THE NOMINEE FOR OPPERNOR Judge A. B. Merrimon, of Buainsted on the first bullet by the largest and ablest Convention that ever blad in North Carolina, He received 20 votes out of 108-s most flattering us than eighty eight counties. We take this to be a decided indication that Judge ferrimon is the man for the coming contest, above all others who were eligible to such a tremendous meeting, the vast, unbounded enthusiasm, the zeal and harmony that prevailed, the unanimity of ent that pervaded the whole body, the readiness to keep in abeyance all personal favoritism, and to select the proper ther consideration entering into the deincludes of course especity and honestytremendous triumph over the lawless, thieving bordes in the next election. The lectrical words of the immortal Nelson may be used appropriately now-" Nonra CAROLINA REPECTS RYERY MAN TO DO BIS DUTT." This done, and the hills and valleys will rejoice, and coming genera tions will bless the memory of the faith fut smid the faithless.

Judge Merrimon is about 46 years of age, of good presence and superior capacity. He is an able lawyer, was a capital Judge when on the bench, and is said to be one of the most consummate political conveners and debators in North Carolina. He will enter the campaign with zeal and confidence, and wherever he goes will arouse and fire the people, As great as Is our contempt for Smelfungus, we can but pity him if it should fall to his lot to meet Judge Merrimon in debate. He would be literally flayed-his political epidermies would be irritated bef yand measure. We may warn him for his own good in the words of Thomas Campbell, altered " slightly " to suit the occa-

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR. If the white men of North Carolina will rise in this tremendous crisis to the full height of their duty and responsibility, the douth knell of radical power in the state will be rung out. With nearly forty housen'd registered majority, all that is personary to lastire the completest triumph is sernest work and hearty so opera. tion. If every man in the state, who holds in utter and eternal detestation the rad's cal party that has wrought his ruin, and heaped upon him a mountain load of taxation that is foreing him to toil and moil like a galley-slave, without any hope of relief other than the ballot-box affords, ill do his utmost from this time until election, he will obtain that redress of strongs and relief from appression which he has so long and so vainly snught.

A failure at this juncture to act well his part, will musin a brand of shame upon in migh times of calamity is, to say the least, very unpatriolic; may, it is to be recreant to self and family and country.

If every son of North Carolina who h opposed to Caldwell and his crew will oth work and vote for the nominees of the Greensboro' Convention, such a mighty change will take place in a few years from such action that it would at most amount to a transformation. If North Carolina, so long smitten and se cursed by the blighting influence of Radical rule, shall once more be freed from the terrible bombus that him ground her to the earth, then she will rise to her full statue, and glory crowned and arrayed her place, as she will then richly deserve, perpetua. We are cominded of Milpicture. "Methiake," wrote the great oes, "I see in my mind a noble and pulment nation rousing borself and pulsant nation rousing herself like a strong man after sleep, and shaking his invincible locks; me thinks I see her as an eagle mowing her mighty youth and kindling her undazzled eyes at the full middley beam pureing and unyouth and kindling her undexzled eyes at the full midday beam; purging and un-scaling her long abused sight at the foun-tals itself of heavenly radiance."

Then, let us all, the young and the old and the middle-aged-let us all resolve come before the General Conference with heart and hand, with might and main to liber for the recovery of our and go forth to victory. Let us take to nurselves in this fight, each for himself, the noble semiment of the same immortal author from where we have just quoted :
