New York, May 1. Jao. R. Thompson, of the Evening Post, formerly editor of the Southern Literary Messenger, has died.

The examination into the Atlantic $340,000 on securities which have disappeared. Among the loans, are $90,000 to L. H. Niles, a broker, and $35,000 to an under clerk of Niles. Nearly all the loans were made within three months. There is great descrepancy in the accounts on the books and the statements of depositors. One of the directors overdrew his account by $6,000 the day before the failure of the Bank.

All the papers contain tributes to the memory of James Brooks.
