The Aidine Chromos for 1874.

The two chromos presented to subscriers of the Alline for 1874 are such beautiful and unusual works of art-faithful copies of actual paintings in oil made by the celebrated artist, Thomas Morae from studies of nature—that we feel justified in calling special attention to them. These chromos represent scenes characteristic of the East and the West; the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and the Cliffs of Green River in Wyoming Territory. In all the range of grand and beautiful American scenery, it would be difficult to find two more picturesque or charming views, unlike as nature in her varying moods, yet appropriate compan on theom. The view in the White Mountains gives the beholder a grand and sublime scene of the most famous region in New England, a picture which is filled with the very spirit of the region. In pleasing contrast with the blue clouds and cool heights of the White Mountains, we have in the Cliffs of Green River a golden, sun-bathed landscape, with a sky full of glory-a breaking away of the clouds to let the King of Day through ! The physical geography of the Great West is very peculiar, and this Mr. Moran has faithfully reproduced. A grand red andstone rock, or butte, rises like a ruined dastle from one side of the river, refleeting all the brilliant bues of the sky, which are also reproduced in the water. They are every way worth of the great art journal of America-the Aldine, These chremes are so fine, they can only be compared with the highest price pictures offered in the market.
