'TIS SWEET, THOUGH SAD, AT EVEN.

'Tis sweet, though sad, at even,
When the fire's light is low,
To gather 'round the hearthstone
In the ember's fitful glow,
And call from memory's keeping
The cherished ones of yore—
The beautiful and lovely,
Who dwell with us no more.

Those bright and happy children
That used to please us so,
Like buds at Autumn's coming,
Th y perished long ago.
Darker and sadder seasons
Who blasted their fair homes of yore—
Ah, me, they too departed,
And left us with the flowers.

As these come thronging round us,
From friendship's broken chain,
We half forget our sorrow
In seeing them again;
Once more their eyes seem sorrowing
In a dear twilight,
As if this were more dreaming
Of earthly worldly delight.

Then, in the close of even,
When all the past is well
The circle seems to lengthen
Into a prayer-time still,
Dear memory brings around us
The friends of other years,
Till our minds grow full of thinking
And our eyes grow dim with tears.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN CATARACT.

Mr. Richard Brown writes to the London Times some news concerning the recently discovered waterfall on the Potaro river, British Guiana, which is over seven hundred feet in height. The examination of it was made in April last by Mr. Brown, in company with Sir G. Young, Mr. Charles Mitchell and Mr. King. The description says:

The Fall has a clear descent, according to barometical observations taken simultaneously by Mr. Brown at the bottom, and by my colleague, Mr. Mitchell, at the top, of seven hundred and fifty feet. Above the Potaro glides smoothly in a slight depression of the table of conglomerate sandstone and disappears over the edge in a body which we estimated at eighty yards in width, and of depth uncertain in the centre, but shallowing rapidly toward either bank. When Mr. Brown discovered the Fall in April the rocky channel was completely covered, and the stream must have had a width of at least one hundred yards. At present the diminishing volume, and as the decrease continues it will continue to do so till October, when only the central and deeper portion, about one third of the whole will remain. The best time, therefore, for a visit is in spring, at the end of what appears to be the rainy season of this elevated tract.

As we saw the Fall I cannot imagine anything more beautiful. The central portion, which is never dry, forms a small horseshoe or entering angle, and the water in this part preserves its consistency for a short distance from the ledge. But everywhere else, and here also, at a few feet from the top, all semblance of water disappears; it breaks up, or blossoms into the foam or spray which, resulting in the well-known rocket-like forms of the Stashbach and similar water-falls, but multiplied a thousand times, into a small dark pool, over a semi circular curtain of precipice dimly hollowed by the action of the spray. The cavern behind the Fall is the home of thousands of swallows, which issue from it in the morning, and are seen returning in their multitudes at night. The Fall itself is one vast descending column of a fine dry-looking, snow-white substance, bearing a resemblance, in color and consistency, to the snow of an avalanche, but surpassing all avalanches I have seen in size, and in the beauty of the forms taken by the material of the Fall. Rainbows of great splendor were observed from the front of the Fall in the morning, one from the summit in the afternoon; but this last reverted, forming a colored loop or ring, into which the whole mass seemed to precipitate itself and disappear, and then out underneath, black and foaming, at the gorge and outlet of the pool.

EMIGRATION TO THE SOUTHERN STATES.

Colonel Sheldon Duncan has recently written a letter to Governor J. W. Stevenson, of Kentucky, in reference to inviting emigration to the Southern States. Col. Duncan, who is now in England, as the Chairman of the committee appointed to present the advantages of the South to capitalists and emigrants, says that the Legislatures have not provided sufficient means to promote the transportation of foreign laborers to this country, and to furnish them with employment immediately on their arrival. He also says that the plan adopted by the British government, to secure emigration to its own colonies, offers greater inducements than those presented by the Southern States. The organizations now at work in England for the colonies, and all kinds of emigrants free, and provides for them temporary shelter and sustenance until situations can be obtained. At any time within a month after arrival, a free passage is given on any of the railroads to such points as the emigrants desire to locate on. To secure full protection to females, all single women are placed under the charge of a matron, both on the voyage and after their arrival. The emigrants, except those who go out as domestics, sign an agreement to reimburse the passage money, $60, to the Government within two years. On the repayment of this sum the emigrant receives 40 acres of land for each grown person, and 20 acres for each child between one and twelve years of age. Those who choose to pay $60 in advance, sign an agreement to return $60 in a year's time and receive the same allotment of land. The Government also assures emigrants of speedy employment for various trades; mechanics and skilled laborers at wages of $2 to $3 a day in gold; shepherds $120 to $200 a year, with rations; grooms $200 to $250; farm servants $125 to $150; servant maids from $100 to $200. The weekly rations are 6 pounds of flour, 12 pounds of beef, 2 pounds sugar, and a quarter of a pound of tea for a man and his wife, and half the above to a single person. Colonel Duncan advises that the Legislature of Kentucky should adopt a similar plan.—Wil. Star.

Spasmodic realizing absolute truth of the proverb, that "trouble never comes single," in addition to her other overwhelming difficulties she has on her hands a rebellion in Algeria, and to replace the troops lately drawn from that province others have been perforce returned to maintain the French authority.

The gold money circulated in this country is valued at 130,000,000 men, but that of Great Britain is vastly greater, being about $6 400,000,000 of man.

Census of Western cities: Milwaukee 71,440, Quincy 24,330, Peoria 22,849, Muscatine 14,000, Fond du Lac 10,892, Racine 12,778, Galesburg 12,600, Rockford 11,049, Burlington 13,035, Aurora 11,100.

A chartered company, with a capital of $30,000,000, has been organized in St. Louis for the purpose of supplying the citizens of that city with pure and wholesome drinking water.
