The report that there will be no Fair at Goldsboro' this year, which has been published in several State papers is not only premature, but indications are that it will be held, and that it will also be a success. The question will be settled on the 26th day of May, when it is believed the financial affairs of the Society will be placed upon a sure and prosperous foundation, and when the Fair will be unanimously determined upon. We believe it will come off, and be the biggest success of all.

Let's Have Peace!

Two colored ladies on yesterday caused John Gatling, Esq., to enter into bond to keep the peace towards their cows. The cows have been depredating upon Mr. Gatling's lands near the Rock Quarry—he has threatened them, we suppose—and hence the bond.

Surrendered.

Henry Vass, col., who severely stabbed Jack Pool on Tuesday night, surrendered himself to the authorities yesterday morning, and gave bond for his appearance before Mayor Whitaker to-morrow at 10 o'clock, when the matter will be investigated. Pool's wound is said to be a very severe one.

Look to Your Dogs.

A mad dog was reported in the south-eastern portion of the city yesterday. About 1 p. m., a party of men, well armed, set out in pursuit, but up to the latest accounts had not come up with the rabid animal. It is time to look up the dog laws and secure their enforcement.

Such is the title of a new paper published at Monroe, Union County, N. C., at $1.50 a year. It has a patent inside and the first number is badly printed on the outside. D. McNeill is editor and proprietor. It is Democratic in politics. We wish this new enterprise much success.

Millhem,) are now filling orders for the celebrated brands of cigars, "Raleigh Favorite" and "Pride of Oak City," at their manufactory, No. 33, Fayetteville street, first floor above Simpson's Drug Store. The reputation of these celebrated brands is well known. Sold wholesale at the factory, and retail by all dealers. Ask for the "Raleigh Favorite" or the "Pride of Oak City." !!!!

James Barron Hope, Esq.

Let our citizens bear in mind that this gentleman who has won fame in his own state, Virginia, as a poet before he entered the editorial profession which he so much adorns, is to deliver a lecture on "The Printer's Devil" to-night at Tucker Hall. We trust our people will attend in large numbers and extend a genuine North Carolina greeting to one of Virginia's most accomplished sons. Mr. Hope is a grandson of the late Commodore James Barron.

Credit.

Our article in regard to "North Carolina's Record" is copied without credit in the last Wilmington Journal—an unintentional oversight we know.

Died of Her Injuries.

The colored woman, Mrs. Holland, who met with so severe an accident by being thrown from a buggy on Tuesday night, has died of her injuries. Dr E. Burke Haywood was promptly in attendance upon her, but found that her skull was broken in behind the ear, or rather that her brains were dashed out, either by the kick of the horse or by the wheel, and that there was no hope for her. She died immediately afterwards.

Off for Europe.

Our old friend, Col. W. H. Tucker, the senior partner of the well-known house of W. H. & R. S. Tucker & Co., leaves this morning for the great Vienna Exhibition. He goes as a representative of our State under the appointment of the Governor. A pleasant trip, Colonel, and a safe return! Maj. R. S. Tucker and Mr. McGee, gentlemen of large experience, will carry on the business of the firm with the same enterprise and vigor that have distinguished them throughout their mercantile career.

Penitentiary Affairs.

The Board of Directors of the Penitentiary are extending the stockage so as to include the quarry—that purchased of W M. Boylan as well as that previously purchased from Miss Kate Boylan. The purchase of Mr. Boylan's quarry was in the nature of a compromise to some extent. It seems that in working the quarry first purchased to obtain the quantity of stone taken out, the lands of Mr. Boylan were encroached upon. This led to a demand for damages, the stone so taken and to a good deal of trouble. The present Board finally concluded to purchase the piece of land contiguous to the original quarry, giving Mr. Boylan $9,000 for the same. It is said that the demand of two cents per foot (the price paid for rock at the quarry, to the east of the city) demanded by Mr. Boylan for the quantity of rock taken from his land without authority, would amount to about half the sum paid for the entire tract, and save the expense and trouble of a law suit. This new purchase will furnish all the rock required for the penitentiary and walls, though the board still purchase the rock of the old quarry to the east of the city for that part of the work requiring cut stone, on account of the ease with which it can be cut.

We understand that preparations are being made to commence the making of brick by the convicts at once.

A shoe shop has been opened in the Penitentiary and W. H. Elam, a skillful, steady man, takes charge of it to-day.

The Board of Directors hold their regular meeting on Tuesday next.

John R Harrison, Esq., has been elected Chairman of the Board.

