EXCHANGE ITEMS.

John Allen Ketchey, the notorious horse thief, was at the house of Mr. M. H. Hutchinson, near Charlotte, on Friday night last, an attempt was made to arrest him without success.

The Charlotte Democrat says: On Friday last $39,000 of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Western N. C. Railroad Company were sold by the treasurer of the North Carolina Railroad at public auction, and 11 cents on the dollar. On Saturday $26,000 of the same bonds were sold at public auction in this city and brought only five cents on the dollar.

A dispatch from Boston states that Frederick W. Cooper, a distributing clerk of the Boston postoffice, has been arrested on the charge of rifling and destroying money letters, and that he acknowledges having taken $315, though it is believed his stealings will amount to much more.

The suit of Lent against Arnold and Stuck at Louisville, Ky., for $300,000, was dismissed yesterday on the United Court by consent of the parties. The suit grew out of the notorious California diamond swindle. The parties effected a compromise, Arnold paying Lent, it is stated, $100,000 cash. A very curious case, indeed.

In Virginia heretofore the man who owned $1,500 worth of real or personal property might hold it against his creditors, while the clerk or mechanic who had nothing but his salary was liable to have that garnisheed for debt. The inequality of the law in this regard has now been corrected, the Legislature having just passed a bill exempting from seizure for debt, by garnishee or otherwise, a salary of $50 a month of a laboring or other person.

HOME AFFAIRS.

THE SEINE.

The funeral of Helen McKee, infant of Thomas A. and Emma Jones, will take place from the Baptist Church at three o'clock p. m., to-day. The friends of the family are requested to attend without further notice.

Temperance, in the form of a lecture, will be discussed to-night in Metropolitan Hall, by Mr. Edward Carswell. All the frightful examples of intemperance from neighboring cities are respectfully invited to be present. They will be conspiciously provided with seats on the stage.

Frank Sandford,

Editor of the Pee Dee Courier, has been from home—all the way to Wilmington. Another such trip will be the end of him. Keep Sandford at home.

Acknowledgment.

We tender thanks to Mr. Pink C. Hardie for the fine tobacco and cigars laid upon our table yesterday. The cigars are of a new brand, ("Del Firma,") and, being a judge, we pronounce them tip-top; the tobacco, also of a new brand, is the finest article in the market.

Wellmerited.

Drs. R. J. Fooshee and E. H. Ward, of Chatham county, received the Honorary Degree of M. D. at the late commencement of the Louisville Medical College, Louisville, Ky. They had richly earned by long years of study of practice the honors of the degree. It was conferred at the request of their own clientele and the medical gentlemen of the county.

State Fair.

The meeting proposed to be held at Metropolitan Hall, on Friday night next, in the interest of the State Fair, will take place on Tuesday night, April 1st prox. It is to be hoped our citizens will then turnout in full numbers and settle the business. Raleigh is suffering in the estimation of most people by the manner in which this State Fair matter has been tampered with.

Affecting.

The following is from the pen of one of "our" most gifted authors:

The minister, preaching in the pulpit,
Saw a bright-faced young man,
Wiping his eyes with a neat handkerchief,
And it moved him greatly.

And the nice young man continued to wipe
As the preacher preached away,
And when the preacher had done he went
To take him by the hand.

"My brother," he said, "I'm glad to see you are —"
"Oh sir!" broke in the youth,
"My eyes are sore. What's good to cure sore eyes?
I wish you'd let me know."

The Wonderful Entertainment To-Night.

"The wonderful magician, and master of legerdemain, necromancy and prestidigitation," Prof. Gerard, will appear in Tucker Hall to-night. He comes highly indorsed. Among his feats is that of eating fire which, perhaps, he learned in Massachusetts. And totally regardless of consequences, he will eat a bale of cotton and transform it into the latest spring styles of dry goods of all shades, qualities and patterns; and, in addition, will pierce his arm with a huge knife, and perform many other "miracles." A harp and violin, in instrumental solos, will come in as part of the entertainment and no doubt be highly appreciable. The full programme is published in another column.

