JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

THE LAST GUNNERS OF THE APPOMATTOX SURRENDER.

John Esten Cooke, in his new book, 'Hammer and Rapier,' says:

The day passed, and the night—on the 10th the army surrendered formally, stacked arms, abandoned their colours, and dispersed to their homes. The Federal commander had acted throughout all with the generosity of a soldier and the breeding of a gentleman. Not a cheer was heard, nor a band played in the Federal army. When for a moment rose over the woods, one of the federal officers hastened to apologize for it.

'That is the rear guard—those fellows did some of the fighting,' he said.

Those who fought—the veteran Army of the Potomac, tried in battle, in victory, in defeat, in all the hard life of the soldier—they did not cheer when their old adversaries surrendered. They were silent, and saluted when a ragged Confederate passed. They felt what surrender must be to the men of that army which they had fought for four years—and not a cheer or a brass band was heard.

Why humiliate their old enemies?—Why make more bitter their misfortune?

On the 10th of April, 1865, the old soldiers of the Army of the Potomac stretched the hands of comrades to the foe they had fought so long. To-day they are ready to do as much, if the civilians would only let them. There is a personage more ferocious and implacable than the fiercest soldier—it is the man who had staid at home and never smelt gunpowder; who, while the rest fought, clapped his hands, saying:

'Fight on, my brave boys! You are covering yourselves with glory, and we are watching you!'

'If the civilians had been at Appomattox, they would have butchered or handcuffed the men of Lee—would you not, messieurs? You would certainly have split the air with every brass band of the army, and shouted 'Hosannah' at their humiliation.

'Well, see the difference between men who fight and men who do not. The old soldiers of the army of the Potomac kept quiet—when Lee appeared at Gen. Grant's headquarters, every head was uncovered. Victory sainted defeat.'

RISING IN THE WORLD.

You should bear constantly in mind that nine-tenths of us are, from the very nature and necessities of the world, born to earn our livelihood by the sweat of the brow. What reason have we then to presume that our children are not to do the same? If they be—as now and then one will be—endowed with extraordinary powers of mind, those powers may have an opportunity of developing themselves; and, if they never have that opportunity the harm is not very great to us or to them. Nor does it hence follow that the descendants of laborers are always to be laborers. The path upwards is steep and long to be sure. Industry, care, skill, excellence in the present parent lay the foundation of a rise under more favorable circumstances for the children. The children of these take another rise; and by the by the descendants of the present laborer become independent. This is the natural progress. It is by attempting to reach the top at a single leap that so much misery is produced in the world; and the propensity to make such attempt has been cherished and encouraged by the strange projects that we have witnessed of late years for making the laborers virtuous and happy by giving them what is called education. The education I speak of consists in bringing up children to labor with steadiness, with care and with skill; to show them how to do as many useful things as possible; to teach them how to do all in the best manner; to set them an example of industry, sobriety, cleanliness and neatness; to make all these habitual to them so that they shall never be liable to fall into the contrary; to let them always see a good living proceeding from labor, and thus to remove from them the temptation to get at the goods of others by violent or fraudulent means, and to keep far from their minds all the inducements to hypocrisy and deceit.

The Hartford Post tells a story of a deacon who once got drunk in New York on the Fourth of July. It was at a time when ice was unknown in summer in the country. The deacon confessed his fault, but pleaded in palliation that it was a prodigiously hot day, and the lemons and ice in the punch did look so cool and inviting that he couldn't resist the temptation, and he supposed he did actually drink to intoxication. A brother on a back seat listened attentively but incredulously to the defence, and at its conclusion rose, "I hain't no objection," said he, "to a man's getting drunk, if he owns up to it and is sorry for it; that's a thing a man's liable to, and p'raps some times he can't help it; but when the the deacon comes in here and undertakes to excuse himself in any such way as that—talking about seeing ice in July, I go for jerkin him out for a lyin."

MEDICINAL PROPERTIES OF EGGS.—The white of an egg has proved of late the most efficacious remedy for burns. Seven or eight successive applications of this substance soothe pain and effectually exclude the burned part from the air. This simple remedy seems preferable to collodion or even cotton. Extraordinary stories are told of the healing properties of a new oil which is easily made from the yolk of hens' eggs. The eggs are first boiled hard, and the yolks are then removed, crushed and placed over a fire where they are carefully stirred until the whole substance is just on the point of catching fire, when the oil separates and may be poured off. One yolk will yield nearly two teaspoonfuls of oil. It is in general use among the colonists of South Russia as a means of curing cuts, bruises and scratches.

A story is told of an old hunter in Michigan, who, when the country was new, got lost in the woods several times. He was told to buy a pocket compass, which he did, and a friend explained to him the use. He soon got lost and lay out as usual. When found, he was asked why he did not travel by the compass.—He stated that he did not dare to. He wished to go north, and he "tried hard to make the thing point north, but 'twont no use; 'twould diddle, diddle, diddle, right round, and point southeast every time."

Jacob Bartholomew, of Adams county, Indiana, having been injured by a kick from his horse on one side of his nose, applied the lady, and afterward attempted suicide.
