

THE SENTINEL.

JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., Editor.
T. B. KINSEY, Associate Editor.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1872.

THE NATION'S CANDIDATES.

FOR PRESIDENT:

HORACE GREELEY,

OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:

B. GRAY BROWN,

OF MISSOURI.

STATE ELECTORAL TICKET.

STATE ELECTIONS.

THOMAS J. JAMES, OF TUTWELL.

E. W. POC, Esq., of Johnston.

FOR THE DISTRICTS.

THE OCTAVIAN COKE, OF HOWARD.

THE SWIFT GATEWAY, OF GREEN-

SB.

T. C. FULLER, OF CAMPBELL.

H. A. LONG, JR., OF CHATHAM.

D. E. CALWELL, OF GUNNISON.

W. L. STEELE, OF RICHMOND.

F. M. McDowell, OF INDIANAPOLIS.

T. D. JOHNSON, OF BOSTON, WHO

MORE FRAUD.

We copy the following from the New York Review:

The voter being denied that he had ever left Washington since voting at the recent election in North Carolina, the Liberal Republican Committee in Washington has now, in its power, the reaffirmation of over fifty colored men who voted in that State at the last election. Never on earth was a more fraudulent election than this one in the old North State, and so infamous were some of the frauds that some of the Federal officers begin to tremble at the certain exposure before the Legislature.

Not is this all. The Leaf Peepy, the organ of Gov. Caldwell, and for which we can both he and his private secretary are said often to write, calls to us and resistance if Judge Merrimon be the chief man of the State dare look into and investigate the frauds by which the popular voice has been staled and the ballot box made to speak a lie.

What was there to restrain the radical party from stalling the ballot box, suspending negroes and committing all manner of fraud? They once had three negroes elected to the legislature, and allowed no challenge of illegal voters at the polls and, to the astonishment even of radicals, they carried the ballot box to Charleston, South Carolina, to count the vote. Upon the Charleston count Holden was elected by 20,000 majority. Two years previous, when the counting was done at home in the capital of the State, this same Holden was beaten some two thousand to Gov. Worth, when many white voters were disfranchised. Since the vote was summed in Charleston, by which the radical negro came into office, the State has been ruled by 20,000 majority.

What we ask again, was there to restrain the public plunderers from robbing the ballot box? They could certainly lose no character by doing so. Caldwell and Phillips are said to be silent under the charges of fraud as they were under the Holden policy, by which the State was robbed of sixteen millions of dollars.

Not a word did Phillips say. Not a word did Caldwell utter. Nothing was heard from Holden. We told these vermin and the public that the State was being robbed. They called us liar and all manner of bad names, only to weaken the force of what we might say of the corruption of their party. Tim Hevesi, of Toledo, $10,000 of the $16,000,000. Watt $4,000. Senator Abbott, Dr. Stow and A. J. Jones, many thousands of the people's money, to these men lost no character or favor in the sight of Caldwell, Phillips or the clergy, such as Father Reid or the judiciary, such as E. G. Hevesi. No man was ever known to lose favor in radical right by reason of his being detected in malfeasance.

C. W. GARNETTE.

We learn from good authority that an individual residing in the community left this Saturday evening to attend the Binton-Duncan Convention in Louisville, Ky., in the capacity of a delegate from this State. No Convention or meeting has taken place in this State in reference to this movement and, therefore, Mr. Garrison has no credentials from any body of pronounced democrats. On the other hand, we are assured, and know it to be a fact, that this man is in the employ of the Republican party, and by them his expenses to Louisville are borne. This straight-out democrat, Mr. Garrison, not only voted for W. A. Smith, the Republican nominee for Congress in this district in the late election, but attended and participated in the Convention which nominated him. How we have a nice specimen of a "straight-out democrat."

WILL BREAK IT UP.

We enjoyed a slow ride on the freight Saturday last to Binghamton. Dr. Long was of our company as far as Binghamton, where he stopped to preach on the next day. The Doctor has passed his time here well and, yet his labors more, and with more zeal and success than any young minister of his church.

We were glad that Billy Smith had threatened to do as Dr. Durkin what we have written as a lead to this article, to wit: "break it up." Billy may "break up" Congress or not, or less, but the paid agents of the Administration are trying to get signatures to call for a convention to send delegates to Louisville.

Henry Trosper, one of the most distinguished of French artists, is a sanguine engraver, and whose illustrations of "Aida" are very well known, came and went by shooting his art through the heart recently.

THE DISCOVERED.

Edward Arnold is a Kentuckian by birth and forty years of age. He came into the western country at the age of 18 and has therefore had an experience of twenty-two years in mining. He was

THE TREASURES OF AZTEC.

The Original Discoverer Tells His Story—A Picture Found in a Town of Deserts—Beauty of the Famous Mexican Silver—Fascinating Papers all in the Dark—Constitution of the Incorporated Company, etc.