THE COURTS.

United States Circuit Court.

The Fayetteville Eagle says "it is understood by some persons in Cumberland, Harnett and Sampson that all persons bound over under the Kuklux acts will not be required to appear at the June term of the Federal court in Raleigh." We are informed by the United States Circuit Court authorities that both defendants and witnesses must appear or forfeit their recognizance. We are further informed that no movement is on foot for quashing the indictments.

Among the cases to come before the next term of the court here in addition to those heretofore are the following:

Alleged conspiracy, Johnston and Harnett counties, under act of May 31, 1870: John A. Moore, James Byrd, Martin Byrd, J. M. Byrd, L. Byrd, W. Byrd, Thomas Weaver, L. Stephens, Wm. Ennis, John Taylor Johnson, Allen Ennis, James McLeod, Wm. Fowler, Chas. Stewart, Wm. Norris and Carroll Newberry.

POOL, BEVILL & CO.—"Long Grabs," (Metweens) of the Fayetteville Eagle, has been on a—well, on a tool, you know, and gassed by Washington City, a few days ago. He says:

"Poe is still here, with some hopeful hope of a Cabinet place or something else. I hear too from good authority that Pool and Settle are having a hotly quarrel, that Grant is opposed to Pool and has snubbed him, and that Pool, Gorrow, Young, &c., following such leaders as Speaker Blaine and others, are anxious to get up some third party, the Labor Reform or something similar."

The Puritans say of noisy, unmannerable talk, "I hear the sound of the millstone, but I see no meal."

RALEIGH FREE COURSE.

First Lecture of the Spring Season—Rev. Dr. York on "Education."

