ACCIDENT.—In putting our last issue to press yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, a. m., a green African, called temporarily into service, accidentally ran his head through the firm, destroying the fourth page, including the telegraphic news. Jim Petchet, alias Comanche Ingle, applied yesterday to the Mayor for help to get his back among his red brethren. The Mayor thought his logic badly spoken and suggested the case to Petchet, who in broken English presented his grievances in his blood. The Mayor said, "I have seen a few Indians, but never a man with yellow eyes and fair skin, and an of the opinion that you, Jim Petchet, is no Indian, but an impudent, and an attempted swindler, unworthy of sympathy or charity." Jim understood the drift of things, and looks back in excellent English, explaining great indignation at the discovery of his trick.

HOUSE MEETINGS AT THE CAPITOL.—A meeting in the interests of the Bible cause was held in the Hall of the House of Representatives, on Tuesday evening last. On motion of T. E. Selby, the Hon. D. M. Barringer, Ex. Minister to Spain, was called to the chair. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Mason, Pastor of the Episcopal Church. Professor Kerr, the State Geologist, and H. N. S. Waags Reid of Mecklenburg county, were appointed Secretaries.

The Chairman, in a very appropriate address explained the objects of the meeting. He said they had assembled to express their sympathy with the American Bible Society in the great and good work in which it was engaged, the spreading of the Scriptures in our country and especially in our own State. He wished also to express the gratification which was felt by men of all political parties and of all religious denominations, at the renewed interest which was manifesting itself throughout our State in this good cause, through the energetic efforts of the Rev. P. A. Strobel, the present efficient State Agent. The speaker would not attempt to discuss at length the claims of the Bible cause upon all good men, and the importance of giving that book to the people. Much as we all felt to rejoice in the material progress of our country, great as were the benefits which our society was reaping from Steamboats, Railroads and Telegraphy and the discoveries of science generally, he regarded these of secondary importance to the spread of the great truths taught in the Bible; seeing they formed the only solid basis of social order, good government and true national greatness.

One peculiar feature of the age, was the rapidity with which England and America the two great nations speaking the English tongue, were pressing their way into every portion of the world, carrying their commerce and their civilization, and at the same time spreading the Bible amongst the nations. The American Bible Society and the British and Foreign Bible Society were now circulating the Scriptures in over two hundred languages and dialects, and we should rejoice if we can contribute something to push forward in our country, and especially in our own State this great and good work of circulating the Scriptures.

The Hon. J. W. Ellis, Senator from Columbus, rose to say, that the work of circulating the Bible met his hearty approval, and should have his warmest support. It was a truth, patent to every one, that where the influence of the Bible was felt, men were virtuous and honest; they were made good citizens and were faithful to every trust and every duty. The reverse of all this was true where the Bible was not read and its precepts were not practised. There you had vice, and all domestic peace and social order were disturbed, if not entirely destroyed, and a blight and a curse came where there might be sunshine and happiness and prosperity.

Every good man, and especially every christian man should give his countenance to the efforts now making to circulate the Bible. The State agent had been in his country, and he was glad to say that his visit had done much to awaken a new interest in the Bible cause, and the people were ready to welcome him again. If, however, the State agent is to succeed, the friends of the Bible must take him by the hand, and encourage and help him in his good work. He hoped an influence would go out from the meeting, which would be felt throughout the State. He, for one, was willing to give to this cause his cordial support.

The chairman called on Rev. P. A. Strobel, State agent, to address the meeting. Mr. S. said "That which he deemed it a privilege to appear in the Hall, where for so many years had assembled the Representatives of the intelligence, the wisdom and the worth of this good old Commonwealth, he confessed to no small embarrassment in standing, where in former years had stood, a Cameron, and a Swain, and other great and good men, to advocate with his feeble abilities, a cause which they presented with their glowing eloquence and enthusiasm. Yet he felt encouraged, because the intrinsic excellence and importance of the Bible cause would plead its own claim, and he felt persuaded, that in his work he had the sympathy of all good men, and especially of all christian men.

The speaker would not attempt to discuss the inspiration of the Holy Scriptures; nor yet their genuineness, authenticity and credibility. Neither would he attempt to set forth the excellency of the Scriptures, nor to show how inseparably interests are connected with our highest interests as individuals, with reference to this life and the life to come. Neither would he attempt to prove how the great moral truths taught in the Bible underlie all domestic peace and safety, all order and all good government. He had passed into an arena, that a Republican government could have no permanent basis, except in the intelligence and virtue of the people. It was therefore a dictate of patriotism as well as of patriotism, to spread everywhere the word of God, so furnishing the power and best incentive to private as well as public virtues.

The speaker was at half past yesterday, at Norfolk, in testimony of respect for the memory of Commodore Murray.
