THE PLANS OF THE RING.

There are but few intelligent men in North Carolina who doubt that Smedburgus and Company were elected by wholesale fraud. Whether the frauds committed are sufficiently tangible to justify a contest remains to be seen. Owing to the secret ballot system that prevails there is a wide door open for the perpetration of frauds and for stuffing the ballot. We hope the time will come, and not very long hence, when every voter will be required to show his poll tax receipt and have it punctured by the poll holders, and when the sine qua non system will prevail not only in North Carolina, but throughout the United States. As long as bad white men can so readily manipulate ignorant negroes and repeating roughs, there will be no end to frauds unless some system other than the one we now have is adopted.

There is not the slightest doubt whatever that the Grant Ring intend to secure their re-election to office by the perpetration of the most wholesale and shameless frauds. The evidence is absolutely conclusive that there is a wide spread conspiracy to carry the election by ballot stuffing. Pennsylvania and Indiana are the main fields chosen in which the Ring are to try their fraudulent hands to the very utmost. Cameron, in Pennsylvania, and Morton, in Indiana, are the conspirators and leaders of this work, just as John Pool was in our State.

This fellow Pool, aided and abetted by a half dozen Grant henchmen, literally dictated how North Carolina should go. And Cameron and Morton have conspired to do for Grant in their own States what was done by Pool, Carrow and company in this State—have enough fraudulent votes counted to make it appear that the Ring candidates are elected. They are adepts in the cunning art of deception. They are the Pagans of the campaign, and unless they are watched and thwarted in their nefarious schemes, they will carry their respective States for the man of the bayonet. Every sort of device will be resorted to. Bullies and roughs and negroes are to be imported, and the election is to be carried at every cost.

Morton is an old sinner in the fraud line. The Indianapolis Sentinel has already disclosed some of his proposed frauds. In former years he resorted to the same agency and was successful. Success has encouraged him. The cause is desperate, for Morton and Cameron know that without fraud Grant's defeat is certain. As a specimen of how Morton managed matters in Indiana, we give the testimony of one sworn witness among a dozen. Here it is:

The ticket paper process is in this way: We had a "Republican ticket" printed upon thin tissue paper so that fifteen or twenty of them might be rolled in ordinary ticket, but so artfully arranged that in folding into the pasteboard they appeared. Now to vote these packages we had it understood who was to cast them, and exactly how many would be in a package. We also had concealed under our poll books, corresponding number of fictitious names. For illustration, say that as in one instance it was agreed that Eric Locke, James Douglass, Samuel Douglass, John Douglass, Cy. Butterfield, Newton Kellogg, Andy Fouqua, Dick Ware and Tom Foos, to the number of twenty men, were to vote those "pregnant tickets," containing each ten tissue tickets. When the name of Jim Douglass was announced we could steal from our list of fictitious names, and enter up twenty names on our poll books, so as to have names of voters and number of ballots correspond. This could be done only where both clerks of the Board were Republicans. At the next election public sentiment forced us to resort to the ballot-robbing dodge. With a divided board of sharp, watchful and courageous Democrats on hand, it is difficult to do much with the ballot box. This time it was agreed that Tom Foos was to get up a big dinner for the Board, and there the work of the day was to be consummated. We were to adjourn for dinner, and the programme was Jim Douglass was to be concealed in an adjoining room to Foo's dining apartment, and while we were at dinner, Jim was with a false key to open the box and abstract the required number of Democratic votes, and replace them with the same number of Republican tickets. Douglass backed out, and Dick Ware agreed to do it, but his heart failed him too. At this crisis, Tom Foos undertook the task, and excusing his presence at table under pretense of having to go to a neighboring grocery on some errand, he slipped around the house and, stealthily crawling in at the window where the ballot-box had been placed, with his duplicate key he opened the box and proceeded to his work. He afterward told us that he had abstracted 150 Democratic tickets and replaced them with a like number of Republican ballots.