(From the San Francisco Chronicle.)

LAMARIE, Wyoming, Aug. 19.—The following appears in the Sentinel of Cincinnati, and is reported to be true:

"The country the only autochthonous history and circumstances connected with the great diamond discovery, which we gather from the original disc voter, is Edward Arnold. The main facts were in our possession some days ago, but at the request of several persons most interested it was not published at that time. Our readers will remember that on the 1st instant there appeared in the Sentinel an article by Mr. Arnold, when the following conversation ensued:

"Mr. Arnold—It's no use for me to represent matters to you regarding your article on last evening's issue, for you have got it down to a hole. I came here for the purpose of fitting up an exhibition, as you state, upon which we shall go without any contingencies unprovided for.

"Writing in 1868, the veteran Geologist foresees that North Germany could at first bring out 120,000 diamonds, dispersed troops into action, while France could manufacture a force of 25,000, which rapid mobilization of reserves would increase in a short time to 343,000 men. At that time the course which the South German States would take in the event of war was doubtful, as we are invading the treasuries of 1866, which gave the command of the South German forces into the hands of the Prussian sovereign, and Von Molke had to plan for the contingencies of the war.

"The Emperor would invade the Palatinate by means of Metz and Strasbourg, others, but that he would need a wedge between Béthune and South Germany, and either procure or force the latter to allow him to march with the French."

PECCULAR SHAPED STONES.

He assured me that they were diamonds, and that the locality where they were found had been known to his tribe for many years. After taking him presents, and with a heap of coaxing, he consented to accompany me to the grounds. It was a three days' journey, and I started to find that the path led over the top of a mountain, and that the stones were scattered over the ground. I picked up a quartz in a few minutes. I started next day, with fear and hope, to San Francisco. On my arrival there I carried the stones to J. W. Tucker, jeweler, Montgomery street, who pronounced them worthless. I did not succeed. I heard of a French lapidary in the city, who had worked at Amsterdam, the great diamond-cutting mart of the world, and to him I applied for his opinion. He pronounced them diamonds of the first water. My friend in some manner got hold of the master, and it was creating some excitement, when I referred to Tucker. This satisfied them and threw them on the track. To make assurance doubly sure I sent one of the veterans to Foss, Morris & Co., Boston, and had it cut. That relieved my mind of all doubt. I clearly recollect, so exactly provided for, and so scientifically carried out in every part. In this at least, the valiant authorities of France may safely and probably imitate the great masters of the art of war, whose past practice they exceed in magnificence and audacity.

The Parisian journals are not slow to express opinions very decidedly adverse to those of Mr. Stanley. The whole history thereof is contained in the letters purporting to have come from the veteran explorer's pen, they denounce as rank forgeries. Livingstone himself, they believe to be dead, and on that condition only do they think it probable that Mr. Stanley would have braved detection, and ventured to do what he has done.

Advised from South Africa brought by the Royal mail steamer from Cape Town very favorable news from the diamond fields. Large numbers of diamonds are being found constantly. Several persons convicted of robbing the precious stones have been condemned to long terms of imprisonment. The British are in company with the French and Americans.

Advised from Rio Janeiro, on route for the East Indies. Alexia received a warm welcome from the colonists.

$80,000 WORTH OF BRILLIANTS.

The publishing of this report of James' was the greatest mistake we have made, for it set all the miners upon us. These diamonds were discovered before the two preceding ones, and I am sure that the others have been checked, to not only prevent the French advance into Germany, but also to himself enter Alsace and Lorraine—thence the two pieces which Von Molke prepared in 1868 and splendidly executed, without a blemish, in 1870. Indeed, these stones were more than he had imagined, and found his resources, if anything, excessive. He had taken a more than just measure of the French strength and preparation; he could not foresee the extent of corruption, the amount of military mobility, which were to prove after all, his most powerful allies. He looked forward to a strong though not protected strangle-hold on Paris for the French to change. Probably they never even thought so minutely planned, so clearly proportioned, so exactly provided for, and so scientifically carried out in every part. In this at least, the valiant authorities of France may safely and probably imitate the great masters of the art of war, whose past practice they exceed in magnificence and audacity.

The Parisian journals are not slow to express opinions very decidedly adverse

to those of Mr. Stanley. The whole history thereof is contained in the letters purporting to have come from the veteran explorer's pen, they denounce

as rank forgeries. Livingstone himself,

they believe to be dead, and on that condition

only do they think it probable that

Mr. Stanley would have braved detection,

and ventured to do what he has done.

Advised from South Africa brought by the Royal mail steamer from Cape Town very favorable news from the diamond fields. Large numbers of diamonds are being found constantly. Several persons convicted of robbing the precious stones have been condemned to long terms of imprisonment. The British are in company with the French and Americans.

