UNFINISHED BUSINESS. The unfinished business of yesterday,

The unfinished business of yesterday, the resolution providing for the payment of sheriffs for convoying convicts to the penitentiary, was resumed, the question being on the amendment of Mr. Waring limiting the number of guards.

Mr. Merrimon urged the adoption of the resolution. It was admitted that the act of 1870-71 did not repeal the law providing for the payment, out of the State viding for the payment, out of the State treasury, of the expenses of counties in sending convicts to the State prison, and the question was narrowed down to the consideration of drawing so large an amount of money from the public treasury. He stated that instead of $20,000 to $40, 000 being required, as insisted upon by some, he had made a liberal calculation and found that not more than $11,230, an average of $50 for each convict, would be required, and be was satisfied that $5,000 would pay the entire sum.
