WORTH KNOWING. One pound of green copperas, costing seven cents, dissolved in one quart of water, and poured down a water closet, will effectually concentrate and destroy the foulest smells. On board ships and steamboats, about hotels and other public places, there is nothing so nice to purify the air. Simple green copperas, dissolved under the bed in any being erected for the accommodation of thing that will hold water, will render a hospital, or other places for the sick, free form unpleasant smetls. In fish markets, slaughter-houses, sinks, and wherever som of North Carolina, Gov. THE VOTE OF NORTH CAROLINA.—Th ollowing is a full report of the remark of Hon. D. M. Barringer, Chairman of the North Carolina delegation, on casting the vote of that State in the National Demo eratic Convention:

Mu. PRESIDENT :- We represent a a few graceful remarks, stating that he onest State and a patriotic people, arlently devoted to the principles of repub lican liberty from the earliest period of her history. Recent events in the arbitrary enforcement of despotic power by of the late civil war, have severely taught us still more, by such sad experience, to cherish all the guarantees of well regulated liberty. Habeas corpus the strict subordination of the military to the civil power-official integrity and accountability-impartial trial by a jury of our poers adependent and incorruptible judiciary and firm administration of the law upon all slike-the freedom of the white man as well as the black-local self-government, as opposed to centralization and the absorption of powers never intended to be surrendred by the people in the lim ited Constitution adopted for their own government. (Applause.) These are some of the great fundament al principles which the people of North Carolina believe to be essential in a free government, and which they have learned through a bitter experience more highly to appreciate.

With deep regret and under wide-spread suffering, humiliation and oppression we have seen all these muniments of our freedom gradually, but surely broken down by military authority, personal government and a great central power at Washington overshadowing all the rights of the States and the liberties of the people. We feel that under the false and hollow invocation of that cant phrase "Let us have pesco," there is no peace and none intended, and that there is but on step more to be taken in political hypoc risy to declare that Compire c'est la pais, "the empire is peace," and to establish an pire in name, as well as in fact, upon ruins of Republican liberty. [Ap-

To arrest these approaches, both insidi ous and reckless, to personal and imperia and despotic government, and restore, as far as may be now possible, the better and purer days of the Republic, North Carolina cordially joins in the union of all the of real peace and good will between all the sections of this great nation, and with lease from dire political threldom. [Applause.] To assist in securing these hap py and glorious results for the whole American people, and especially for our own dear down trodden South, with usalmous voice North Carolina he sominates, and will in November next ast her electoral vote for President, that honest and pure patriot, Horace Greeley, of New York, our next President of the United States, [Great and continued ap-more Convention to announce to Greeley his nomination, assembled at Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning; every member was present. Soon after 12 o'clock the Committee proceeded to Lincoin-Club to meet Mr. Greeley, who was present with two or three friends to receive them. Senator Doolittle, addressing Mr. Greeley, said, the National Democratic Convention had the National Democratic Convention had devolved upon the people now present the pleasing duty to wait upon him in person to notify him of his unanimous nomina-tion for Pres descy, by that Convention, official notification of which, he now pre-sented to him and a published report of pro-ceedings which showed there was great unanimity, but only those who took part in them, had any idea of the outhusiasm with which it was determined to mustain the likesal republican movement, and to with which it was determined to ansamme the liberal republican movement, and to support the principles contained in the Cincinnati Convention, and they felt that the surest means of doing so was to nominate and elect the same candidate. The Senator then introduced each member of the contained and after an the Committee to Mr. Greeley, and after a

Mr. Greeley said, that perhaps it needed more time and consideration before replying fully to such an important communication. It may be that he should have nication. It may be that he should have replied in writing, but imamuch as he had addressed a letter to the Committee of another convention, which had been extensively published, perhaps it was not necessary that he should at this time make formal and full reply. He accepted the nemination, he said, and with more pleasure from the gratifying spirit with which it was presented. His position was a private one, and it was nevertheless an embarrassing one, but he trusted this embarrassment was only temparary, as it subjected him to misconstruction on the part of valued and life-long friends, but he was assured that time only was neceshe was assured that time only was necessary to vindicate his motives and the disinterested and patriotic course he had determined to pursus and the disinterested and patriotic course he had determined to pursue befor a be received such hearty cooperation. While you said Mr. Greeley, in making this nomination, we are not the less Damocratic, but even more so than had you taken the opposite course, I in accepting it was as much a Republican as I ever was. (Applause, He was not much accepting it was as much a Republican as I ever was. (Applause, He was not much acceptioned he said, to receive the nomination for President, if he had been, he probably could have respended more fully. This was all he had to say, except to invite the members of the Committee, or as many of thom as could make it convenient, to visit him at his farm at Chappaqua, he could assure them a warm welcome, he should be there to morrow and they could then consult and confer more freeley than at the present time. The Committee then withdrew and Greeley made a brief visit to the National Committee Liberal Republicans.

Governor Gratz Brown arrived at Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning, and at moon attended the meeting of the National Committee of the Baltimore bouvenion at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.
