JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

The elections which are to come in Pennsylvania and Ohio, to be followed by those of certain of the Western States, are the great political events of the year. In each of these two States the Democrats are hopeful and courageous, fighting under the lead of as strong names as can be found within or without the limits of their own States. When a political party is able to rally its strength to the call of such men as Packer and Pendleton it challenges victory from the opening of the canvass. Both are national men whose services would worthily fill the requirements of the widest sphere of public duty to which they might be called. Both have been named in a National Democratic Convention for the Presidency. Were their selection to be assured no two men in their own States could support with greater strength the successful administration of Gov. Hoffman, of New York. The three together would form a powerful breakwater in the great Central States against the further inroads of Radicalism.

Mr. Packer has reached his present deserved elevation by industry and perseverance, and thus offers another shining example to the young man of the country of the sure success that waits upon honest, independent, and steadily continued exertion. He is a man of large wealth, which he employs not selfishly or ostentatiously, but, like the genuine Democrat that he is, for the constant benefit of his fellow-citizens. The institution of learning he has established in his adopted State will stand as a permanent memorial in his honor. Of the largest benevolence, he dispenses his charities with a delicacy that heeds the self-respect of the beneficiary. The master and manager of vast business interests, he has shown qualities and powers which the greatest exigencies of public life could not well subject to an intenser strain. He knows, men is possessed of resources of his own, is capable of directing, and knows how to inspire others with the living principles of his own purposes. As Governor of Pennsylvania the people of that great State would repose with confidence in his tried ability and integrity, and the Democrats would accept a leader whose influence would be sure to extend far beyond the affairs of the present day. We trust they will permit no accidents or omissions to imperil the chance of securing so thoroughly acceptable a candidate for the official position to which he is so admirably adapted.

Mr. Pendleton, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, in his public career has written a record of his rare ability, his aptitude for administrative affairs, and his unflinching integrity, that is welcome enough to consider in these days of official malefeasance, corruption, and want of conscientiousness. Mr. Pendleton's personal qualities peculiarly attract men to him, and his influence over them is never wholly lost again. The Democracy of Ohio could not have presented a stronger or more popular candidate. The very assaults of partisanship rebound from his triple mail to the hurt of none but his assailants. Mr. Pendleton's view upon the public debt are simply his own, and with but slight modification are shared by many leading Republicans; so that attempts to prejudice him in the public mind by that means are futile.—No more thorough and ardent believer in the fundamental principles of Democracy ever advocated them with clearer reasoning or more moving eloquence. He is entirely devoted to the political creed he has espoused, and seeks nothing less than its supremacy as the true framework of free institutions. The people of Ohio know him to be a man of self-reliance, and to be relied upon; and it, as we confidently hope, they place him in the gubernatorial chair this fall, they will have excellent cause of self-congratulation in the future over a choice that has swamped their State politics with the impress of character and living power.—Boston Post.

THE PRINTER.

The following, from the pen of Junius Henri Browne, is true to a letter:

Printing ink begets cynicism, as dampness, rheumatism, or lost sir, fever. There is no escaping it. Men in printing offices, whether they prepare or set copy, contract the disease, and suffer from it more or less as their mental system responds to or resists it. They are behind the scenes. They know the golden goblets the public admire are only colored glass; that the crimson glory of the tablecaux is but a flash of red fire; that the mounting fellow who is lavish of his dukedom is in arrears for morning cocktail. Life is unidealized on the outset. It is stripped of its illusions; and fine names are but echoes of emptiness.—Why expect them to admire? Why ask them to be sanguine; why look for enthusiasm in them?

The printer understands how reputations are made. He knows that they are not blown forth from the trump of him who seeks reputation by performing astos, and gets it thereby. He is aware that, while genius starves, impudence fattens; that while wisdom hides in a garret, flippancy draws on the pave; while inspirations pine, management flushes with health. He sees that the editorial language of the statesman or artist is in the statesman or artist's own hand; that honors are easy to the man who has the effrontery to ask, and not to be denied. No marvel he believes all achievement unworthy, all success a sort of cheat, all persons of eminence thing who have not yet been found out."

In none of the notices of the Siamese Twins that we have seen has mention been made of the famous Scotch double man, of whom the following curious account is given in the "Rerum Scoticarum Historia:"

"During the reign of James the Third of Scotland, and at his court, there lived a man, double above the waist, single below that region. The King caused him to be carefully brought up. He rapidly acquired a knowledge of music. The two heads learned several languages; they debated together, and the one never knew anxiety or sought. They lived generally, however, in the greatest harmony. When the lower part of the body was healed the two individuals felt it together; but when, on the other hand, one of the upper individuals was touched, he alone felt the effect. The monstrous being died at the age of twenty-eight years. One of the bodies died several days before the other."

Money is so scarce in Minnesota that traders and banks are issuing shinplasters.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE,

LATELY MUCH IMPROVED,

AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER.

Improved with ROWELL'S PATENT DOUBLE CONCUSSION, and the PATENT STOP, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented, and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty, we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual thanksgiving on Mondays for the invention."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our machine,' after a year's use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Solon Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned wash-board. By using it one laundress is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Infant Department of St. Catherine's Nursery, N. Y. City.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer.

Send the retail price Washer $14, Extra Wringer $6, and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and so sure are we they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines, free of freight, after a month's trial, according to directions.

No husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done both 7, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Doty Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make money fast selling them.

Sold by dealers generally, to whom liberal discounts are made.