Advised from Rio Janeiro, on route

for the East Indies. Alexia received a warm welcome from the colonists.

♦ ♦ ♦

NOTICE.

The publishing of this report of James' was the greatest mistake we have made, for it set all the miners upon us. These diamonds were discovered before the two preceding ones, and I am sure that the others have been checked, to not only prevent the French advance into Germany, but also to himself enter Alsace and Lorraine—thence the two pieces which Von Molke prepared in 1868 and splendidly executed, without a blemish, in 1870. Indeed, these stones were more than he had imagined, and found his resources, if anything, excessive. He had taken a more than just measure of the French strength and preparation; he could not foresee the extent of corruption, the amount of military mobility, which were to prove after all, his most powerful allies. He looked forward to a strong though not protected strangle-hold on Paris for the French to change. Probably they never even thought so minutely planned, so clearly proportioned, so exactly provided for, and so scientifically carried out in every part. In this at least, the valiant authorities of France may safely and probably imitate the great masters of the art of war, whose past practice they exceed in magnificence and audacity.

The Parisian journals are not slow to

express opinions very decidedly adverse

to those of Mr. Stanley. The whole

history thereof is contained in the

letters purporting to have come from

the veteran explorer's pen, they denounce

as rank forgeries. Livingstone himself,

they believe to be dead, and on that condition

only do they think it probable that

Mr. Stanley would have braved detection,

and ventured to do what he has done.

Advised from South Africa brought by the Royal mail steamer from Cape Town very favorable news from the diamond fields. Large numbers of diamonds are being found constantly. Several persons convicted of robbing the precious stones have been condemned to long terms of imprisonment. The British are in company with the French and Americans.

Advised from Rio Janeiro, on route

for the East Indies. Alexia received a warm welcome from the colonists.

♦ ♦ ♦

NOTICE.

The publishing of this report of James' was the greatest mistake we have made, for it set all the miners upon us. These diamonds were discovered before the two preceding ones, and I am sure that the others have been checked, to not only prevent the French advance into Germany, but also to himself enter Alsace and Lorraine—thence the two pieces which Von Molke prepared in 1868 and splendidly executed, without a blemish, in 1870. Indeed, these stones were more than he had imagined, and found his resources, if anything, excessive. He had taken a more than just measure of the French strength and preparation; he could not foresee the extent of corruption, the amount of military mobility, which were to prove after all, his most powerful allies. He looked forward to a strong though not protected strangle-hold on Paris for the French to change. Probably they never even thought so minutely planned, so clearly proportioned, so exactly provided for, and so scientifically carried out in every part. In this at least, the valiant authorities of France may safely and probably imitate the great masters of the art of war, whose past practice they exceed in magnificence and audacity.

The Parisian journals are not slow to

express opinions very decidedly adverse

to those of Mr. Stanley. The whole

history thereof is contained in the

letters purporting to have come from

the veteran explorer's pen, they denounce

as rank forgeries. Livingstone himself,

they believe to be dead, and on that condition

only do they think it probable that

Mr. Stanley would have braved detection,

and ventured to do what he has done.

Advised from South Africa brought by the Royal mail steamer from Cape Town very favorable news from the diamond fields. Large numbers of diamonds are being found constantly. Several persons convicted of robbing the precious stones have been condemned to long terms of imprisonment. The British are in company with the French and Americans.

Advised from Rio Janeiro, on route

for the East Indies. Alexia received a warm welcome from the colonists.

♦ ♦ ♦

NOTICE.

The publishing of this report of James' was the greatest mistake we have made, for it set all the miners upon us. These diamonds were discovered before the two preceding ones, and I am sure that the others have been checked, to not only prevent the French advance into Germany, but also to himself enter Alsace and Lorraine—thence the two pieces which Von Molke prepared in 1868 and splendidly executed, without a blemish, in 1870. Indeed, these stones were more than he had imagined, and found his resources, if anything, excessive. He had taken a more than just measure of the French strength and preparation; he could not foresee the extent of corruption, the amount of military mobility, which were to prove after all, his most powerful allies. He looked forward to a strong though not protected strangle-hold on Paris for the French to change. Probably they never even thought so minutely planned, so clearly proportioned, so exactly provided for, and so scientifically carried out in every part. In this at least, the valiant authorities of France may safely and probably imitate the great masters of the art of war, whose past practice they exceed in magnificence and audacity.

The Parisian journals are not slow to

express opinions very decidedly adverse

to those of Mr. Stanley. The whole

history thereof is contained in the

letters purporting to have come from

the veteran explorer's pen, they denounce

as rank forgeries. Livingstone himself,

they believe to be dead, and on that condition

only do they think it probable that

Mr. Stanley would have braved detection,

and ventured to do what he has done.</