(From the Philadelphia Telegraph.)

A SHARP LETTER FROM EX CONFEDERATE GENERAL MAGRUDER—GRAVE INSINUATIONS AGAINST CAMERON'S VERACITY—HOW MAGRUDER CROSSED THE LONG BRIDGE INTO VIRGINIA, AND HOW HE DID NOT CROSS IT.

Below we publish a letter written by the ex-Confederate General Magruder to a gentleman in this city concerning the circumstances which attended his resignation from the regular army at the outbreak of the war, and the manner in which he left the capital and crossed the Potomac on his way South.

GALVESTON, May 8, 1870.

Dear Sir:—I have not had an opportunity to answer your letter of April 16th until now. As I have abstained from politics entirely since the war, I regret that I am compelled to write a letter which will be construed by some, at least, as being of a political character. It is not so, however, for this letter is purely personal, and written solely in defence of my honor, which has been recklessly, maliciously, and mendaciously, attacked by Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania, in a debate in the Senate of the 5th ultimo, as appears from the Congressional Globe, which you, though unacquainted with me personally, I believe had the kindness to send me, for which I thank you sincerely. Before going farther, I will here say that you are not only at liberty to publish this letter, but that I hope you will do so, and in such newspapers that Mr. Cameron will be forced to read it, as I hold myself responsible personally at any time to Mr. Cameron for its contents.

The paragraphs in the debate in which allusion is made to me are as follows:

Mr. Cameron.—"I remember that Captain Somebody who became a General in the rebel army had the command of a battery here, and he was going to start off, not only with himself but with his battery, but somehow or other the battery did not get off. He clerred off in a few evenings after, however, and got across the bridge."

Mr. Pomeroy.—"That was the captain who escorted the President to the White House?"

Mr. Cameron.—"The same man. He escorted the President to the White House, and I heard him say to the President that he admired him, and was going to stand by him during the war. He said that the evening before he went away."

I will premise in reference to the above that as I was the only officer that commanded a battery in Washington at that time, and afterwards became a General in the Confederate army, Mr. Cameron could have meant none other but myself. The rest of his remarks are false in every particular. In fact, they constitute one monstrous, malicious, reckless, and infamous lie; for, in the first place, I never was with Mr. Lincoln in the presence of Mr. Cameron in my life. Secondly, I never escorted Mr. Lincoln to the White House, for I was on my way from or in Europe at that time as the military representative of the country, sent by Mr. Buchanan to inspect and report upon the armies of Europe, and did not reach Washington until after the inauguration—I think about the 10th of March, 1861. In fact, I never was in Mr. Cameron's company but once in my life to my knowledge, and that was at a dinner party in the house of my brother, Commodore George A. Magruder, of the United States Navy, in Washington, whilst Mr. Cameron was Secretary of War, about the 16th, 17th, or 18th of March, 1861, when Mr. Cameron offered, in a conversation with me, as I was sitting by his side at the dinner table, to send me to Russia, there to remain until the termination of the impending war, if I would agree to it. I looked upon that as the most disgraceful position an officer could occupy. To stand upon the soil of a foreign country, to receive his pay, fold his arms, and look from a distance upon a deadly conflict of his country men, without taking sides with one or the other, was, I felt, the most ignoble course of all, and I treated Mr. Cameron's offer with the silent contempt which I thought it deserved.

