

The Daily Sentinel

VOL. V. RALEIGH, N. C., THURSDAY EVENING, JULY 21, 1870. NO. 286.

W. H. JONES & CO.

AUCTION

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
RALEIGH, N. C.

FOR SALE
In House wrapping paper, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In C. Whiting and Cotton Yarn, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Flour, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Sugar, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Coffee, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Tea, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Spices, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Oils, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Soap, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Candles, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Perfumery, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Stationery, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Books, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Maps, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Toys, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Games, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

FOR SALE
In Miscellaneous Goods, W. H. JONES & CO. Com. Merchants. ap 9-12

W. H. JONES & CO.

GROCERS

52. FAYETTEVILLE ST.

HAVE IN STOCK A LARGE STOCK OF
First and Fancy Groceries, probably the best assortment in the City.
July 14

W. H. JONES & CO.
HEAVY AND FANCY
GROCERS.

Have in store a full stock of goods which they are ready to sell at lowest cash prices.
100 lbs. Sugar different grades.
100 lbs. Coffee.
100 lbs. Tea.
100 lbs. Spices.
100 lbs. Oils.
100 lbs. Soap.
100 lbs. Candles.
100 lbs. Perfumery.
100 lbs. Stationery.
100 lbs. Books.
100 lbs. Maps.
100 lbs. Toys.
100 lbs. Games.
100 lbs. Miscellaneous Goods.

July 14

A. G. LEE & CO.

WHOLESALE GROCERS & COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

MARKET SQUARE, RALEIGH, N. C.

1,500 BUSHELS PRIME WHITE CORN
Just received. A. G. LEE & CO.

50 Barrels various grades of Flour.
A. G. LEE & CO.

5,000 Pounds Bulk Sugar and Shou-dane.
A. G. LEE & CO.

50 Barrels Blue Port, choice Molasses, old and new crop in hogsheads and barrels, various. 50 lbs Family Lard - Leaf, Choice.
A. G. LEE & CO.

100 Barrels Clean Western Hay, just arrived. Cheap - good in order.
A. G. LEE & CO.

OLD RARE BRANDY on assignment.
A. G. LEE & CO.

FINE APPLE BRANDY just received.
A. G. LEE & CO.

N. O. COGNAC WHISKY, in barrels, good and cheap.
A. G. LEE & CO.

LYNN ADAMS,

WHOLESALE & RETAIL GROCER.

507. MARKET SQUARE, SOUTH SIDE, RALEIGH, N. C.

COTTON FACTOR, COMMISSION, SHIPPING AND FORWARDING MERCHANT, AND DEALER IN Iron, Hardware, Plows, Shoes, Dry Goods and Cotton Yarn.
No. 5 Market Square, South Side, RALEIGH, N. C.

25 HANDS WANTED to work on a farm four miles from the city, good wages and comfortable quarters. Apply to LYNN ADAMS.

5,000 LBS. BACON.
100 Barrels Choice and N. C. Flour. Genuine Cardenas Molasses, 50 lbs. for $1.00.
LYNN ADAMS.

25 HANDS WANTED to work on a farm four miles from the city, good wages and comfortable quarters. Apply to
LYNN ADAMS.

HAMS, HAMS.
1,000 Lbs. Fine Cured Hams. Just received.
URBURGH & DODD.

MOLASSES, MOLASSES.
3 casks. New Crop Cuba Molasses, for sale low.
URBURGH & DODD.

LOUR, FLOUR, FLOUR.
10 Barrels Extra No. 1, just arrived.
URBURGH & DODD.

COFFEE, COFFEE.
20 Bags Choice No. 1 Coffee for sale by
URBURGH & DODD.

ALF GRAPES OF SUGAR FOR SALE BY
URBURGH & DODD.

OLD Dominion Halls all sizes.
URBURGH & DODD.

A BOTTLE Supply of that splendid Bulk A. O. S.
Just received by
URBURGH & DODD.

A 150 a barrel of the best Layer Raisins.
Just received by
URBURGH & DODD.

LARD, LARD.
When it's sold cheaper than the cheapest.
G. T. STONACH.

FINE APPLE BRANDY.
2000 years old on dress.
G. T. STONACH.

IRISH LIME.
100 Barrels for sale.
G. T. STONACH.

IRISH LIME.
100 Barrels for sale.
G. T. STONACH.

IRISH LIME.
100 Barrels for sale.
G. T. STONACH.

The Daily Sentinel.

JOSEPH THURBER, JR., EDITOR.

