JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

POLITICAL AFFAIRS IN THE SOUTH AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

[New York Herald.]

Political matters in the South, particularly in Tennessee, Virginia and Mississippi, are in a very muddled condition. And the administration at Washington is in about as great a muddle about them as the local politicians themselves. The most remarkable feature is that a most intense rivalry and even bitterness between the radical and conservative factions they are both for the administration. Or, perhaps, it would be better to say they are both for General Grant and cling to him as the representative man of the people and choice of the nation. This was evident in the late elections and is becoming more apparent since. The Walker party in Virginia, the Senter party in Tennessee, and the Dent party in Mississippi raised the name of the President on their banners to rally the people to their support, and the radicals in these States did the same. Yet no two parties were ever more bitterly opposed to each other, and, in some respects, were never more widely apart in their policy.—The hostility of a few individuals of the conservative party to the President, as in the case of Andy Johnson, is personal and does not represent the status or wishes of parties in the South. Both the conservative and radical factions, as was said, claim and desire to represent the administration and to act in accordance with it.

The question that forces itself upon us here—and it is one which the President will be compelled to seriously consider—is, can this state of things last? Can both be administration parties and yet be so hostile in policy and feeling? It is impossible. The President must take his choice with one or the other. He cannot ride on the backs of both. No political horsemanship is equal to such a task. What, then, will General Grant do? If we go back to his antecedents, if we call to mind his conservative views when he closed up the war and wished immediate harmony between the two sections and restoration of the South, and if we may judge from his known desire for peace, we could have no hesitation in saying he will make the conservatives of the South the administration party. Nor have we any doubt that his own unbiased inclination would incline him to such a course. This, too, is undoubtedly the wisest policy; for the result of the late elections shows that neither the administration nor any other power can make the Southern people swallow radicalism. Should he, unfortunately, take the side of the radicals in the South—that is, should he place himself in hostility to the large majority of the people and public sentiment in that section—he may cause a great deal of trouble, but will not be able, with all the machinery of federal power and patronage, to make the Southern States radical. Indeed, the very effort to do so would only swell the majority against him and his policy. We have an example of what would take place in the meddling of the radical members of his Cabinet in the Tennessee election. The interference of Boutwell and Creswell only increased the vote against Stokes, the radical candidate for Governor.

We admit that the President is in a very trying situation. Some of his Cabinet are incurable radicals, and will use all their influence over him and his policy in their efforts to sustain their faction in the South, while the rest are indifferent or mere political nonentities. There is no unity, and, as a consequence, the administration is at sea floundering about among dangerous breakers. Should he listen to the defeated radicals in Tennessee and Virginia, and to the same party in Mississippi, and endeavor to overrule the expression of the public voice, his great popularity cannot save him. The people of the North, even, would not sustain him in such a course. Military domination, as in the case of General Canby in Virginia, and General Ames, of Mississippi, who has just suspended the writ of habeas corpus, cannot be tolerated by the mass of the American people. They want peace, restoration, and the war closed up. They are tired and disgusted with the pretences of reconstruction for party purposes, and the substitution of military rule for civil government. Any fresh attempt to defeat the popular will in the South by the action of the administration or the Radical party would produce a terrible conservative reaction.

What, then, is General Grant to do? Follow the instincts of his own nature and good sense and throw overboard the radical carpiots in his Cabinet. Yes, let him remodel his Cabinet and make a new one of able conservative men who will be united in policy and act in accordance with his own views. The people are with him now and they earnestly desire to support him all through. He was and still is the hope of the republic. But the present is a critical time, and his future popularity will depend upon the action he may take in the political affairs of the South and the choice he may make between the parties there. There is no evading this alternative. Nor ought the President to hesitate. He is the master of the political situation. Should he take the ultra radical ground that Boutwell and Creswell in his Cabinet and the extreme radicals of Congress urge he will plunge his administration into a sea of trouble.—Should he take a conservative course he will carry the bulk of the republican party as well as all the conservative people both South and North with him; for they have nowhere else to go, and he will continue to hold the politics and destiny of the republic in his hands. Will General Grant see his opportunity and what the people expect of him? That is the question. It cannot be answered. The time has come for decision, and it must be decided now one way or the other.

Apropos of the usual munificence of his Highness of Edinburgh, who made shabby presents to the colonists of Victoria and New South Wales and then charged them to the imperial account, a story may be told showing how these things are managed in Russia. The King of Prussia, in his recent "progress" through his dominions, went to that city, and was lionized by the officers of the municipality, who generously placed the cost to the popular account. But the good people of the city, though acknowledging the honor, "could not see this," so they refused to pay, and required the magnificent Aldermen to settle the bill. The matter was finally referred to the Ministry of the Interior, which sided with the peasants. The precedent might be a useful one in the case of the young English prince.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED,

AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER.

Improved with ROWELL'S PATENT DOUBLE CONVOLUTE CORRUGATED RUBBER CYLINDERS, and THE PATENT STOP, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty, we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"I heartily commend it to economists of time, money, and contentment."—Rev. Dr. Bellows.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our machine,' after a year's use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry, and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catherine's Nursery, N. Y. City.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer.

Send the retail price Washer $14, Extra Wringer $9, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines, free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make money fast selling them.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.
