Death of an Estimable Lady.

We learn from the Battleboro' Advance, an Impostor, or didn't know his own that Mrs. Arthur Barnes died of consumption in Wilson on Monday. Her many friends and relatives in that community received the news of her death with sadness, notwithstanding her long and lingering sickness had warned them of the approaching dissolution and prepared them to hear the melancholly istellagence at any moment. Hhe was the daughter of the late Thomas L. Mxnor, and was highly esturmed by all who know her, for her many excellent qualities and her kind and amiable disposition.

A little over five weeks ago, a stout athletic negro man, hving in Warren county, was in vigorous health up to a few hours before his death, when he went the way of all flesh and was buried. This couple were unfortunate in their marricid Lie. There were much hard-feeling many quarrels and reproaches. Latterly Sam had become ouite jealous of his wife, and it was thought that there was good cause. A negro prescher was in the habit of visiting Sam's home too frequently and as a result Sam had expressed himself as decidedly dissatisfied with his attentions to Mrs. Jane. A few days before the husband was taken sick, his wife was known to have purchased a certain poison (we forbear mentioning it), to be used by her husband in poisoning some stock that annoved him, as she said. She gave her husband some coffee the morning of the day he died. He had strong convulsions, a hog on the place had convulsions, and the watch-dog was missing. Jane acmorten examination made.
