In the House Kelly, of Pennsylvania, ffered a resolution that members of the House and Senate will assemble in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, on Monday, the 6th of September, 1874, in centennial commemmeration of the assembling of the delegates from the several colonies and provinces of North America on Mon day, the 5th of September, 1874, and that the Speaker of the House be invited to preside over the meeting, and Vice President Wilson be requested to deliver an addres, appropriate to the occasion. After remarks in support of the resolu tion, Kelly yielded the floor to Waddell of North Carolina, referring to him as the descendant of one whose bones rested is the old Mensonite churchyard at Germantows, having fallen at the head of croops from South of the Potomac.

ment of Kelley's politoness and court-ny. sustained the resolution in a speech, in which he alluded to the honorable his tory of North Carolina in the war of the revolution, and in the great political events preceding it, particularizing the destruction of the stamps openly and publicly long before the throwing of the tea into the harbor of Boston by men wearing disguises, and referring to the original deplaration of independence drawn up in Mecklenburg county, N. C. He would up by saying, let Congress then, on the 6th of September next ment in joint convention in that venerable hall and let the orstor of the occasion speak with a healing power, a power which will arouse the slumbering spirit of former days, which will re vive a faltering faith and unseal ones more that fountain whose water however hidden or obstructed, still well up perpetually in every true American heart.