An eminently instructive and highly interesting lecture on "Education, the Nation's Hope," was delivered last night in Metropolitan Hall by Rev. Dr. York. He said, in part:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: There are but few subjects or themes to which the attention of a free, enlightened people can be directed of more vital importance or deeply interesting than that of education. Education, as a base, underlies all our fond hopes of national prosperity and greatness; of perpetuity and happiness. Taken in the broadest acceptation of that term, it is intimately, nay inseperably connected with every interest dear to man, regarded as man—as a citizen and a christian. It seeks to develop and train all the faculties and powers of his compound nature, in enabling each one to perform its wonted functions promptly and efficiently. It extends the field of thought, elevates the affections, refines the taste and polishes the manners. It enlarges the capacity for reasoning and enjoying all those pure pleasures which flow from a due appreciation of the beautiful and sublime both in nature and art. To the eye of the educated mind, the stars which twinkle in the heavens are no longer viewed as mere shining points but as flaming suns and rolling worlds. The comet, with its long, fiery train, sweeping through the heavens, across the orbits of the planets, excites neither fear nor alarm. The bodily senses, such as seeing, hearing, tasting, &c., are not only the mediums through which light and knowledge are transmitted to the mind but are also the channels through which the silvery strains of pleasure flow to the heart. Education strengthens and energises the mind so as to enable it to acquire rapidly and accurately that amount and kind of knowledge necessary to qualify us to fill well any station, to which providence, or our neighbors, may call us. Among the enlightened nations of the world education has ever been regarded as an object of paramount importance. For, with it, they rise, without it they fall. In conducting the education of youth to the desired goal, there are two objects which should ever be kept prominently in view; nor should they ever be lost sight of. The first is, or should be, to make them good and useful members of society generally. The second, is to make them wise and useful citizens of the State or of the great body politic. The first object involves strength of mind, goodness of heart and firmness of will, and has for its subject the three great departments or states of the mind: the intellective, emotive, and the voluntary. The intellective is the great logical element of our mental nature and is most successfully developed and trained in accordance with the rules of logic and the laws of thought. The mind cannot be strengthened without exercise; it cannot be exercised without thinking; it cannot think without the base or reasons of thinking. Let it be asked a school boy, for example, what part of speech is this word. He answers: "I think it is a verb." "Why do you think it or what reasons have you for thinking it?" "I think it is a verb because it looks like one as I have seen it and passed it in some other sentence as a verb. This process is not thinking. It is mere guessing or conjecturing. But, let it be answered: "I think this is a verb because it expresses action, and is affirmed of a subject, and is the product of the sentence or an essential part of it. This is not only a reason but it is a sufficient reason. Again, let it be affirmed that A is C, and the reason demanded. A is C because A is B. This is only a part of a reason, for it may be objected that it does not follow because A is B that A is C. Nor can it be any reason to him who does not know that C is predicated of B. Let the reason be extended. A is C because A is B and because B is C. Now, every one acquainted with logical analysis will readily perceive that this arrangement places A under B as a part of the class denoted by B. Consequently, C may be affirmed of A because it is affirmed of the whole of which A is a part. Or, in other words, B is contained in C, and A is contained in B. Then, A is also contained in C. In this process there is sufficient reason for believing that A is C. Now, if any one subject in the education course is more efficient in developing and training the intellectual faculty than others, it is this, because it calls out the highest exercise of this faculty and trains it more directly in accordance with the rules of logic and the laws of thought. The mind [illegible] to be trained by this process to think right, to feel right, will do right. The moral principles should be [illegible] to make these [illegible] true and useful citizens of the State or body politic. To do this, in addition to what has been done, they should be instructed, as among the most important elements the love of country or patriotism. The power of education in developing this principal (the love of country) is clearly seen in the history of the Spartan republic. There it was taught by the mothers and fathers, and in their schools generally; and although the system of this education was antagonistic to nature, yet it sustained their government in a flourishing condition for more than seven hundred years. Thebes and Macedon were so ignorant and barbarous, compared with the other States of Greece, that they were proverbial. Yet, by the power of education, introduced by Lysis, one of the most distinguished philosophers and educators of the age, Epanondas and Pelopadas, being taught by him, and, also, Phillip, subsequently king of Macedon—who was then a hostage in the house of the father of Epanondas and who received the same instruction—these men, thus fired by the love of country and strengthened by education, raised their respective States to the highest pitch of glory, insomuch that even iron-hearted Sparta trembled at the power of Phillip. And Phillip raised the Macedons so high in military prowess that they gave laws to all Greece, and subsequently to a large portion of the then known world. Patriotism is a generous, warm emotion, and is antagonistic to cold-hearted, sordid selfishness, demagogueism and party spleen. Selfishness is not wrong per se and only becomes so when suffered to become inordinate; when it sacrifices country and all for self. Demagogues are loudest and most noisy about patriotism, while it is their dear selves they want to aggrandize. Parties and politics, perhaps, there ever will be since men may differ on questions of policy or nationality.

But, a partizan spirit modified by patriotism is not to be deprecated. It is needless to look for retrenchment and reform by a change of parties. If we want reform and retrenchment, we must commence at the source of power, and that is the people—the youth of the land. Since education is the great lever power in building up and sustaining a republican form of government the State ought to become a party in carrying out the great plans of education. And in this work there should be no division. All should stand on the same platform, united in the same great work; and thus united there is good ground for hoping our nation will not only continue as she is but enlarge her borders and extend her influence to other nations of the world, recommended by the best and freest and happiest government in the world.

Spring Fashions.

For the benefit of our lady readers we give below the latest Spring styles for hats and bonnets:

The absence this season of uncouth extravagances in styles and materials will be a convincing argument in favor of the progress of American taste in dress made within the last few years. Every shade of complexion, every figure and every peculiarity of appearance is fully can be suited in the multitudinous array of styles and materials that are displayed this season. The complete transformation in the style of coiffure has demanded a similar change in the chapeaux, in order to meet the exigencies of the case; but yet this does not appear so much in the shape as in the manner of wearing them. As the question lay between having them tilted over the eyes or enjoying a good, open outlook, it has been decided in favor of the latter; consequently we shall see the majority of the bonnets, as well as the hats, tilted on the back of the head, in true sailor fashion.