(From the New York Journal of Commerce.)
THE FRANCE-PRUSSIAN WAR AND AMERICAN SYMPATHY.

American sympathy is divided between France and Prussia in the war now entered upon, but it is not very warm, probably, either way. Of a war which is almost as much a result of the ambition of the one party as of the desire of the other to pick a quarrel, out of the arena of half might declare a kinder feeling for Prussia, and one-half for France. There is nothing in the nature of the quarrel and nothing in the current of national sympathy that would incline the American people, as a whole, to sympathize with either one of the belligerents. We have a large, independent and excellent population, who have come hither from the North German and South German states. They are almost unanimous for Prussia, and we certainly have a profound respect for their opinions. But we also have a considerable percentage of Frenchmen among our adopted citizens or residents, between whom and our German friends it would be invidious to make a distinction on the score of moral, business, social qualities. The numerical superiority of Germans over Frenchmen in this country, which gladly welcomes strangers from all lands - an extent, or should extend, equal protection to all - should have no weight in determining the list of the American mind towards Prussia. For Prussia, as a growing military power, this country has great admiration; and our people do not forget that she did not interfere against the United States during the civil war. - To the martial spirit and achievements of France it is also impossible to deny a similar tribute; but we cannot obliterate the painful impressions left by the efforts of Napoleon to divide this republic, and to take advantage of our calamity to capture Mexico. But when we recall these facts, we do not recall the noble and gallant efforts of France in our revolutionary war; and that reminiscence almost neutralizes the emotion of resentment which we feel against her for her later unkindness. We have a great trade with North Germany, and we also deal largely with France, so that our commercial interests do not dictate how our sympathies should go. But on all these accounts American opinion ranges themselves according to their personal feelings on both sides. It is in our imagination to say that the courage of our bravest France and Prussia is widely depicted among them. We are shocked at the thought that such rivers of blood must be shed, and such millions of treasure be wasted, and so much talent and energy be diverted from the pursuits of peace. To make of France or Prussia the undisputed chief power in Europe, for that is all that the contest will determine. This humanity will gain by it, that any more liberty and happiness will come to the people of France or of Prussia, or to people anywhere, after it is all over, we do not believe. It is a struggle of republicans against monarchs, and it is a struggle of the small, warring states to arise in any corner of Europe in consequence of the war - we could not withhold our Godspeed from that one of the two contestants who held out the hope of such a consummation. But the strife is only between a king and an emperor. Nobody is to be released from political thralldom - so far as we can see - however the war turns out. Should Prussia win, she would only be the stronger to carry out her great idea of absorbing all the other North and South German states, and proclaiming King William, or his successor, Emperor of Germany. Should France triumph, the Napoleonic dynasty would be, to all appearances, more firmly seated on the throne than ever. Defeat either for France or for Prussia would not destroy Napoleonism in the one, or Blucherism in the other. Neither power, however victorious it might be in one way, (that is more great battles, but the ability (judging) as we have to judge, from their military resources and capabilities) to exterminate the other; and other European nations would find it for their interest to interfere to prevent that result should be attempted. The result therefore, we forecast it, will be that of a truce, a truce in a position of weakness or humiliation from which she will not recover as easily as Russia recovered from the Crimean disaster, or as Austria is rebuilding her fortunes after the Sedan defeat. We hear the remark constantly made that Napoleon risks the hope of a continuance of his dynasty on the hazard of this war. To be sure, he does put it in peril, and this is a disadvantage compared to the King of Prussia, the situation of whose heirs to the throne seems to be as well settled as any future human event can be. But, if the war is generally won by France, and she is beaten, defeat will not, as a matter of course, lessen the popular love of Napoleon; and if, on the contrary, intensely it will be the bond of a common misfortune. For the King of Prussia, the fate of France has the French Emperor. He would not undertake it without a clear conviction that the French people will. In truth, as we read the news, the Napoleonic dynasty would be more endangered by declining to fight with Prussia at the present opportunity, than by fighting with her. This fact should be borne in mind by all persons who try to estimate the effects of the war upon imperial succession in France.

We have said that the American people deplore this contest. But, at the same time, they are aware that sooner or later it must have taken place. War being inevitable, we think on the whole, that it had better occur now than at any other time; for with its termination there will probably come a reduction of the great standing armies of Europe, and the whole world will gain by the regulation of millions of men to the paths of industry and peace. And among our military men - if not among our masses of peaceful citizens - we doubt not there is a strong curiosity, or existent with a general regret, that the dread trial should be made, to see whether the Prussian or French military system is the better, whether the Frenchman of today is a match, or more or less than a match, for the Prussian of the period, and whether the needle gun or the Chassepot is the most effective weapon. These considerations will impart a great interest to the war, in an American point of view, while they have undiminished the sorrow occasioned by the thought that hundreds of thousands have been sacrificed in making the terrible experiment.

