JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

ANDREW JOHNSON—INCIDENTS IN THE LIFE OF THE EX PRESIDENT.

The following is an extract from an article in the May number of the XIX Century, from the pen of Gov. Perry, of South Carolina:

President Johnson came to Laurens C. H., South Carolina, in 1827, and remained there two years working as a journeyman tailor. He came from North Carolina, where he was born and served his apprenticeship. Whilst working at Laurens he became engaged to a young lady in the neighborhood, and went out one Sunday morning to ask her mother, who was a widow lady, for the hand of her daughter. He told Gov. Orr that he saw by the old lady's manner that she was not favorably disposed toward him. It was late in the evening before he could muster up courage to "pop the question." When he did so, the old lady told him plainly that her daughter should not marry a tailor and intimated that she suspected he wanted some of her negroes. The young tailor boy and future President of the United States, was so much mortified at the rebuff he had received, that he determined to quit Laurens, and did so the next day.

How unfortunate for the daughter was the ill judgment of the mother. Had she given her consent, her daughter might have been the occupant of the White House, mistress of ceremonies and fashion in Washington, receiving and entertaining foreign ministers and their ladies, instead of being as she is, the humble wife of a poor and obscure man. On the other hand, it might have disappointed the high destiny of the tailor boy. Instead of being President of the United States he might be still pursuing his humble vocation. But this is not very likely. A man with President Johnson's natural endowments, intellectually and morally, could hardly pass through life in this American republic, without elevating himself and acquiring honor and distinction.

It is a remarkable and most wonderful fact, that President Johnson never went to school a day in his life. His father, who was a most worthy and excellent man, filling the office of town constable in Raleigh, North Carolina, messenger of the bank and sexton of a church, died when his son was only two years old. The family were left in poverty, and at the age of ten years, Andrew was bound as an apprentice to the trade of a tailor. Whilst working as an apprentice, some one came into the shop with a book of speeches, and read one to the boys. This speech delighted Andrew Johnson so much that he determined to read himself. The book was given to him, and in this book, with the assistance of his fellow apprentices, he learned his letters and learned to read; and after that a book of some sort was ever his constant companion. His wife taught him to write and cypher after they married. In the meantime he must have had his mind well stored with a great deal of useful reading.

It has been said, and widely circulated, that President Johnson was intemperate. There never was, perhaps, less foundation for such a calumny. He has always been a most temperate man throughout his whole life. This will be testified to by all who knew him intimately, whether friends or foes. Messrs. Burt, Ashemore and other members of Congress, who served with him for many years, assure me that no such thing was ever suspected whilst he was in Congress. Col. Williams of Greenville, Tenn, who has known President Johnson all his life and resided with him in the same villiage, and between whom there is a bitter feud, told me not long since that no one ever saw Johnson drunk or suspected him of drinking to excess. In all my visits to the President, in the day time and at night, I am sure he was never under the influence of spirits or wine in the slightest degree. When inaugurated as Vice President he was in feeble health, and just before making his speech he was advised to take a glass of brandy. Not being accustomed to the use of spirituous liquors it did affect him, and the effect was noticed. This first gave birth to slander.

HOW TRUE.—Don Piatt writes to the Cincinnati Commercial:

"The wonderful energy exhibited by the Southern people in struggling up from the utter ruin that followed the late civil war is one of the marvels of the day. While contending against the blundering, unjust acts of reconstruction, originating in hate and continued through greed, that deprived them of a voice and vote in laws now involving the business interests of the entire country, the people have struggled manfully and with success to a certain extent, to restore the national prosperity of their region. In this no aid whatever has been given by the general Government.—On the contrary its acts have been aggressive to the last extent, and it is no exaggeration to say that the Government at Washington has wrought more injury to the South since the war than it was able to effect during the conflict of arms.

"It is the strangest folly that ever effected a blind people."

It is generally supposed that the English people are heavily taxed. A British farmer gets twice as much for a bushel of grain as a Minnesota farmer does, and for each dollar he gets for it he can buy twice as much of the comforts of life as the Minnesota man can, making one bushel of grain there equal to four here. If we did not have the richest country in the world—where the most could be raised for the least labor—we could not stand it a year.

The Free Trader this week insists that "there is absolutely nothing to prevent us from building iron ships more cheaply than the English, except our tariff." When we are ready to build iron ships 15 per cent. cheaper than those of Great Britain, and knock off the duties on ships' materials, we shall see a revival of commerce.—New York Express.

NEW ENGLAND.—New England rules the United States and Boston rules New England. Here is Wendell Phillips description of Boston:

"Boston is a city in which every tenth person is a criminal, and every seventh a pauper. Three quarters of our farms are mortgaged for drink, two-thirds of the pulpits are filled with drunkards, and the bench of justice is nearly vacant, because one half of the lawyers are disbarred."

There is a Johnsonian in Washington who rejoices in the appropriate name of Flagg, and is the same city a liquor seller named Bamboo.