Yet another system was, to charge the left arm sleeve with a supply of Republican tickets properly folded, and, standing sideways to the poll window, accept the Democratic ticket with the right hand, and, pretending to pass it to the left, conceal it in the palm of the hand, and substitute from the sleeve a Republican ticket, which drops into the box. Bill Loomis used to complain that in this way he had made himself sick chewing up Democratic ballots; another cheat was at the commencement of the balloting, when the box was yet open for examination, to slip in a package of 25 or 50 tickets, and run the risk of intercepting a like number of Democratic ballots.

This is the way Morton secured his own election, and this, or some other equally dangerous and villainous way, will be resorted to in the coming election. Our people are unaccustomed to such "ways that are dark." It almost staggers belief, and makes us almost despair of a government where such scoundrelism prevails among men of acknowledged ability and high civic position.

We trust that our friends in Pennsylvania and Indiana, being forearmed—knowing the desperate character of the men they deal with—will be able to prevent the exercise of their diabolical ingenuity and the consequent debauching of the ballot. In the sagacity, zeal, activity and courage of our friends lie our safety and the certainty of victory.

BREIF NOTES.

Until the elections of next week are over we purpose devoting most of our available space to the collecting of campaign news and to the publication of matter that bears upon the issues at stake.

Senator Hendricks and George W. Julian spoke to a great crowd at Vasparaiso, Indiana, on 1st inst. Both gentlemen are very able and made powerful speeches.

On Oct. 1st those able patriots, Governor Palmer, of Illinois, and Senator Doolittle, addressed an overwhelming mass of people at Anderson, Indiana. There were 10,000 people present with bands of music and waving banners.

Here is the Georgia vote since that State was "reconstructed":

	Dem.	Rad.	Total.	Maj.
1868—Gov.	76,336	88,527	159,863	7,171 R
1868—Pres't	101,709	57,159	158,826	44 6 8 D
1870—Cong.	96,085	69,832	165,907	26,863 D

Gov. Gratz Brown addressed an immense audience at Danville, Indiana, on 1st Oct. There was very great enthusiasm. A half dozen other speakers also addressed the gathering. On the same day there were large gatherings in thirty counties in the State, at which speeches were made. This shows the activity and excitement of the campaign.

Gen. Jubal A. Early is out for Greeley. He has been hanging fire since the Baltimore nominations, but his heart is too true to yield to any blandishments, and he therefore goes with his people for honest old Horace. The stuff he is made of differs from that of which the Modoc are made.

A United States Army officer in command of one of the most important forts guarding New York City, has been written to by a Grant committeeman, at the instance no doubt of Grant himself, asking if he was employing Greeley men in his work. The reply was that it was his duty to get the work done on the best terms and not to meddle with the politics of his men. This is Grant's idea of Civil Reform to only employ his friends.

It is very proper in soldiers to hold political meetings if they are for Grant, but per contra it is highly censurable if they should be for honest old Horace. Some soldiers, members of Company I, 4th U. S. Infantry, stationed at Lebanon, Kentucky, have been incautious enough to print a communication in the Louisville Courier Journal favoring Greeley. The result—the guard house. This is Grantism.

Betting is no test. John Morrissey is no fool in money matters. He was recently in Philadelphia, and took the following bets:

$8 000 to $10,000 that Buckalew will be elected Governor; $5,000 to $2,000 on the same result; $1,000 to $1,000 that Buckalew will get 5,500 majority outside of Philadelphia, and $1,000 to $250 that Hartranft won't have 20,000 majority in the State. The Hon. John also offers to bet $5,000 that he will continue to bet as the above.

We know all about thermal currents and the Gulf stream now. Maury, a Scotchman, in California, has made it plain. He says that there is a chimney running through the earth from the north to the south pole. Into this the water pours at the open Polar sea, and is conveyed through the central fires and out at the South Pole, where it divides into two streams, one rushing up the Atlantic and the other up the Pacific Ocean. By this arrangement the central fires are kept within limits by the cooling waters. This is as plain as day and the only wonder is, that nobody ever thought of it before.

