, he has come down here to engage in a laudable, respectable business, and not for the purpose of stealing everything he can lay his hands on, and such being, apparently, the case, it is probable he will continue to receive "courtesy and kindness," and that, too, "without distinction of party."

For the Sentinel.

SALISBURY, July 11, 1869.

Mr. Editor:—The late Railroad meeting held in our town developed some matters which are not likely to be generally known. Carpet bag and Ring influence prevailed in everything. Laflin, a carpet bagger represented the State. In the election of Stockholders, the Raleigh and Gaston Road exercised controlling influence. Dr. Hawkins, though not present, was well represented. It is well known that for years, Messrs. D. A. Davis, Thomas Webb and John L. Morehead have, by their united efforts, succeeded in electing the Directors on the part of the Stockholders. They could have done so this time, but our townsman, Mr. Davis, flew the track and cast his vote against his old friends and with Major Smith, the President of the Road.

It was no sudden move on the part of Mr. Davis. He was deliberate in betraying his old friends. He had been plotting, planning and collecting proxies for some time.

Mr. Davis will find that instead of injuring Messrs. Webb, Morehead and his old friends, he has only damaged himself. Gov. Holden's coming the day before the Convention met, was with a purpose.

ALLEGED CUSTOM-HOUSE FRAUDS.—A few days ago several parties were arrested in New York, charged with custom house frauds. Among these was a son of Ex-Senator Doolittle. He was subsequently honorably discharged. A son of Senator Van Winkle, of West Virginia, was also arrested; but it is said he can easily establish his innocence. He has been released on bail.

From the Wilmington Journal.

POLITICAL NAMES AND PRINCIPLES.

Our intelligent correspondent, "X." reviews at some length the present "look out" of party politics in this State, and while objecting to some of the declared principles of certain Conservative papers, and a name proposed by another, desires to know what it means. "X" is too intelligent and too careful a student of passing events not to know that the party at the South (and the same is true to some extent at the North) opposed to Radicalism, is composed of men who have hitherto differed very widely in their political views. The Jeffersonian Democrat, and the Henry Clay Whig, the Know Nothing and Ex-Unionist, all have united in a common organization to try to save the State from the evils of Radical success. These citizens were drawn together more from a sense of the imminent danger which threatened them than from any real sympathy in political opinions. They are acting together to day in as good faith and with as much zeal as ever did Democrats or Whigs in the olden time. Nay, the bonds of union between the various and different component parts of the present Conservative or Democratic party are stronger than those which have ever hitherto united a political organization in the United States. The objects for which they aim are more calculated to inspire the noble and patriotic, and the dangers which threaten the State and the Republic demands the greatest activity and concert in the present and the kindest toleration for past and present differences of opinion.

No patriotic citizen can look at the condition of North Carolina and long cavil over the name or the minor points of political unity of the organization through which he will attempt a reformation. A son could not stand and witness the assassination of his mother without opposing the the assassin, because he could not decide the means he would use to prevent the murder. North Carolina calls upon her sons to save her from destruction, and she must not be ruined because they differ as to the minor and unessential points of defence. They all agree as to the fact of the danger and the necessity for action, and a common line of attack and defence must and will be determined upon.

It can hardly be expected that men who have differed so widely in politics as the editor of the Raleigh Sentinel or of the Salisbury Old North State and ourselves could agree upon all questions now. They were zealous and uncompromising Whigs and Unionists. We as zealously and uncompromisingly adhered to Democracy and Secession. They were as true and honest in their allegiance to principle as we claim for ourselves. Differing thus upon principle, and each influenced by what we believed to be the true welfare of the country, and which led us into such widely different spheres during the war, it required something more than the ordinary course of politics, or the dangers which usually environ a country from a feeble administration of affairs, to have brought us into an earnest and zealous co operation in party politics. We are as ready to defend an attack upon the former Secessionists as they are to protect the principles and feelings of the Unionists.—Each is ready to break a lance with the other in honorable combat in defence of former political principles, but with respect for his opponent's views, and regard for the noble party to which the other is attached. Our present differences are only those of proud reminiscences and cherished memories; our present affiliation is founded upon real, living issues. Our aims are the same. We see the future from the same standpoint if we do look back upon the past with different optics.