The health of the convicts is reported by Dr. Hill to be excellent.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

We referred a day or two since to the New York law making it a crime to point a gun at a person and the penalty fine and imprisonment. There is a great necessity for a universal law of the same sort. We clip the following from an exchange:

A SPORTING MAN KILLED.—Baltimore, April 26.—Andrew J. Crow, well known in Baltimore sporting circles, was instantly killed this morning at Henry Crey's restaurant, on East Madison street, by the accidental and careless discharge of a gun by John Bell, the bar-tender. The latter pointed the gun at Crow, not supposing it loaded, when it suddenly fired with the above result.

George Gilmore, aged seven years, was accidentally shot through the head and instantly killed Saturday night by his brother, William Gilmore, aged fifteen, who was playing with a carbine in the yard of their residence, Fifth and Queen streets, Philadelphia.

An Attractive Picture.

Here is a very lovely pen-portrait drawn by that skilful limner, the author of the "Last Ninety Days of the War." It is taken from her letter in the Recorder. She is telling of her visit to the Orphan Asylum. She says:

The presiding genius of this room was a young lady. I will not hurt her delicacy by saying anything of her fair face and her modest address, nor deprive a noble act of its crowning grace by mentioning her name; but she was there giving her mornings to gratuitous instruction of those two and thirty orphans. Think of that, young ladies, "who live at home at ease." She was treading as closely as she could in the footsteps of her Divine Master, giving the cup of cold water to the little ones mentioned in the last will and testament. Would to God I could see more of our North Carolina girls thus employed. This young lady, I was told, is a member of the Methodist Church. If such a work as hers is one of the fruits of Methodism, let us have more of Methodism in the country.

Cold Comfort.

It may be consoling to those who witnessed and felt the decline and fall of Confederate currency during the late war to know that their forefathers saw worse sights than they did in the career of continental currency. In the scale established by a recent act of Assembly in regard to Confederate currency, the lowest depreciation is fixed at 100 to 1.

We have been looking over an original copy of the revisal of the laws of 1790 to 1793, prepared by Francois-Xavier Martin, printed in 1804, by Martin & Ogden of Newbern. We find that in 1783 an act was passed "For the establishing a scale of depreciation, with a provision for suits commenced for paper currency, and for suspending the operation of the laws therein mentioned." The act contains a "table of depreciation" of continental money, which shows that Confederate money was a perfect Gibraltar as compared with that. The table covers the six years from 1777 to 1782 inclusive.

We find that in January 1777 the depreciation stood at 2; by April it had fallen to 1 1 2; in August it had reached 2 1-4, and in December it was 3. It opened in January 1778 at 3 1-4, by July it was 4 1-4 and in December it was but 5 1-2. In January 1779 it opened at 6, struck 12 1-2 by June and was 20 in December, the end of the third year. In January 1780 it made a good start downwards at 32, was at 100 in July and by the begining of December it was 200. And now it acquired a full head of steam. Beginning 1781 at 210, it bounded to 300 in May, 400 in July, 600 in October and closed the year at 725. Opening in 1782 at 800, the set seemingly became disgusted and it stands to the close at that figure.

It is curious to know in this connection what amount of money North Carolina issued during the Revolution. An examination, for which we are under obligations to D. W. Bain, Esq., of the Treasury office, shows the following issues in pounds, valued at eight shillings, or one Spanish milled dollar:

August 8, 1778, - - - - -	$50,000
May 15, 1779, - - - - -	500,000
April — 1780, - - - - -	1,340,000
May 17, 1780, - - - - -	100,000
Total, - - - - - - -	9,890,000

Between the years 1780 and 1783 there seems to have been no issue.

May

This beautiful month of May, the month of flowers and pic nics, commences with to-day. The month was so named by the ancient Romans, in honor of the goddess Maia, mother of Mercury, and was consecrated to the old men. In our time of life, however, it is different, the month being set apart by our young people as a time for "May-poles" and merry making.

Major Bingham's Lecture.

The last Charlotte Observer thus refers to the lecture of Maj. Robert Bingham delivered in that place on Monday night:

The subject of the lecture was the Anglo-Saxon Race, its Past, Present and Future. It was delivered in a simple, unpretentious and deeply impressive manner. Close attention with occasional bursts of applause attested the high appreciation of his listeners. The lecture was original in its conception, and surpassingly grand and instructive, replete with great truths clothed in simple language and fortified by a wonderful array of facts.

Personal.

John U. Kirkland, Esq., of Hillsboro', was in the city yesterday enjoying his usual fine health.

Valuable Book Lost.

A copy of the Senate Journal of the first United States Congress at Philadelphia, in the original print, was some time ago borrowed from the Treasurer's office and cannot be found. The book, we believe, is the private property of Mr. Bain, the Chief Clerk, who would be exceedingly obliged to the person having it in possession to return it.

Let all Give.

