The Courier says that hall stones nearly as large as a man's fist, breaking out window glasses, killing chickens and turkeys in the field. Mrs. Powell had over sixty panes of glass broken from her windows, Mr. Michaux over forty, Mr. R. Rodwell forty-four, and a number of others suffer-ing as much. The cotton fields presented. truly a naked appearance. Mr. T. A. Williams reforms us that a lot of forty acres of cotton, was completely ruined, that bushels upon bushels of cotton bolls were beaten off by the hall, could be picked up, and that after the storm had passed his parlor was four or hve inches deep in hail and rain, his house furnishing but poor protection to his furniture as all the glass were broken out. The sufferers truly have our sympathy.

FIRST BLOOD OF THE REVOLUTION The quotation from the "Albaoy Argus," in the "Observer" of Jan. 9th, is an interesting contribution to our revolutionary anuals, but the first blood of the revolu-tion was shed in North Carolina. Ban-croft, in his "History of the United States, vol. 6, page 185, says: "The blood of 'rebels' was first shed among the settlers on the branches of the Cape Fear River." Ho! For E The impartial reader of history will see as much revolution in the battle of Aismance, May 15th, 1771, as in that of Lexington, April 19th, 1775.

The Boston massacre of March 5th, 1770, was an outrage, for which the captain and men engaged were regularly tried by the courts; but the tyrannical and cruel acts of Gov. Tryon in North Carolina and the resistance of the op-pressed people were acts in the revolu-tionary drams,—New York Observer.
