With a very high appreciation of the requirements of such an occasion, the Typographical Union of this city have made such arrangements as insure a very pleasant festival to-day. It is not often that these gentlemen can be spared, and to tell to one not versed in the mysteries of journalism the obstacles necessary to be overcome before such an exthe grading of the race track of the new cursion can be successfully carried out, would appear somewhat on the Munchausen order of exaggeration. To the credit of the craftsmen, however, their plans have been skillfully laid, and they will assuredly give to their friends a festival, such as is rarely enjoyed.
