JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR-

(Correspondence Courier-Journal.) POOR MISSISSIPPI.

A Specimen Dozen of Negro Jurors, Trial and Assaital of a Black Murderer at Columbus.

Sheriff of the county, one Cline, and his deputies, while they were quietly proceeding to jail with him under arrest for inciting a riot in the streets of Columbus, and leading an assault upon a civil officer in the discharge of his duty. Bywier, on the ocdischarge of his duty. Bowler, on the oc-casion above alfuded to, shot Cline, and emptted his revolver at the deputies, but was finally wounded and secured.

On Thursday of last week, he was brought to trial, before Judge George Brown, recently from Ohio, now, by appointment of General Ames, Circuit Judge of the District in which Lowedes County is. The State was represented by Theodore C. Lyon, so ex-Confederate officer, and a young man of ability and reputation, who, in the absee of the Attorney General, was requested by the Court to assume the direct the prosecuting -thus much for the Radical Junge-while Col. J. A. Orr, a distinguished lawyer, and a leader in the Republican party in Mississippi, together with other experienced counsel, appeared for the prisour; and all that perversion of testimony, and appeals to passion, projudice and ignorance could do, was done in his behalf.

Por the first time in the history of Lawndes County a negro-jury was empanneled, and what a spectacle those ignorant beings presented. Some of them looked ridiculously uplifted and insolent on the strength of their elevation, others half frightened. Ten out of the twelve were in their shirt sleeves, and half of that number with their black skins showing through their rags. They sat to try an issue which the white population of the County, men, women and children, felt to be a more Important one to them—considering the character and former practices of the prisoner, the crimes charged, his evil and incendiary influence over the more ignorant class of negroes, and the fact that whites are cut-numbered five to one by the blacks in that numbered five to one by the biacks in that old wealthy County.—than hash ever before been submitted to a jury of twelve men in the history of the Courts of the County.

On the trial the State made out a plain case by the concurring testimony of three or four white men of high character, anstalled by black witnesses. tsided by black witnesses—that the prison-er, when found by the Sheriff, with the warrant in his hand, had in his easy reach and possession a gun, a pistol, and a sword; that he quietly informed the Sheriff, after looking at the warrant, that he "would die before being arrested," but at last pretended to submit, and, after walking quietly a short distance to disarm suspicion, mexpectedly drew a concealed weapon, shot the Sheriff in the arm and breast, and was only stayed in his deadly work by being disabled him-

The defenre set up, to the utter astonishment of the community who heard of it then for the first time, was that Bowler was not in his right mind—the effects of a fever so the time of the shooting. To the truth of this some half dezen slatterely negro women (a class over whom Bowler exercises an almost supernatural influence) swiftly awore, amid pitiable conservaminations and enterior and a supernatural colors and enterior and a supernatural colors. an amount pittable contradictions and entanglements on the cross-examination, at least one half of them adding in their zeal, by way of making things doubly sure, that "Mr. Clines shot brother Bowle rifet." The chief witness, a skinny-laced mulatto hag, at whose but Bowler was found by the Sherift, to make him sufficiently reversis for the alleged delirium, swote, with firete reliteration, that "Brothet Bowler shuck his self wid du chill mighty night outen de bed;" "dat his eyes looked mighty curus." and that "he sweat so when the lever come on dat he wet de sheets wrings wet, and den it went through the bed lick, and den through dis mitteras," the most notable care of sweating probably in the annals of through de matteras, the cave of sweating probably in the annals of medicine, and sufficient, the prosecution reasonably thought, to have refered almost any case of leverish delirium. As "brother Bowler," however, was found standing in the floor "booted and spurred," upon the the floor "booted and spurred," upon the entrance of the officers, the same accommodating witness swore that "it was did with his clother on." But this is enough to present an idea of the character of the evidence by which causes like the one in question, involving issues of no less moment than the livre of citizens, the public peace and the majesty of the faw itself, are determined in Minimarppi, under Radical rule.

It may be well to add that the restimony of half dozen negro women was flatly contradicted in every point by both white and black witnesses as well as by medical testimony, and all the circumstances of the case.

The excited crowd, mixed white and The excited crowd, mist want as black, filled the large court-room, galleries and all, through the day and night, during the progress of the trial, it, indied, it can be called by such a name. After having conducted the case throughout with gross, moderation and farms, at 8 wester brokes. Triday muraises Mr. Lyine closed the case, by an argument said to have been powerful and convincing, well executated to move any jury not utterly regardless of their online.

One of the negroes, though solemnly sworn and questioned according to law, be-fore being allowed to take his sent on the ore being allowed to take his seat on the jury, alters and boasted that "they might have known what he was gui'm to 'cide alore dey put bim dar." And another was found to have taken up two collections among his color for the benefit of Bowler since his comfarment in halt while still a 'third honest looking one explained his assent to the verdict as follows: He admitted by treath Rowler guilty of the offence A SHAMEFUL AFFAIR.

Hearty Springs, Miss., Aug. 28, 1869.

Last Friday is said to have been one of the darkest days of oppression in the annals of Mississippi. The scene was Columbus, distinguished among the critise of the South for its wealth, intelligence, and the law yill we all comed-to him.

South for its wealth, intelligence, and the law yill we all comed-to him.

You have thus before you so example illieved the supersynthesis of the contribution in the sum of the contribution in the said he had been and he know'd all about it, and daid de way distribution to the verdict as follows: Re admitted the thought Bowler guilty of the offence charged, "But den," said he. "I never been to de contribution in the said he. "In ever been to de contribution in the said he. "In ever been to de contribution in the said he. The said he had been and he know'd all about it, and daid de way distribution in the sample of the contribution in the contribution in the contribution in the sample of the contribution in the sample of the contribution in the co

South for its wealth, intelligence, and the law-abiding character of its people.

It seems that some months since a famous colored preacher, known in different cities of the Union—among them. New Orleans, St. Louis, Richmond, Philadelphia and Boston—as the Rev. Pleasant Bowler, a notorious scoundrel and impostor, a man of great and wicked power among the blacks, made a deadly attack upon the Radical Shriff of the county, one Cline, and his deputies, while they were quietly proceed-A NORTHERNER.
