JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

A SENTIMENTAL STORY.

SIMON SHORT'S SON SAMUEL.

Shrewd Simon Short sewed shoes. Seventeen summers, speeding storms, spreading sunshine, successively saw Simon's small, shabby shop still standing staunch; saw Simon's selfsame squeaking sign still swinging, silently specifying: "Simon Short, Smithfield's sole surviving shoemaker. Shoes sewed, soled superbly." Simon's spry, sedulous spouse, Sally Short, sewed shirts, stitched sheets, stuffed sofas. Simon's six stout, study sons—Seth, Samuel, Stephen, Saul, Silas, Shadrach—sold sundries. Sober Seth sold sugar, starch, spices; simple Sam sold saddles, saltcups, samovars; sagacious Stephen sold silks, satins, shawls; skeptical Saul sold silver salvers; selfish Shadrach sold salves, shoestrings, soap, saws, skates; slack Silas sold Sally Short's stuffed sofas.

Some seven summers since, Simon's second son, Samuel, saw Sophia Sofronia Spriggs somewhere. Sweet, sensible, smart Sofronia Spriggs. Sam soon showed struggle symptoms. Sam seldom stayed storing selling saddles. Sam sighed sorrowfully, sought Sophia Sofronia's society, sung several serenades slyly. Simon stormed, scolded severely, and Sam seemed so silly singing such shameful, senseless songs. "Strange Sam should slight such splendid sales! Strutting spendthrift! Shattered brained simpleton!"

"Softly, softly, sire," said Sally, "Sam's smitten: Sam's spied some sweetheart!"

"Sentimental schoolboy!" snarled Simon.

"Smitten! stop such stuff." Simon sent Sally's snuff-box spining, seized Sally's scissors, smashed Sally's spectacles, scattered several spools. "Sneaking scoundrel! Sam's shocking silliness shall surcease." Scowling Simon stopped speaking, starting swiftly shopward, Sally sighed sadly. Summoning Sam, she spoke sweet sympathy. "Sam," said she, "Sire seems singularly snappy; so, sonny, stop strolling streets, stop smoking, spending specie superfluously, stop spruceing so, stop singing serenades, stop short; sell saddles, sell shoes, sensible; see Sophia Sofronia Spriggs soon; sue's sprightly; she's stable, so solicit, sue, secure Sophia Sofronia Spriggs speedily, Sam."

"So soon! so soon!" said Sam standing stock still.

"So soon, surely," said Sally, smilingly; "specially since sire shows such spirits."

So Sam, somewhat scared, sauntered slowly, shaking stupendously.

Sam soliloquises:

"Sophia Sofronia Spriggs, Spriggs—Short—Sophia Sofronia Short—Samuel Short's spouse—sounds splendid! Suppose she should say—She shan't—she shan't!"

Soon Sam spied Sophia starching shirts, singing softly.

Seeing Sam, she stopped starching, saluting Sam smilingly. Sam stampered shockingly.

"Spi-spi-spi splendid summer season, Sophia."

"Somewhat sultry," suggested Sophia.

"Sar sartin, Sophia," said Sam. (Silence seventeen seconds.)

"Selling saddles still, Sam?"

"Sar-sartin," said Sam, starting suddenly.

"Season's somewhat sudorific," said Sam, stealthily staunching streaming sweat, shaking sensibly.

"Sartin," smiling significantly. "Sip some sweet sherbert." (Silence sixty seconds.)

"Sire shot sixty snipe, Saturday," said Sophia.

"Sixty! shoo!" said Sam. (Silence seventy-seven seconds.

"See sister Susan's sunflowers," said Sophia, socially silencing such stiff silence.

Sophia's sprightly sauciness stimulated Sam strangely, so Sam suddenly spoke sentimentally:

"Sophia, Susan's sunflowers seem saying, Samuel Short, Sophia Sofronia Spriggs, stroll serenely, seek some sequestered spot, some sylvan shade. Sparkling springs shall sing soul-stirring strains; sweet songsters silence secret sighings, superangelic sylphs shall"—

Sophia snickered; so Sam stopped.

"Sophia," said Sam solemnly.

"Sam," said Sophia.

"Sophia, stop smiling, Sam Short's sincere. Sam's seeking some sweet spouse, Sophia."

Sophia stood silent.

"Speak, Sophia, speak! such suspense speculates sorrow."

"Seek sire, Sam, seek sire."

So Sam sought sire Spriggs. Sire Spriggs said "sartin."

THE MORAL SITUATION.

A DARK PICTURE—BUT IS IT NOT A TRUTHFUL ONE?

The Rev. W. T. Clark has painted a dark picture of the moral situation; but who will say that the shades are too deep, or its outlines too bold? To enable our readers to judge for themselves, we quote the following passage:

The reaction of the war on taste, habits, ambitions and morals of our people, has proved damaging. The old order of things has been broken up. The leaders of other days have been left behind, if not forgotten. Ideas and usages which had become familiar are thrown aside. New men, new customs, new notions, are in the ascendant. The low have been lifted up. Followers have become leaders.

Beggars of yesterday are nabobs to-day, and set the fashion for whoever is foolish enough to follow their lead. To get money and to spend it in luxury, display, and dissipation, are the ruling passions of the day. Such an intense and insane rush and struggle for wealth, such ruinous extravagance of expenditure, such a idolatry for the flattering fripperies of fashion, this country has never witnessed before. And, alas, not only taste, refinement, purity and piety have suffered unspeakable detriment and diminution, but even honesty—the only firm basis of commercial prosperity, the only sure support of social order, the essential condition of intellectual and national well being—has given way before the steady, sapping and mining of immoral customs and the fatal strain of a false ambition. Speculation—the proper name for gambling on the street and at the bourse—is touching on the line of legitimate business and eating out the heart of honorable enterprise.

Frauds and villainies deserving the severest punishment are perpetrated almost every day, and condoned whenever shown, generally by a share of their booty in common with administration. Crime is made to pay like bread and oil nuts, milk is thick with disease, and wine is a compound of drugs and damnation.

Our streets and public places are full of intemperance, and not only do young men and old fall before it by the hundred, but even boys and women wear its fire blush on their cheeks, and reel and totter under its influence on the sidewalk. Gambling is a business carried on less publicly, but scarcely less extensively than many honorable avocations, and the gamblers include every class, from the boy of 15 to the man of 60. Indeed, every vice on the black catalogue of transgression has more than doubled in volume and in victims within a dozen years and our young men, the pride and hope of the nation, fall before the rabble destroyers faster than they fell during the Southern campaigns. Surrogate are diminishing. Houses are breaking up. Assignments are cursed with regularity. Echoes of profanity fill the air.

The streets are mined with pitfalls of vice, and crimes are so frequent that they have ceased to shock or even to startle us; indeed, we expect an account of a wholesale robbery, divorce case, and murder as spice for our breakfast. Many of our judges seem to imagine that it is our business to protect criminals from justice, and persecute and prosecute and punish witnesses until they are afraid to testify in court. Many of our cities are at the mercy of banditti who plunder by ordinance and pick pockets by tax. The lobby is the most powerful branch of the legislature, and almost any measure can be monoyed into law. Half of the revenue officers are suspected of peculation, and it is estimated that a single interest defrauded the government out of half a million dollars last year.
