HORRIBLE CONTEST.

A DRINKING DUEL.

The New York Sunday Dispatch says: "A fatal drinking match came off in Williamsburgh a few days ago, which has not yet been made public. It appears that there was a dispute between an old French physician and the proprietor of one of the largest breweries in the place, as to which of the two could drink the most liquor and carry it off. They decided to test the question by a trial, said test to be a match at drinking liquors at a convenient saloon, the party giving up the trial first to be considered a second class drinker, and pay for a grand supper. Both parties to this novel and disgusting contest were large men, the physician being able to turn the scales at 280 pounds, while the brewer was perfectly mammoth in proportions,—a perfect Gambrinus,—weighing fully 350 pounds. A large crowd of professional and amateur drinkists were on hand when the match commenced, and the bets were freely taken in favor of the brewer, the German element predominating. The first instalment of four bottles of what was labelled 'Bourbon Whisky' were disposed of, each man drinking the same as his opponent, and at the same time. The whisky gave them renewed vitality, apparently, for they laughed and talked right merrily, albeit they began to give evidence of having cultivated a crop of fur on their tongues; still they drank about once every five minutes, and drank deep and deeper. They changed their tipple to claret, as a tonic, and here the Frenchman seemed to be more at home. It did not suit the German so well, however, and it was soon changed to sherry, after three bottles had been gulped down by each. The sherry was only palatable while two bottles lasted—one each.

"Their eyes began to show that peculiarly glassy glare seen only in those upon whom the effects of liquor have gained ascendency, but their strong physique enabled them to keep their seats, and their hands showed very little shakiness. They called for brandy, of which they partook a little more sparingly than of the other liquors, seemingly aware than while they had no fear of the previous draughts in which they had been indulging, there was 'death in the bowl' that contained this poison.

"The German reached out cautiously to the bottle to replenish his glass. The Frenchman endeavored to follow suit. The effort on the part of the latter was futile—he could not move his arm; he endeavored to reach out his other hand, but it fell off the arm of his chair and hung powerless. He straightened back in his chair slowly, his body made a convulsive movement, his face became horribly distorted, his eyes seemed as if they would fly out of their sockets, his tongue rolled out of his mouth, a few gasps, his body trembled all over like a shaken leaf—he was dead!

"While his funeral was on its way to the cemetery, the German also died, the coroner signing certificates ascribing death in both instances to heart disease.

DELUSIONS OF GIRLHOOD.—The following is a bit of Fanny Fern's experience:

I used to believe in school friendship. That delusion ended when Arabella Triplet told mutual friends that I was years and years her senior, knowing what a terrible fib she told.

I used to suffer pangs of anger because of woes of beggars. Since that I have seen one unstrap his leg in an area, and run off gaily on two legs of his own. An other threw a loaf of bread in the gutter, and I saw a third who had all day been yelling, "Please assist the blind," carefully examining his collection of ten cent stamps by the light of a friendly applewoman's candle.

I used to put the greatest faith in lover's vows. Now, I do not believe a man means anything he says to a woman, unless it is something disagreeable.

I used to believe in faithful servants. Since then I have hired girls from intelligence offices, and lost all my handkerchiefs but one.

I used to believe in beauty. Since then I have seen a bewitching belle take off half her hair, all her teeth, the best of her complexion, two pounds of cotton batting and a corset.

The country in Europe which is less favorable to the development of "self help" among the working people is Belgium. At Gand, a town of 120,000 population, 75,000 people live by the sweat of their brow, and it is estimated that two-thirds of these people are habitually patrons of the pawnbrokers' shops. There are streets given up to pawnbroking, and it is one of the most profitable businesses in the country. Any disasters in the markets, which these Belgium towns supply, enriches the brokers, while it makes the workers the slaves of those who lend them the means of life at the usual frightful usury. The most disastrous form of pledges at the pawnbrokers is the loan advanced upon the security of wages. There are numerous respectable institutions in all the great cities, which make this species of loan their business, but it seriously injures the working classes. In 1848, one of the most notable instances of the manner in which these pawnbroking institutions are patronized occurred in Flanders. The linen market was flooded and the Flemish market began to starve. The city of Gand took suggestion on the number of pledges given to pawnbrokers during this crisis. It amounted to over 100,000. As this number was so near the city's population, it seemed to indicate that at least two-thirds of the working people habitually patronized their "uncle."

It is said that the Danites, 500 Mormons, who secretly committed murder upon offending Gentiles for years, in obedience to the orders of Brigham Young and his Cabinet, have, in their turn, been placed under the ban, being considered now as more dangerous than useful, and are rapidly and mysteriously disappearing. Indeed, there are but few of them left, and they mount themselves mounted and in constant danger of their lives.

A Massachusetts editor says: "A man who is owing us a little bill said he would call last week and pay us if he was alive. He still appears on the street, but, as he did not call, it is naturally supposed he is dead and is walking around to save funeral expenses."

Alex. H. H. Stuart seems like to be the next Conservative candidate for Governor of Virginia.

SWEET QUININE
Is a Recent Improvement.
Replaces the use of the BITTER SULPHATE QUININE, with which all are familiar.
Done for done, it is WARRANTED
Fully equal in every way to Sulphate Quinine,
AND, LIKE IT, IS THE ONE
Great, Positive, and Unfailing
CURE
For all Diseases of Malarious Origin.
Fever and Ague,
Intermittent Fever,
Chill Fever,
Remittent Fever,
Bilious Fever,
Dumb Ague,
and the long train of disorders following those when neglected.

SWEET QUININE
is made entirely from Peruvian Bark (or is Bitter Quinine), therefore is of Vegetable origin, and not a Mineral poison, but on the contrary is proved to be one of the elements found in the blood of all healthy persons.

SWEET QUININE
acts on an antidote so, as well as a cure for, materials of miasmatic poison, the absorption of which by the lungs causes Intermittent Fevers, etc. The evil advantage claimed for over the use of old Bitter Quinine is the entire absence of the latter, provide vast bitterness, which in the latter is an insurmountable objection to its use with most persons, and always with children.

SWEET QUININE
Is in two forms—in POWDER, for the use of Physicians and Druggists, and FLUID, for use in the family and for the general public.