What a noble charity is the Oxford Orphan Asylum! Who, with a heart to love and sympathize, will not extend the hand of "melting charity" towards God's dear little children who have no mother and no other Father but Him? Read what Mrs. Spencer says:

Thirty-two children have already entered, and are to be fed, and clothed and taught. How? The sum of $500 a year is all they have sure to them. It was pitiful to see the store-room, so called in faith of stores yet to come no doubt; for surely twenty dollars would have provided all I saw there. A few pairs of shoes, two or three bolts of factory cloth or calico, and a parcel of garments ready made by the kind hands of the Oxford ladies, a few second hand articles, some cotton yarn for knitting. Was this all? This was about all. Many of the children came bare-footed and with but two scanty garments on. Some had a little bundle in hand, containing an extra shirt or so. No uniform of course, is as yet possible. They wear what they can get, and are thankful. The display of millinery in the girls' hats was very various. Here was a bran new, smart store-hat of white lace and pink artificial—the gift of some merchant; there a somewhat soiled affair of felt and feather, left off by some more fortunate little girl and given to an orphan; near by, the most suitable of all, a plain brown straw, with a bit of green ribbon on it.

We need everything, said Mrs. Robards, and are thankful for a spool of thread, or a paper of pins, or a set of knitting-needles. There are only two sets of knitting needles here, and I want to set all my girls at work knitting; we need cotton yarn as well. We are thankful for second hand clothes of any description. I rip up such as will not do for outside, and save them for linings. We do not want any cast off finery. The plainer the clothes, the better.

Meeting of the City Commissioners.

The regular meeting of the city commissioners took place at the Mayor's office last night, Mayor Whitaker presiding.

Commissioners Battle, Dunston, Ellison, Gorman, Johnson, Prairie and Stronach were present.

The question of opening new streets was discussed on several propositions of that nature and the opinion seemed to prevail that no more should be opened till those now existing be put in proper repair.

The question in regard to extending Edenton street was tabled.

The continuation of Swain street was ordered with the understanding that it should cost the city little or nothing.

The committee on the last named street were instructed to report on the cost of continuing Smithfield street from Wilmington to Blount.

The petition of Andrew H. Green to be permitted to continue his encroachment on the street known as the mineral property, was tabled.

The City Treasurer laid before the Board a letter from W. T. Walters, Treasurer of Wake Forest College, stating that that institution held a city bond of $1,000, payment of which would shortly be demanded, and that in default of payment suit would be instituted against the city. The City Treasurer also stated that Mr. Walters had demanded some $400 on coupons of that bond, and that he had not the means of meeting said demand. The matter was passed over, but subsequently Mr. Battle moved that the City Treasurer be authorized to borrow money to pay the interest demanded, and that the principal be met with new 8 per cent. city bonds at par. Adopted.

The question of selling the old hook and ladder apparatus was referred to the Chief of the Fire Department.

Sundry questions in regard to public wells were deferred.

License was granted to P. C. Walker, of the Yarbrough House, to retail spirituous liquors.

On motion, it was resolved to repair Cabarrus street, from the depot to Fayetteville street, as soon as practicable.

The following poll-holders were appointed for the city election—three for each of the two boxes of each Ward:

MIDDLE WARD.

Mayor's Box.—A. H. Winston, A. W. Propst, Andrew Miller.

Commissioners.—Wm. Mitchell, A. W. Shaffer, Alexis Long.

WESTERN WARD.

Mayor.—Ben. Rhodes, J. H. Separk, J. W. O'Neal.

Commissioners.—Oscar Alston, J. D. Pullen, Jno. R. Whitaker.

EASTERN WARD.

Mayor.—N. Broughton, Scott Brown, Forney King.

Commissioners.—P. Hicks, T. E. Williams, Jos. Howard.

The accounts against the city for the month of April were presented, amounting to $4,173.60. One item of $42 for carriage and buggy hire for the chief of Police and the Street Commissioner elicited some discussion. The accounts were allowed, but a resolution was adopted, that no more riding was to be done without an order from the Mayor.

The Board then adjourned till 5 p. m. on Friday

Why Emigrate?

Mrs. Spencer, in an interesting letter in the last Recorder, after expressing her gratification at the pleasant scenery in Granville and the beauty of Oxford with "its wide streets, groves, and ample motherly-looking white mansions," asks an important question to which no sensible answer can be given. She writes:

What do people mean, Mr. Editor, who emigrate from North Carolina to Texas, or Arkansas, or California? The Almighty must have some special end to accomplish in the destiny of states when he permits the delusion, that carries our population away from the unbroken forests, the pure air, the delicious water and the superb climate of our central counties to the hardships, the isolation and miasma of Texas. I have but little doubt, that three-fourths of those, who leave North Carolina for the States west or southwest of the Mississippi, bitterly repent their move and would return, if return were possible.
