Another Cray Man.

And now comes to the foot-lights another cracked-brained fellow with his crochets about an old defunct fellow. Only read the following:

Rev. C. C. Stratton, a Methodist Minister of Salt Lake City, denies in a card, that he advised Brigham Young's wife, Ann Eliza, to enter a divorce suit.

Mayor's Court.

For several days past this Court has been destitute of business, and the market house longers have had little or no entertainment. Having made "water hauls" for the last three or four days we did not make our accustomed call at this hall of justice, as yesterday, but remained at our office and engaged in the commendable (if effort to "manufacture something.")

The Highest Mountain.

The Yankees are just finding out that the highest mountain in this side of the Rocky Mountain range, is in North Carolina. They have neglected the map, or that portion of it that concerns North Carolina. The New York Tribune says:

Death of John C. Taylor, Esq.

It has rarely happened that the death of any gentleman has given more pain to the writer than that of John C. Taylor, of Granville. He died on Thursday morning last, 21st inst., at his residence two miles from Oxford. We suppose his age was about seventy-seven. We can only say to-day that a purer, more honorable gentleman never lived or died in North Carolina. He was a man of fine literary tastes. He was a member of the Episcopal Church. In our Tuesday's issue we will endeavor to pay a fitting tribute to his memory.

Perfumes and Fashion.

We have read something of prevailing fashions in different ages but the following simply gets us. The Baltimore Gazette tells that at Vienna a relation between perfume and color has been established. That perfume is employed upon a regular scientific system is said to be true, and a young English woman is credited with being the first to establish the custom. Then, if pink predominates in the toilette, a delicate perfume of essence of rose is proper—light yellow, Postage water; and so on through mignonette, and all the floral vanguard—each color has its appropriate perfume.

Remedies.

We find in an exchange the following remedies, which it says is taken from a medical publication.
"A tea made of chestnut leaves and drake is the place of water, will cure the most obstinate case of dropsy in a few days."
"A tea made of ripe or dried whortleberries, and drake in the place of water, in a new and speedy cure for acrochion difficulty, however long."
"A tea made of peach leaves is a sure cure for kidney difficulty."

Postal Card Writing.

We clip the following from the Petersburg Appeal of yesterday:
"Mr. Briggs, the Raleigh postal card writer, mess now spread his sails, for a telegraph flier in Charleston, has succeeded in writing fifty-two verses of sonnetary, and had, some time ago, written twenty-eight poems, though few of them, except one, are to be expected to find the telegraph."
"Mr. Briggs has written, since our last notice, 1,500 words on a postal card. It is a little unfortunate that the name of the Charleston man is omitted."