Setting aside the manner of wearing them, the chapeaux of the season are some of them very beautiful. Straw promises to be more fashionable even than last year. Soft corn chip is a novelty, and will probably be cheaper than the white. Colored straws will also be much worn—sage green, various shades of olive, brown and gray. Straw trimmings are also revived in many beautiful designs.

Lace will be used to an almost unbounded extent. Long lace brides are revived, either to be tied under the chin or fastened lower down with a bow or small bouquet, as they were several seasons ago.

A lace veil or some other trimming is disposed at the back of all chapeaux, to shade the place where the chignon did erstwhile abide. But the crowning loveliness of the bonnets this season rests in the flowers. They are simply perfection, so natural in their appearance and delicate in their hues that one almost expects to inhale a subtle perfume while admiring them.

It is essential to both hats and bonnets that a narrow appearance at the sides shall be maintained. Most usually the trimming is massed in the back or front, or it may be placed a little to the right or left of either; but the effect must be narrow at the sides, so as to harmonize with the present style of arranging the dress.

Hats and bonnets are still so intimately connected as in many cases only to require a pair of strings to designate them. The Raleigh is still a leading shape, the brim variously identified to suit the fancy. When in straw this requires very little trimming, but it is usually made in silk to match the costume, in which case the crown is a soft puff. The most distinct style of hat is a modification of the stately Rubens, with a high, receding crown, and the brim turned up on one side.

In bonnets proper most of the shapes have rolled coronet fronts, and the crowns, while rather high, are placed more upright than formerly, so that, while worn rather far back on the head, they will not have the appearance of falling off. Short capes also form a distinct feature, but are close to the head.

Marriage is often said to be a lottery, but Chloie declares his belief that it is a game of cribbage.

Why does the washing come home on Saturday? Because it's the close (clothes) of the week.

Vermont has upward of 16,000 drunkards, though, as in Massachusetts, no liquor is sold there.

CITY COMMISSIONERS.

Regular Monthly Meeting Last Night

A regular monthly meeting of the City Commissioners was held last night in the Mayor's Court room, City Market House, His Honor, Mayor Whitaker in the chair, and Messrs. J. P. Prairie, S. Ellison, A. Johnson, J. C. Gorman, K. P. Battle and W. C. Stronach present, and Messrs. A. N. Upchurch, N. Dunston and M. W. Churchill absent.

Mr. Gorman made a personal explanation, as a member of the committee on street improvements. He had ordered some work done, during two or three days of fair weather this month. The Board endorsed.

Mr. Battle made some remarks in regard to Morgan street and made report from the committee. Adopted.

Mr. Battle also made some explanations relative to the late action of the legislature in reference to sidewalks.

Messrs. David Royster, Thomas Jacobs, Thomas H. Briggs, Oscar Alston and Henry C. Jones were elected assessors on the Morgan Street improvement.

On motion of Mr. Battle the assessors were instructed not to act until the bridge is finished.

Ellison, col., made some explanations in regard Mr. Ferrell, by request.

Mr. Gorman also made an explanation in regard to the same matter.

Mr. Battle thought the old assessors had better be discharged.

The city Surveyor, Mr. Beavers, explained.

Mr. Battle. The immediate question before the Board is Peace Street, not Blount. I move that Mr. Harp and Mr. Ferrell be required to move their fences back in accordance with the previous order of the Board, and that new assessors be elected. Carried.

The following were elected the new assessors: Messrs. David Royster, Thos. Jenkins, Geo. Stronach and Handy Lockhart.

Mr. Battle called up the matter of Smithfield Street. Discussed.

The Swain street improvement was also called up and discussed.

On motion of Mr. Prairie, a committee of three was ordered appointed to confer with Mr. Mills and others affected by street improvements. The committee consists of Messrs. Prairie, Battle and Gorman.