North Carolina is in no condition for her sons to quarrel over names or minor points of differences. While her Executive department is filled by prejudiced, dishonest and ignorant men; while her Judiciary is either partisan, or ignorant, or corrupt, one or all; while her funds are criminally squandered, her credit destroyed, and her property owners taxed by and for the benefit of paupers; while her University remains the victim of party malice and stupidity; while her intelligent manhood is sacrificed to propitiate the prejudices and demands of ignorant negroes, and the greed and avarice of hungry carpet baggers, the good people of the State have a bond of union more sacred in its obligations than any which ever urged men forward to political unity and action. When we have accomplished the work before us; when North Carolina is redeemed from the degradation which has been thrust upon her, then can we settle our differences upon a platform high above the disgraceful level to which government affairs have now been dragged. Until then, we can and will be friends, and afterwards we trust. We can fight Radicalism upon one side, while our friends attack from another quarter, for it is vulnerable at all points. Allow us to differ as to the name of our army, and the arrangement of our forces, but under the same leader and under the same banner we will go forward to victory.

THE MANIPULATION OF APPOINTMENTS BY NEWSPAPER EDITORS.

The following is a copy of the letter written by the editors of the Cincinnati Commercial and Gazette to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and about which so much has been said:

CINCINNATI, March 20, 1869.

Hon. Columbus Delano, Commissioner of Internal Revenue:

The suggestion comes to us through Governor Hayes that we name suitable persons to occupy and administer the Internal Revenue offices of this city. It is unpleasant to take the responsibility of doing this thing, but we do not feel at liberty to decline it.

We would recommend for Collector, First District, John A. Becket; for Assessor, First District, Col. John C. Kennett; for Collector, Second District, Richard R. Pullen; for Assessor, Second District, Thomas P. Shaw.

In making these recommendations we have had our best intelligence, looking only to the good of the service; neither of us having any personal feeling in the matter, whatever.

We join in the urgent recommendation that, when action is taken in this matter, the four names should go into the Senate together for confirmation. Without enlarging on this point, we would express, in addition, an impression of its importance.

M. HALSTEAD,
RICHARD SMITH.

WEALTH OF NEW-YORK.—The total value of the real and personal property in the city and county of New York for the year 1869, according to a recent official statement, is $964,100,597, against $806,438,327 in 1868, being an increase of $55,654,270. The separate items are as follows in 1869: Real estate, $664,140,765, and personal estate, $279,977,832; in 1868, real estate, $630,886,630; personal estate, $205,196,772; so that the real estate has increased $60,904,218, and the personal estate has decreased $5,139,943. Among the items of personal estate, the bank shares are valued at $74,847,134 in 1868, and $73,999,019 in 1869, being a decrease in 1869 of $1,430,-

ALL SAINTS DAY.

I looked and saw a great and countless multitude
Palms in their hands, a white-robed sinless host.
And among all those holy saintly dead
I searched for faces—loved and lost.

I found them there—My dead! The same, yet changed;
Young, with the beauty of that new, immortal day,
The suffering eyes that I had kissed and closed
Gave back the old fond smile. God wiped their tears away.

They knew me too! They kissed the pain-marked face.
Like to a little child, the flesh did come again.
Come, when they laid me in the old loved place,
Sheltered upon their hearts. I laid my weight of pain.

I told them of the blemish lodging and the weary strife.
The bitter weights, since we held each other's hands;
They spoke to me of that calm, endless life,
And of the peace they felt within these quiet lands.

Oh! blessed, holy meeting! Earth's dull cattle to tell,
And tender words of loving comfort given;
Less sad, the lingering kiss, the long farewell;
Knowing they keep my place, and wait for me in Heaven.

Oh! hallowed day of all God's gathered Saints!
Then Angel with the golden censers offer thou
The incense of this thankful heart—and let there rise before the Throne this prayer,
That with those blessed dead, I, too may have my part.

1867. MINNIE CHESTER PRATT.