It is a struggle of republicans against monarchs, and it is a struggle of the small, warring states to arise in any corner of Europe in consequence of the war - we could not withhold our Godspeed from that one of the two contestants who held out the hope of such a consummation. But the strife is only between a king and an emperor. Nobody is to be released from political thralldom - so far as we can see - however the war turns out. Should Prussia win, she would only be the stronger to carry out her great idea of absorbing all the other North and South German states, and proclaiming King William, or his successor, Emperor of Germany. Should France triumph, the Napoleonic dynasty would be, to all appearances, more firmly seated on the throne than ever. Defeat either for France or for Prussia would not destroy Napoleonism in the one, or Blucherism in the other. Neither power, however victorious it might be in one way, (that is more great battles, but the ability (judging) as we have to judge, from their military resources and capabilities) to exterminate the other; and other European nations would find it for their interest to interfere to prevent that result should be attempted. The result therefore, we forecast it, will be that of a truce, a truce in a position of weakness or humiliation from which she will not recover as easily as Russia recovered from the Crimean disaster, or as Austria is rebuilding her fortunes after the Sedan defeat. We hear the remark constantly made that Napoleon risks the hope of a continuance of his dynasty on the hazard of this war. To be sure, he does put it in peril, and this is a disadvantage compared to the King of Prussia, the situation of whose heirs to the throne seems to be as well settled as any future human event can be. But, if the war is generally won by France, and she is beaten, defeat will not, as a matter of course, lessen the popular love of Napoleon; and if, on the contrary, intensely it will be the bond of a common misfortune. For the King of Prussia, the fate of France has the French Emperor. He would not undertake it without a clear conviction that the French people will. In truth, as we read the news, the Napoleonic dynasty would be more endangered by declining to fight with Prussia at the present opportunity, than by fighting with her. This fact should be borne in mind by all persons who try to estimate the effects of the war upon imperial succession in France.

It is a struggle of republicans against monarchs, and it is a struggle of the small, warring states to arise in any corner of Europe in consequence of the war - we could not withhold our Godspeed from that one of the two contestants who held out the hope of such a consummation. But the strife is only between a king and an emperor. Nobody is to be released from political thralldom - so far as we can see - however the war turns out. Should Prussia win, she would only be the stronger to carry out her great idea of absorbing all the other North and South German states, and proclaiming King William, or his successor, Emperor of Germany. Should France triumph, the Napoleonic dynasty would be, to all appearances, more firmly seated on the throne than ever. Defeat either for France or for Prussia would not destroy Napoleonism in the one, or Blucherism in the other. Neither power, however victorious it might be in one way, (that is more great battles, but the ability (judging) as we have to judge, from their military resources and capabilities) to exterminate the other; and other European nations would find it for their interest to interfere to prevent that result should be attempted. The result therefore, we forecast it, will be that of a truce, a truce in a position of weakness or humiliation from which she will not recover as easily as Russia recovered from the Crimean disaster, or as Austria is rebuilding her fortunes after the Sedan defeat. We hear the remark constantly made that Napoleon risks the hope of a continuance of his dynasty on the hazard of this war. To be sure, he does put it in peril, and this is a disadvantage compared to the King of Prussia, the situation of whose heirs to the throne seems to be as well settled as any future human event can be. But, if the war is generally won by France, and she is beaten, defeat will not, as a matter of course, lessen the popular love of Napoleon; and if, on the contrary, intensely it will be the bond of a common misfortune. For the King of Prussia, the fate of France has the French Emperor. He would not undertake it without a clear conviction that the French people will. In truth, as we read the news, the Napoleonic dynasty would be more endangered by declining to fight with Prussia at the present opportunity, than by fighting with her. This fact should be borne in mind by all persons who try to estimate the effects of the war upon imperial succession in France.

PETERSBURG ADVERTISEMENTS

TO THE MERCHANTS OF NORTH CAROLINA

WE CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO OUR STOCK OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Adapted to your trade, which will be found large and commanding, and consists in part of the following list of all well known brands of

BLEACHED COTTONS,
BLEACHED JEANS,
KENTUCKY JEANS,
MANN DOORS,
CALICOES,
COTTONADES,
UNBLEACHED COTTONS,
UNBLEACHED JEANS,
DENIMS,
LINEN DRILLS,
SHIRTING STRIPES,
PLAID COTTONS,
FANCY CASIMERS.