It is said that the Ring rely upon the bad character of the men appointed as canvassers and election officers in Philadelphia, for the carrying of the election by a very large majority. Many of them are swindlers, repeaters and professional violators of the elective franchise and ballot-box. It is also stated that the stuffing of ballot boxes and altering of returns by the Ring will be resorted to in the precincts where the Democrats have only one officer. The Ring have been supplied with money with which to attempt to bribe those Democrats, the question of price not to be considered. A thousand dollars have already been offered for Return Inspector in certain localities. Surely the Democrats can thwart the villains. Forewarned, forearmed.

The great Swiss naturalist long resident in the United States, Professor Agassiz, has returned from South America whither he went in search of curiosities for the Harvard Museum, with which he is connected. The expedition fitted out under his auspices and conducted by him has met with very great success. It brought back an immense collection of material which will excite the envy of Europe. We see it stated that the collection numbers two hundred and forty two boxes. The collection contains alone 30,000 fishes, whilst the sum total of specimens exceeds 100,000. Prof. Agassiz was accompanied by several scientific gentlemen who have contributed largely to the success of the expedition. He is at San Francisco, and upon his return to Massachusetts, will publish a volume giving a full account of the expedition.

For the Sentinel.

Editors of Sentinel:—Allow me to respectfully protest against the unfavorable discrimination you make against the World in your article this morning upon the relative merits and deserts of that paper and the Tribune. Agreeing with you most fully and heartily in your commendation of the Tribune, I nevertheless think that the World has equal if not superior claims upon the favor and patronage of by far the greater number of your readers, presuming them to be chiefly Democrats. It has always been a Democratic paper, and for long the leading one of the party in this country; and consequently, in the present peculiar alliance between the Democrats and Liberals, it must exert a greater persuading force upon the former than any Republican journal could or can possibly do. And it must be admitted that the vital obstacle to the success of the alliance (a far holier one in my opinion than the one so styled in history) is rather in the indifference or obstinacy of a class in our own party than any need of further help from the other than already pronounced and zealous in the cause. At any rate it is with our allies that the Tribune has chiefly to deal, as it is with the disaffected and reluctant among ourselves that the World has most to urge.

For this reason I have regretted that the latter journal has not a larger and more general circulation in North Carolina, and your article appears just at the juncture when I was about to make some effort to extend its subscriptions here and in the State. Not for my own profit, or at the instance of the World,—for it is singularly independent and inert in that particular, not only in this State but elsewhere,—but solely upon my own motion as an humble advocate for the plaintiff in this cause, to be tried and decided on the ides of November. Yet my opinion is the case, as thus sought to be made public, might be reasonably considered froward, and officious were it not that the name here subscribed may be sometimes found among the regular correspondence of the paper you have, I take it, been unde ignedly unjust to.

The "judiciousness" of the World may perhaps be questioned upon good grounds (I, however, do not think so) but its genius, and its diligence in the cause we are all now anxiously committed to, are indisputable. And it has besides, as compared even with the Tribune, in the existing canvass, this one moral superiority of virtue at least: it has put its might and all its soul in the success of a candidate obnoxious to it, and dear only for the sake of the righteous cause he represents and pledges his future official good faith to.

Trusting you may not find it in anywise impolitic or unpleasant to give this place in your columns, I remain,

Very respectfully,
Your ob't. serv't. and coadjutor,
MECKLENBURG.

Mad. Carenton, of Lyons, France, has forty-three cats, eighteen of which took first premiums at the London cat show last year.

John W. Forney writes of some prominent Californians: "Sargent, the United States Senator elect, quitted Philadelphia twenty five years ago to get work as a journeyman printer, and failed; Latham, the millionaire, who has been in both Houses of Congress and Governor of the State, began life very poor; Broderick was in New York a Bowery boy in as 1847, and the railroad kings, most of them, began life as low down as the little Bohemians at our corner."

