NATURE'S APPRALS FOR HELP -- Every in lication of debility and exhaustion is a mute appeal of Nature for medicinal all to arrest the progress of decay. How are these silent appeals of physical weakness to the resources of the healing art usually met? Too often. unfortunately, the drugs prescribed aggravate the symptoms. Whoever recommends drastic purgatives, or mineral sullvants, or poisonous alkaloids, under such circumstances, is ally of the allment and an enemy of the patient. Whoever, on the contrary, advises the broken down and desponding sufferer to resort to that preriess vegetable invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, for aid and comfort, is a true philanthropist. It is safe to my that there never was an instance in which such advice was given and accepted without the happiest results.