ALSO,
A FULL LINE OF

YANKEE NOTIONS

ALL OF OUR GOODS ARE BOUGHT OF THE FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC MERCHANTS. PLEASE WE ARE PLEASED TO OFFER YOU THE LOWEST PRICES IN BALANCE FOR CASH OR BY NOTE.

We respectfully solicit orders, guaranteeing to give satisfaction in every respect.

We especially call your attention to the fact that there are six Cotton Factories in this place manufacturing every style of cotton cloth adapted to the wants of the Southern people, and that in this class of goods we can offer you prices that the same goods can be bought in the United States.

TERMS - CASH!
DAVIS DRAKE & CO.
July 6-1870
James or Der Goods, Petersburg, Va.

WALSH'S HOUSE

REDUCTION OF RENT

THE consideration of the general decline in cost of all commodities appearing in the following list, the price of Walsh's House is reduced from $350 Per Day to $250 Per Day.

It is determined that nothing will be left open in the future to make the "Walsh" what it has been in the past. Walsh's House will be a permanent and reliable establishment for the traveling public.

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

On the European Plan - Open at all hours.

FINE UNDERGROUND ROOMS - TO BE LET. This establishment has been built on a high and airy site, and is furnished throughout with the most complete and modern appointments. Ladies' parlors and drawing rooms with every convenience for the traveling public.

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

SOMETHING NEW AND ATTRACTIVE

M. Honeley's Confectionery.

ROBERTA BROWN'S OLD BRANDY

MOORE'S PURELY VEGETABLE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

WALSH'S HOUSE

WALSH'S HOUSE, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870

LEACH BROS.

GROCERS & COM. MERCHANTS.

No. 2, Chesapeake Row, RALEIGH, N. C.

WE SHALL RECEIVE IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS a full stock of our special stock, and our customers can have their orders filled from THE LARGEST STOCK OF FANCY AND CHEAP GROCERIES in central N. C.

NEW CROP N. C. FLOUR, THE BEST OF THE SEASON.

July 14-1870

LEACH BROS.

GROCERS & COM. MERCHANTS.

No. 2, Chesapeake Row, RALEIGH, N. C.

July 14-1870

LEACH BROS.

GROCERS & COM. MERCHANTS.

No. 2, Chesapeake Row, RALEIGH, N. C.

July 14-1870

LEACH BROS.

GROCERS & COM. MERCHANTS.

No. 2, Chesapeake Row, RALEIGH, N. C.

July 14-1870

SPRING SPECIALITIES

OUR STOCK IS LARGE AND COMPLETE, AND WE ARE SURE TO HAVE EVERYTHING THAT YOU WANT AT THE LOWEST PRICES.

FURNISHING ESTABLISHMENT.
We invite special attention to our large and very complete stock of HATS, for Men, Boys and children of every description.

SOLE LEATHER TRUNKS, VALISES, AND TRAVELING BAGS IN GREAT VARIETY.

E. S. ANDERSON & CO.
107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

ARMISTEAD JONES,
Attorney and Counselor,
RALEIGH, N. C.

Practices in the State and Federal Courts. Prompt Attention given to all Professional Business.

LOUISIANA CASE.
I have two lots for sale, containing half acre more or less each, on the edge of the city, on the premises which had been owned by the late Mr. J. W. Moore. For further particulars call on me, or write to me at my office, No. 107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

A. F. WOODRUFF,
July 14-1870

MRS. MARGARET W. MOORE,
School for Young Ladies, at the residence of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Moore, Orange County, N. C. The school is open from the 1st of August to the 1st of October. For Circulars apply to Mrs. M. P. Moore, No. 107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

RALEIGH FEMALE SEMINARY.
THE FIRST SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will open on the 1st of August, 1870, and will continue for one year. For Circulars apply to Mrs. M. P. Moore, No. 107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

CHANGES DURING ADVANCE.
For Circulars apply to Mrs. M. P. Moore, No. 107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA.
THE NEXT SESSION WILL BEGIN August 1st, 1870. For Circulars apply to Mrs. M. P. Moore, No. 107 Fayetteville St., Raleigh, N. C.

WALTHAM WATCHES.
WALTHAM WATCHES, (EXCHANGE PLACE), JERSEY CITY, N. J.

July 14-1870