WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1871.

"GREAT MORAL TRIUMPH The two old sinners—we liked to have said devils of the press, Greely and Bennett, shivering on the shores of eternity are rejoicing that Mr. Issac Vanderbilt, millionaire, was recently imprisoned in the tombs of New York, Vanderbilt and Braisted were two of the officers of the Staten Island Perry Company, who owned the unfortunate "Westfield," whose boiler exploded, killing nearly one hundred persons. The two officers above named, and the negro engineer were arrested and imprisoned. The law entitled them to bail: and after epending a few hours in iall they were admitted to bail upon the great writ which Pearson refused to grant to imprisoned men last summer. We are sorry," says Bonnett, now is the 80th year of his sins, "that a writ to appear before the ignorant and till terms from the supreme court spared this wealthy gentleman the pleasure of spending a night in one of the hideous, verminhaunted cells of this prison. The few children, breaking open houses, firing upon hours he would have spent in dorance vile people for whom they have no warrants would have given him a valuable experi ence of the treatment which poorer men, to this Black Hole WITHOUT WARRANT arrested on the suspicion of crimes far the most respectable citizens. This old sinner does not rejoice over the punishment and imprisonment of Vanderbilt as a culprit, but because he was rich, did he rejoice to see him in a toathsome prison.

If men are to be imprisoned for their riches the south will not be much punished. Bennett and Greelev would both fall in for a share of prison discipline if men are to be punished for their riches. Hennett, instead of sorrowing over it, should reinles that Mr Vandachilt is a millionaire and was able to give ball according to law. If Vanderbilt's stock in this company had been owned by the inborers and working men of New York, the result would have been the same-the boiler would have bursted, lives would have been sacrificed. It should be a matter of comfort and rejoicing to Greeley and Bennett, that Vanderbilt is a million are and able to answer in damages to the mained and unfortuned of the steamer "Westfield a As to glosting over the imprisonment of a man because of his money and not of his crime, it is showing man's depravity in a new light,