In your note you ask me to state the circumstances under which I did leave Washington for Richmond, Va., at the commencement of the war. I do so with pleasure. The day on which President Lincoln received the telegram from the Governor of Virginia, my native State, declining to send his quota of troops, under the first proclamation, or the day after, or that, Mr. Lincoln sent for me and informed me of that fact. My State had not yet seceded. I informed him that I regretted deeply the course events had taken; that if my State seceded, I was a soldier, obliged to fight either for or against her, and that I would fight for those among whom I was born and bred, my relations and friends, all of whom believed they were right. I stated to him that I was a graduate of West Point, but that West Point was not a charity school; that it was supported as much by the southern people, in proportion to cadets from the South, as by the North in the same proportion; that the Government had always recognized the right of officers to resign unless they were officially charged with crime, and that the obligations to which an officer subscribed were simply to obey the lawful orders of his superiors so long as he held the commission of the Government, and that every officer had this right to resign when he thought proper. Mr. Lincoln acquiesced in the propriety of these views. "But," I added, "Mr. President, I will be perfectly true and faithful to the obligations of my commission as long as I hold it, and you and your family will sleep in safety whenever I am on guard." "Yes," said he, "I know it, for you are an officer of the army and a southern gentleman and incapable of any but honorable conduct." I thanked him warmly and said, "Mr. President, if I do resign, you shall be the first to hear of it after my resignation is placed in the hands of the adjutant. If I can reach you, and I will remain at least twelve hours in Washington after my resignation." "Why," said he, with some surprise, "should you do that?" "Mr. President," I replied, "I wish to be grace fully off with the old love before I am swift ly the new." "I am sorry to lose you," he said with great enthusiasm, "but if you must go I'll help you to be gracefully off with the old love," meaning, I supposed, that he would accept my resignation when the time came. It was [illegible] day or two after this my State seceded. I handed my resignation to Colonel C. F. Smith, commanding, about 9 or 9 o'clock A. M., and repaired at once to the White House. Failing to get admission, I asked a brother officer, who said he would certainly see the President that morning to inform him that I had resigned, which I presume he did, took leave openly of my friends, and found myself at the Long Bridge, in a hack, just three minutes after 9 P. M.—too late, the orders being not to lower the drawbridge after 9. It was a bright moonlight night, and as I got out of the coach I found my own battery guarding the bridge. The men uncovered as I passed through them to see the lieutenant in charge. I asked him if he would be kind enough to lower the drawbridge for me, as I was all packed and ready, and was only three minutes behind the time. He touched his hat and answered courteously: "Colonel, I will lower the drawbridge, but I would do it with far greater pleasure if you were coming from Virginia instead of going to Virginia."

I departed, taking off my hat to my old comrades, some of whom I had commanded for thirty years, and with a sad heart bade them farewell. I stopped a day and a night at Alexandria, and there received the acceptance of my resignation, which I always thought was by order of Mr. Lincoln himself.

This is a circumstantial and correct account of the manner in which I passed from the old service to the new, and any other is false.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. BANKHEAD MAGRUDER.

WALTHAM

WATCHES.

THE EXTENSIVE USE OF THESE WATCHES for the last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers, and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch-wearers, has thoroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these time-keepers.

More than 450,000 of these watches are now ticking for themselves in the pockets of the people—a proof and a guarantee of their superiority over all others.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enable them to produce watches at a price which renders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch, merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent. more for their watches than is necessary.

We are now selling Waltham Watches at less prices in greenbacks, than the gold prices before the war. There is no other manufacture of any kind in the United States of which this can be said.

These time-pieces combine every improvement that a long experience has proved of real practical use. Having had the refusal of nearly every invention in watchmaking originating in this country or in Europe, only those were finally adopted which severe testing by the most skillful artisans in our works, and long use on the part of the public demonstrated to be essential to correct and enduring time-keeping.

Among the many improvements we would particularize:

The invention and use of a centre-pinion of peculiar construction, to prevent damage to the train by the breakage of main springs, is original with the American Watch Company, who, having had the refusal of all other contrivances, adopted Fogg's Patent pinion as being the best and faultless.

Hardened and tempered hair springs, now universally admitted by watchmakers to be the best, are used in all grades of Waltham Watches.

All Waltham Watches have dust-proof caps, protecting the movement from dust and lessening the necessity of the frequent cleaning necessary in other watches.

Our new patent stem-winder, or keyless watch, is already a decided success and a great improvement on any stem-winding watch in the American market, and by far the cheapest watch of its quality now offered to the public. To those living in portions of the United States where watchmakers do not abound, watches with the above mentioned improvements which tend to insure accuracy, cleanliness, durability and convenience, must prove invaluable.

Every watch guaranteed by the Company.

To prevent imposition, buyers should see that every watch should bear either of the following trade marks.

American Watch Co.,	Waltham, Mass.
