

THE SENTINEL.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 16, 1872.

JOSIAH TURNER, JR., T. H. KINGSBURY, Associate Editor.

For House of Representatives, GEORGE H. SNOW.

STATE OF WAKE, N. C. ELECTION FOR THURSDAY IS AUGUST.

THE NEWS AND THE ASSOCIATE OF THE SENTINEL.

The Associate editor of the SENTINEL is not the author of the article on the Educational Convention upon which the great legal luminary of the Raleigh News is pleased to comment through a column and a quarter of infantile twaddle.

We will give the editor of the News this piece of advice: if he will introduce into his editorial columns more brains and "more consecrations of splendor and magnificence," or anything else indeed that will afford relief to the patients of the News...

N. B. Since the above was in the hands of the printer, we have received a note from the editor of the News, in which he says, that "his (my) remarks were not intended to apply to you."

ORIGINALITY. We trust, however, that the fact of his having made the point (contrast between the Bostonians and the Wilmingtonians) somewhat before the fact, will not put him (Wheeler) up beyond measure.

PRINCE BISMARCK. The telegram informed us a few days ago that this very able and successful statesman, now in his fifty-ninth year, would soon retire.

It will be seen that this paper, not content with exposing an error, we had already detected and confessed, in so many words, to "go for us," as Bill Nye did for the "leathery Chinese," that it here charges that we stole great Mr. Wheeler's thunder.

"We desire to avail ourselves of an opportunity to show every courtesy to our readers," says Wheeler. "I, a his great and wonderful 'History,' see Wilmington Journal of 18th Inst."

FREE PASS.

Every member of the Legislature has had, and it may be, has now a free pass over the North Carolina Railroad.

At the late meeting of the stockholders of this corporation held in Salisbury, Md. Welker, who made war speeches in the better days of the Confederacy, and since then exerted his influence to punish rebels...

We can name three ex-Presidents, who embezzled or stole, if you please, and who were passed free over the roads which they had defrauded.

Mr. Southerlin, of Danville, said in the stockholders' meeting, he had used the road on the strength of a pass granted by the stockholders.

These Virginia gentlemen began an unprovoked war upon us. Mr. Buford paid his money, or the money of a ring or corporation to run a democratic paper in this city and in the city of Charlotte.

Mr. Buford wanted to be State printer, or furnish the money to do the printing. He so contrived as to have the State printing put to the lowest bidder, and his corporation bidding against the SENTINEL.

As to the pious Welker, it is in proof that he received shares of the stock of the company from Littlefield, without paying a cent for the same, and just about the time he was made director on the road.

400,000 BRICK IN 18 DAYS. McNeill, the master workman and rapid brick-layer of Salisbury, who was not allowed by the Raleigh mob to begin work at sunrise...

THE CLARKE COUNTY TRAGEDY. THE ACCIDENT THUS FAR BELIEVED. - Windsor, Va., July 9. - Lynchburg and Oscar Little, the alleged kidnappers, are confined in the jail of Clarke county.

His retirement is variously accounted for. Bad health, want of repose, difficulties with Kaiser William, disputes with his associates - these and other causes are assigned.

SORRY ENOUGH.

The editor of this paper is so sorry enough, to be making mischief among folks. He stated last week that the late Educational Convention was an able, bold, and that Judge Battle had spoken of it in flattering terms.

If Judge Battle will modify his opinion and say, with the News, that the Convention "was not above, but below mediocre," we will publish the fact, and do anything additional to make peace; for blessed is the peace-maker.

We have quoted Judge Battle's opinions for a quarter of a century. His opinions have been quoted in all of the thirty-seven State Courts on this continent, not to name the highest court of the United States.

In Australia, as our readers know, the natives have a peculiar missile weapon which they throw with great dexterity. It is very dangerous for one unskilled in its use to hurl it, for it performs sometimes very strange antics and comes back with terrible force against him who throws it.

"We desire to avail ourselves of an opportunity to show every courtesy in our power to a gentleman (the "great Historian" Wheeler) who has devoted almost the whole of a long lifetime to praiseworthy efforts to inscribe in its rightful place of honor upon the roll of American States the name of North Carolina, and to put upon IMPERISHABLE RECORD the noble deeds of her sons."

There now, the thing is settled - Wheeler's "Democratic Standard" is to be one of the great "light-houses erected in the sea of time," against which the Dead Sea waters of oblivion will lash in vain.

THE HISTORICAL MAN OF THE WILMINGTON JOURNAL is offering income at the shrine of Wheeler. "We desire," quoth the Journal, "to avail ourselves of an opportunity to show every courtesy in our power to a gentleman who has produced an 'ESTIMABLE RECORD.'"

But we remember a fine saying of Walter Savage Landor, that "no ashes are lighter than those of income, and few things burn out sooner."

"To put upon imperishable record the noble deeds of her sons," - Wilmington Journal on Wheeler's "great history."

This is indeed wondrously true. Quaint old Fuller referring to fulsome and unmerited praise remarks: "This is so like a cobweb, that it may with little difficulty be seen through; but rarely strong enough to catch flies of any considerable magnitude."