THE CAMPAIGN.

THE APPROACHING ELECTION.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—In all the official circles hereabout the excitement over the coming election of next week is intense. No secret is made of the intention to use every means possible to carry Pennsylvania, but there is great alarm. Reports from a Republican source received this morning in this city assert that the change of sentiment within three days has been formidable, and betokened the overwhelming success of Buckalew on Tuesday. Odds are offered that Hartranft will be defeated, and it is regarded certain that Hendricks will carry Indiana. With Pennsylvania and Indiana Democratic on Tuesday week, Mr. Greeley's chances for success will be decidedly favorable. The negroes cast from Virginia West Virginia and the District of Columbia to vote in Pennsylvania on the 8th cannot prevent the defeat that awaits the Radical party in the Keystone State.—Alexandria Gazette.

WASHINGTON, September 30.—Evidence continues to accumulate that the Cameron Ring are importing negroes into Pennsylvania for the purpose of voting them at the October election. All along the Maryland border the country newspapers notice the movements of large bodies of negroes, who are ostensibly employed to work on Maryland railroads. It is stated that agents are making contracts with negroes always to work on these railroads, with a reckless disregard of the necessary physical qualifications to make able bodied laborers. This was done several weeks ago, when there was no demand in this branch of the labor market. Now they are taken, the only qualification required being that they shall be 21 years of age or over.—N. Y. Tribune.

ALABAMA.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Advices from Alabama, from the most trustworthy source, dated Sept. 28, say that the Liberal cause was never in such certainty as at present. The lowest estimate of the Liberal majority in the State is placed at 8,000. There is an immense increase on behalf of Greeley in the counties of Franklin, Marion, Walker, Winston, Randolph, and Talladega, and the Grant people throughout the State have given up all hope of success.—Alabama.

PENNSYLVANIA.

CHARGES OF FALSE REGISTRATION.

TITUSVILLE, October 1.—The Daily Morning Press of this city announces that there is fraudulent registration in Titusville of nearly 1,000 names, and the Press intimates that this is part of the system of colonization which has been extensively practiced throughout the oil region. The Press is an independent paper and does not charge the proceeding upon either party. The registration is nearly double that of last year. A searching investigation will be had at once.

THE INDIANA CAMPAIGN.

By telegraph to the N. Y. Tribune.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Contrary to the general belief, there is good reason now for counting a tolerably fair showing of the negro voters resident in the city with the Liberals. The recent convention in Louisville not only greatly encouraged the colored people in Kentucky to speak out, but also gave the movement an impetus in Indiana which will probably tell strongly next Tuesday. The organization in this section of the Liberals is going on well, and the effort to colonize colored votes may, to a certain extent, be checked by these Liberal allies. The work and turmoil of the canvass begins to intensify. Reports are, of course, coming in constantly, as the lines narrow down, allowing the very widest margin for frauds, there is every reason to trust implicity the favorable poll completed last week. Still no work is left undone, no chance left unturned and no remedy neglected to prevent any possible fraud. What with the stirring effects of Mr. Greeley's speeches, and the magnificent results of the outpouring here, sentiment has for the last ten days risen rapidly in favor of the Liberal candidates, and the wisest section of the Committe has engendered and kept aglow that feeling. Old politicians assert that Indiana never witnessed such irrepressible enthusiasm and downright interest before. Gov. Hendricks testifies that the uprisings are a continual marvel, and Gov. Gratz Brown to-day exposed his amazement at the sustained spirit and ardor of the people. This is the testimony of all the campaigners. No matter how many times demonstrations are got up at the different towns, and probably there is not a town in the State where both sides of the question have not been illustrated by favorite champions at least half a dozen times each time the assemblage is as large and enthusiastic as the first. The foremost Liberals in the West have been speaking day and night since Saturday. To day Trumbull, Palmer, Doolittle, Koerner, Julian, and Grosvenor have been at work.

