JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

I. AND—III.—A STATESMAN'S COMPARISON OF THE TWO NAPOLEONS.

The edition of the collected political pamphlets of M. de Cormenin, who obtained considerable celebrity during the time of Louis Phillippe, and at the commencement of the present reign, under the pseudonym of "Timon," contains the following curious comparison between the two Napoleons, I. and III.:

The nephew does not resemble the uncle, either physically or morally. The latter was abrupt to his auditors and fascinated them by his eagle glances to such a point as to disturb and confuse them. The other listens graciously, and is as phlegmatic as the uncle was impetuous. All those around the uncle could read the dramas which were passing not by act in the hero's brain. The nephew does not allow his intentions to be divined, and takes a pleasure in concealing his thoughts under his impassable features. The nephew would not have gained the great battle of Austerlitz, would not have hurried like lightning from one point to another in the last campaign of France, and in the first of Italy, would not have pronounced those memorable sayings become historical, at the Pyramids, at Jena and Fontainebleau, would not with a strong hand have methodically reorganized the municipalities of the conquered towns, impoverished kingdom, and gained fifty-five victories in fifty-seven battles. But on the other hand the uncle would not have planned the coup d'etat of December with supernaturable secrecy, a firmness of hand, and a vigor of resolution, which have no parallel in history. The nephew may be reproached, like the uncle, with more than one caprice of imagination, like those of Strasburg, Boulogne, Sebastopol, China, Cochinchina, and Mexico. But the blame is to be attributed less to a spirit of adventure than to the fault of the people, who should have preserved their vote over expeditions of that kind. But what the uncle would perhaps not have done the nephew proposed unasked to the nation, namely, universal and secret suffrage, and a bill of indemnity for his illegal act. And of all the Princes who have reigned over France, he had, without excepting Henry IV., the most loved the people and done the most for them; and I regret but one thing, which is, that, being born with the grave and patient spirit of a Washington, he did not prefer liberty to absolutism, and the scarf of a decennial President, open to re-election to the hereditary sceptre of an Emperor."

A MOTHER'S DEATH.

Few who have lost their "first and dearest friend" can read the following with unmoisted eyes:

Death comes an unsought guest to every board, and at his spectral biding some beloved one goes forth to his mysterious home.

Time and philosophy may teach resignation unto hearts made desolate by his coming; but they can never fill the vacancy therein, when she that was our mother no longer casts a halo about our darkened hearth.

A mother's place—so loved, so worshipped—once empty must be forever so. A breast once panged by a mother's death, no medicine can reach with healing.

No mind, however scarred; no heart however hardened, can forget the gentle being whose suffering begot his life.

A mother is truly our guardian spirit upon earth. Her goodness shields and protects; she walks with our infancy, our youth and mature age—ever sheltering us with her absorbing love, and expiating our many sins with her blessed prayers.

And when our mother, with all her burden of love, her angelic influence, her saintly care, ceases her beauteous life, how much we lose of home, of happiness, of Heaven, no one can reckon; for our mother was none but ours, and we only can know how holy she was—how sacred her memory must ever be.

But may we now borrow consolation from the thought that our loss is Heaven's gain; that surely one angel watches over us, erasing with grateful tears the records of our sin, and making easy our path to her, with blessed and blessing prayers!

HEREDITARY GENIUS.—A Mr. Galton has written a work on this subject in which he makes some novel and startling assertions based upon his researches; for instance, "that intermarriage with heiresses is a notable agent in the extinction of families! An exhaustive search among records of extant and extinct peerages shows that one-fifth of the heirs-en have no male children at all; a third have not more than one child; three fifths have not more than two." Here is a bombshell thrown into the camp of fortune hunters who are fond of children. The old proverb, "A poor man for children and a fool for luck," must have been based upon an observation of the childlessness of heiresses. Another singular fact is, that in many instances the husband outlived the heiress, whom he first married, and was able to leave issue by a second wife. There are several most notable instances of the truth of this statement in English society at the present time: Mrs. Lloyd Lindsay, only child of Lord Overston—formerly head of the celebrated banking-house of Jones, Lloyd & Co.—who is said to live upon the interest of his interest, is childless; and so is Lady Holmesdale, who inherited from her father, and the last Earl Corawallis, £30,000 a year.

A HARD CUSTOMER.—The scene of the following incident was a Utica restaurant: A man recently entered the place and ordered a very elaborate dinner. He lingered long at the table, and finally wound up with a bottle of wine. Then lighting a cigar he had ordered, he leisurely sauntered up to the proprietor. "Very fine dinner, landlord; just charge it to me—I have'nt got a cent." "But I don't know you," said the proprietor, indignantly. "Of course you don't. If you did you wouldn't have let me have the dinner." "Pay me for the dinner, I say." "And I say I can't." "I'll see about that," said the proprietor, who pulled a revolver out of a drawer, leaped over the counter, and collared the guest, exclaiming, as he pointed at his head: "Now sir if you'll not away with that dinner without paying for it, you succeeded." "What is that you've got in your hand?" said the impassive customer, drawing forth Ten, or, in a manner, like "Ace of Spades for a fortune—I thought it was a sixpence."

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS

THE AMERICAN COMBINATION
Button Hole & Sewing Machine
Has been honored with the highest award in every instance and Diplomas wherever entered for competition at fairs and exhibitions held during the past season.
THE SIMPLICITY, EASE AND CERTAINTY with which this machine operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, throughout the entire range of device, in Stitching, Hemming, Felling, Tucking, Cording, Braiding Cutting, Gathering & Sewing on, Overseaming, Embroidering on the Edge,
AND ITS Beautiful But-ton-Hole and Eyelet Hole Work.
Place it unequalled by any machine of any other description.
It is also the CHEAPEST intrinsically, as well as the BEST, since it is made TWO MACHINES combined in one. The same beautiful mechanism employed by hand, changes either the Lock Stitch or Shuttle Stitch at pleasure, and the change is made in a moment. It is, in fact, simply a Lock Stitch Machine, with a Shuttle Stitch attachment, which can be applied or removed at will. The Lock Stitch Machine is the only one that will do the range of work required in the family, and the Shuttle Stitch Machine is the only one that will do the range of work required in the shop. Hence the necessity of having both combined in one machine, to do the work of both.
