JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

PARTISAN COMEDY OF ERRORS.

Thurlow Weed is about to offer to the public an autobigraphy which will, we are sure, be quite entertaining, especially if he gives us the queer incidents of the anti-Masonic crusade of the earlier days of his political career. From an advanced sheet the New York Times gives place to the following amusing story of New York partisanry:

"In 1817 there was a disastrous split in the Republican party of this State, Governor Clinton heading one faction and Mr. Van Buren the other. A political and personal warfare of unusual virulence characterized the campaign of that year. Mr. Clinton, an able and vituperative writer, assailed the leaders of the opposite side through the columns of the New York Columbian and Albany Register. William L. Marcy, then a young man, and others replied through the columns of the Albany Argus. One morning a vehement article, highly denunciatory of Governor Clinton, provoked a note from the gentleman assailed to the editor of the Argus demanding the name of the writer. Mr. Buel, the editor, handed the note to Mr. Van Buren, who invited Mr. Charles E. Dudley, Mr. William L. Marcy, Mr. Benjamin Knower, and Judge Roger Skinner, to his house that evening. While they were discussing the embarrassing question which Governor Clinton's note had raised, the servant brought Peter H. Livingstone to the library. Mr. Clinton was at the time Governor of the State, while Messrs. Van Buren and Livingstone were members of the Senate. The conversation, as Mr. Livingston discovered, was interrupted by his appearance. He said, in his usual brusque manner, 'You are talking secrets here, and I have interrupted you.' Mr. Van Buren replied: "Governor Clinton has demanded the name of the writer of the article in this morning's Argus, and we were talking of the peculiar awkwardness of exposing the writer." 'There is nothing peculiar about it,' re-ponded Mr. Livingstone, 'nor need there be any embarrassment. Send my name to Mr. Clinton.' Mr. Van Buren remarked, 'This is no occasion for trifling, Mr. Livingstone. You know what Mr. Clinton means by his demand.' 'Yes, sir,' replied Mr. Livingstone, 'I do know, and it is just what I mean. I have long wanted a shot at the —— rascal.' Persisting in the avowal that he was the writer, and in the request that his name should be given up, they finally yielded, and Mr. Buel was instructed accordingly. At a late hour the parties separated. Just as the day dawned the following morning Mr. Van Buren was awakened by a violent application of his knocker, and, looking out of his bedroom window, a voice, which he recognized as Mr. Livingstone's, inquired, 'Is that you, Van Buren?' On receiving a response in the affirmative, Mr. Livingstone said, 'Let me in.' Mr. Van Buren threw on a wrapper, opened the door, and showed his visitor into the cold parlor. Mr. Livingstone said, 'What the devil were you talking about last night when I came in?' Mr. Van Buren replied, 'We were talking about your attack on Governor Clinton in the Argus.' Mr. Livingstone, using a strong expletive, rejoined, 'I won't stand that. You can't father your bantlings on me. I had been dining, and was drunk when you took advantage of me.' This rendered it necessary to re assemble the council of the previous evening. The real embarrassment was this: The article had been written by James King, a young lawyer from Orange county, who had just obtained the consent of William James, a warm personal and political friend of Governor Clinton's, to marry his daughter, under a pledge to abstain from politics and devote himself exclusively to his profession. And now, before the marriage was celebrated, Mr. King had written a most abusive attack on his intended father-in-law's intimate friend. After much and anxious consideration it was decided that Mr. Knower should call on Mr. Isaiah Townsend, a mutual friend of Mr. James and Governor Clinton, and endeavored, by stating some extenuating circumstances, to appease Mr. James. This, however, was no easy task, for Mr. James was of a stern and implacable disposition. But Mr. Townsend knew his man, drove him up to Waterford, drank two or three glasses of gin and water, and succeeded in smoothing over the difficulty. Mr. Townsend then proceeded to lay the whole matter frankly before Governor Clinton, whose sense of the humorous was touched by the awkward position in which Mr. Livingstone's sudden belligerency had pissed his friends, and by the extreme delicacy of Mr. King's domestic relations. He good-naturedly withdrew his note, and took no further notice of the subject."

[Augusta (Ga.) Sentinel.]

A ROMANCE OF THE RAILWAY.

Madame Turner, wife of the late negro Postmaster at Macon, left Washington to visit her husband, in Macon. She purchased a first class ticket, and entered the passenger car and seated herself immediately behind some white ladies. She was not disturbed, however. At Augusta she seemed to have been irritated a little with the idea, that as she was now in Georgia, and within the jurisdiction of her distinguished lord, she could ride in any car she pleased and conduct herself accordingly. So when the train started for Macon, she again entered the car appropriated for the use of the white passengers. Three or four negroes entered the car and seated themselves around the colored Madame, and the company was soon engaged in a lively and rattling little confab, which attracted the attention of the white passengers. The Madame was heard to remark to one of her sable attendants that she had a first class ticket on that road, and intended to ride where she pleased. She made this remark in a tone of voice which showed that she intended to be heard by the whites.

By this time the conductor came through and was informed by his interesting customer that if she did not take the car prepared for those of her color, he would force her to do so. This raised her pedal highness to fever heat, and she asserted roundly that she would not move; that she was as good as anybody, and as was her money. The conductor had his doubts about this matter, similarly if she got her funds from Turner, and told her that force would be resorted to if she did not move. She retorted: "Try it on." The conductor retired, and the next moment a tall, brawny stout looking man, entered the car, and walked squarely up to his work, remarked to the Madame, "You must get out of here." "I won't," was the reply. "Then I'll make you," said Brawny. "You can't," said she. "I'll show you then," and with this Brawny seized her by the arm, and in an instant he had her out of one car into another.

Our informant saw no more of the "obstreperous" feminine; but the conductor informed him that when he took up her ticket she thrust it at him as if it was a dagger, with the remark: "You shall hear from me again, sir; I'll show you who I am and what you are."

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED,

AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER,

Improved with ROWELL'S PATENT DOUBLE COGWHEELS, and the PATENT FROG, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty, we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"I heartily commend it to economists of time, money, and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our machine,' after a year's use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it, one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catherine's Nursery, N. Y. City.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer.

Send the retail price Washer $14, Extra Wringer $6, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines, free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make money fast selling them.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.