EX PRESIDENT JOHNSON AND MRS. SURRATT.—A New York Herald reporter had the other day an interview with ex-President Johnson, at Jonesboro', Tennessee, in which the ex President explains his action in Mrs. Surratt's case. Says the correspondent:

Speaking to ex-President Johnson this evening, after the meeting was over, I asked him,

"How do you intend to meet this clamor in Western Tennessee about your action in Mrs. Surratt's case?

"I have no fear of that clamor, if there are people still so ignorant as to believe I compassed or am in any way responsible for the death of Mrs. Surratt, I leave them where they are."

"What is the exact fact, Mr. Johnson, about Annie Surratt's attempt to reach you at the White-house and being repulsed either through your order or through the order of Preston King."

"I never knew until Mrs. Surratt had been executed that her daughter had been seeking to see me. Preston King had nothing to do with repulsing her. There was a fellow named Marzy—I think he is in Washington still—tacked himself on to me at the White House in some way or other, and finding this girl looking in a frantic way for me, and unable very likely to understand her, refused her admission. Of this I knew nothing until some time after. Now as to the case of Mrs. Surratt; Mr. Lincoln, as you may know, was assassinated at a time when he was commander-in-chief of the armies and martial law prevailed in the District. The opinion of the Attorney General was taken as to the mode of trial for the conspirators, and he decided that they were liable to the jurisdiction of a military commission. They had a full and fair trial, and all four alike were found guilty. How was I to know that Mrs Surratt was innocent? All I could do was to pardon her. Could I pardon her without pardoning the rest, where there was nothing but sympathy for her sex to justify it? As for the Surratt clamor, I shall meet and answer it whenever it comes up."

The French historian, Amedee Theirry, has written a life of St. Jerome and another of Chrysostom, as a part of his "Recits de l'Histoire Romaine."

Gen. Harrow, a liberal candidate for elector in Indiana, has died from the result of injuries received in an accident on the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railroad.

GENERAL BUTLER DEPRESSED.

General B. F. Butler was at Cincinnati the other day following in the wake of Mr. Greeley. Naturally enough the General was somewhat blue. When an interview was sought by some citizens he entered into conversation with great freedom and gave his opinions without the least hesitation. The Cincinnati Enquirer prints a report of the conversation, from which we extract the following:

Mr. C.—How do things look East?

Gen. B.—The East is all right. Vermont and Maine did the thing up well. But we have had news from the West. Things look bad in Ohio, especially The only trouble is the West.

Mr. C.—Greeley's visit was badly a depressing effect, enthusing the Democrats and Liberals. Gen. Grant ought to be brought out to counteract what Greeley has done.

Gen. B.—No; It would be of no use. Gen. Grant can't talk, and his coming would do more harm than good.

Mr. C.—His presence would have an encouraging influence to enthuse our side.

Gen B.—No; no President was ever elected who went about making speeches. Gen Scott was beaten by Pierce, who stayed at home and made no speeches.

Mr. C.—Gen. Scott could not make a speech.

Gen. B.—He could make a better speech than Gen. Grant. He was a pretty good speaker.

Mr. C.—General Harrison made speeches, while Mr. Van Buren remained at home.

Gen. B.—Oh, that was thirty years ago, and things have changed since then.

Mr. C.—General, how are matters in Pennsylvania?

Gen. B.—I think Pennsylvania is safe. I believe Simon Cameron can manage that State to make it safe.

Mr. C. It is further West you think the trouble is?

Gen. A.—Ohio and Indiana are the worst. Great doubts exist about Ohio, and Indiana is considered very unsafe. It looks as if Hendricks will carry Indiana, unless strong exertions are made to save it.

"Suppose there is stealing," argues that radical rhetorician the Hon. Benjamin F. Butler, "what of it? Suppose some men steals a million, that is only two and a half cents apiece, and the American people won't be so small as to make a fuss about such a trifle." The Hon. Benjamin F. Butler is a correct exponent of the Grant philosophy.