On motion of Mr. Battle, the following was adopted:

"Wherever streets have been ordered to be opened, and assessment duly made according to law, and approved by the Board, that the street commissioner open them, so as to give the right of way to the public, even if he is unable to grade them at present."

Quite a long discussion ensued on various other street matters, including the one affecting Mr. Vass' property. As regarded the latter matter, Mr. Prairie did not think they could do anything at all. It would be best to first refer the matter to the city attorney. One of the committees already appointed was authorized to see if they could not settle it.

Mr. Battle presented a report from the city surveyor relative to West street. Read and ordered filed.

On motion, Dr. Hawkins was ordered to grade the street before his property.

The clerk was ordered to get a copy of the recent decision of the Supreme Court relative to taxes.

About 42 delinquent tax-payers were reported. Total amount due, $712.

A communication from Alfred Williams, relative to taxes, was read and ordered filed.

The list of expenses of the city for the last month was read. Among the items was $1,196 50 for salaries.

The resignation of Capt. Watson, of the night police, was accepted. The Mayor was ordered to fill the vacancy for the balance of the term.

Some remarks were made about Mrs. Stalling's property. It was ordered that $54 be deducted from her award for the removal of her houses.

The city Market-house is insured $5,000 in the Phœnix Company, $7,500 in the N. Y. Home and $5,000 in the Ga., Home.

On motion of Mr. Gorman measures will be adopted to see if lower rates than the present can be obtained.

Preliminary steps were taken for the removal of Guard house and the Hook and Ladder house above, and the removal of the H. and L. apparatus.

Messrs. Prairie, Gorman and Stronach are on that committee.

The Board adjourned to meet on next Monday evening.

A full phonographic report of the debate will appear to-morrow in the SENTINEL.

The most affecting sight a Dansterian ever saw was two hundred barrels in tiers.

PROF. GERARD,
The Wonderful
MAGICIAN,
And Master of Legerdemain, Necromancy and Prestigiation,

Begs leave to assure the public that he is competent and ready to give an exhibition to excel anything ever produced in this country, or any other, except by his company. The wonderful feat of

EATING FIRE!

Astonishes every beholder. The Chinese Ring Performances the Japanese Ring Feat, the Mysterious Egg Bag, the Magic Ring and Magic Handkerchief, the Magic Coin, the Mysterious Hangman's Knot untied and the mystery unravelled. The Professor is tied by the neck, by any one who chooses to undertake the task of hanging him—and then frees himself from the knots of the most skillful seamen. He also performs the startling feat of

PIERCING his ARM THROUGH with a HUGE KNIFE,
OR SOLID BAR OF STEEL,

Baffling the ideas of the best Physicians, who, after closely examining the feat, pronounce the knife through the arm; also, the wonderful task of

EATING A BALE OF COTTON

and extracting Dry Goods, Wooden Ware, Whip Stocks and Barber Poles

FROM His STOMACH,

To an extent—to astonish even men who practices Sleight-of-Hand and Legerdemain themselves.

SIGNOR P. GERARD

Will also appear in his unprecedited display of skill on the Harp—the Largest and finest instrument of the Harp species in America. He will also accompany

SIG. PASQUAL,

The Champion Italian Violanist, in a double Duet, with Comic and Sensational Songs; also the Music by Company's String Band is superior to anything ever played in this country.

THE WONDERFUL WIZARD, will also display the power of his voice in mimicking and imitating Birds and Animals, something never attempted by man; and yet, he accomplishes it with perfect ease.

Signor Pasqual will also appear in his champion violin solos. This exhibition will be presented with an effort to please, as is always the Professor's motto.

Ladies and little children need not hesitate to attend, as the Manager can safely assure the public that there will be nothing presented to offend the eye or ear of the most fastidious—and it must be a strictly moral exhibition as there are no improper characters admitted.

Admission 50 cents. Children 25 cents. Reserved seats for ladies without extra charge.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. Performance to commence at 8 p. m. punctually.
