THE P. F. TICKET.—There will be a meeting of the voters of the Eastern Ward at Metropolitan Hall Tuesday night next for the purpose of nominating candidates for Commissioners. Every voter is invited to attend.

and when he got to the part where it recited his great ability as Secretary of the Radical State Executive Committee, a negro yelled out and yet he owes me $95 for that time too. (Great laughter.)

Argo said he was modest, but in self-defense must tell what he had done. It was in Orange County, where out of 20,000 voters, there were 1,800 of the terrible Ku Klux—the head centre of the Klan resided there, he was elected to the Legislature by the Democracy though he never agreed with them, (how thin.) At the end of the session, he had become a Republican, voted for the fifth Amendment, and received the denunciation of the whole Democratic party. An old colored friend, who had been flogged by the Ku Klux, came to Raleigh, and showed his back, and his mind was quickly made up, for he said that was Democracy d-n the party—so Logo was only a year or so ahead of him in the Radical ranks, he proved what he said by the Wake Senator, Jim Harris. (col.) He now attempted to harrow up the feelings of the negroes by blood and thunder talk of the Ku Klux in 1870, when he ran for Senator, and was beaten by Gov. Graham—how he had carried it into his hand, he was ostracized, and about what must death awaited all loyal royal ruffians fellows in Orange, during all which time he possessed of great and noble talents, as open and as clear as day, and as much as the long head, copper-bottomed Republican. Got letters from Mr. Sam Phillips, complimenting him for his services for Senator, but finally resolved being persecuted into the gloom of existence to come to Raleigh. Was elected afterwards—canvassed in the West, and never failed in the ranks since his admission to the party, and Logo's being a few days of the start of him didn't matter, but he was not the choice. He hated it as much as he was getting some besides "Nippon" honors, and the language of Uncle Handy Lockhart, the other night, he wanted "some rations, some bread." Logo now had three offices—Assistant Clerk of the Court, City Attorney, and Treasurer of the Insane Asylum. He was Editor of the Era formerly, and at the same time held special Assistant Assessor, also City Attorney, but he got Argo out of the latter for helping him. Argo had not got a cent from the Republican party (though he came in a few throws of President of the University Hall Road.) Logo should be dumped or upped to hold only to what he has got and let Argo, have the Senator's place. He had heard that Tim Lee said he was going to give him a lift and lightning. Tim nodded his head, but "ritter winted the language," when Argo, replied, he suspected as much after seeing the crowd, he had brought here. He nominated Labe, Croson, Rhew and T. L. Banks, as his delegates. It had been said that Tim Lee carried the Republicans of Wake, in his pocket. Tim said they told lies upon him, he wished he could, when Argo rejoined, it wouldn't be any honor to the party. Argo, concluded with a yarn of a hard-shell and a fiddler, (applying it to Tim forcibly) where the hard-shell had been cured as an old bald-headed fellow for too much meddling, &c., &c. Amid the great yelling of the "MORNING AND KANGAROO" Logo Harris, now came forward and spoke to the multitude. He thought all this talking was unnecessary. He had been a Republican all the time in season and out of season. Asked Argo, where he was 1867—those trying times. He, Logo, was in all the meetings in Holden's office doing every thing for the party. He had always denounced the Ku Klux. Got nothing for editing the Era which, but for the circulation, the Republicans would have been defeated on the Convention question, &c. Swelling up indignantly now, he loudly proclaimed for some of his "mussy and thumping articles," he had four letters at his home from gentlemen, who had invited him to the South Carolina line to try a "little coffee and pistol for two," all of which he had refused, by informing them that he had "been there" that he would be found in his office from sunrise to sunset. Tom Argo reminded him of the sick man, who the doctor disemboweled and put a sheep's stomach in its place, because he never could retain anything upon it, and who shortly after the operation was performed told the doctor, he was getting on splendidly, but that he had a h-l of a hanker after grass. Argo was the man the doctor cut up for, he was hanker after the grass, but he was blue republican and he was rewarded by their party. Remember how they were treated in by gone days that tried our souls. The party was just respectable (f) and he was glad to have them come in from principles, &c. The negro should have every right that he had if he could make it so—(right all of you drink it.) He had advocated it in caucus. Negro just as good as a white man. When he went to vote, he did not care about the color of the skin, black or white, so he was the nominee, and he always voted in this regard as if he was blind-folded. (He replied on the night high here—while his Daddy Cebe sitting near, seemed ever so proud of son Logo, for his countenance was as radiant as a morning glory mud turtle.)

Logo outdressed Argo, now for going on at great rate, he told the blacks there were many obstacles present that he was going to stand for a share of the offices among the negroes in all conventions (of course he was—stood up, and see they didn't get any.) He denied that there had been any caucus by him or his friends. All good men, Jim Jones had nominated, and he didn't know how they were going to vote. (Argo smiled in a yellow ferocious.) "The question of the rights of the negro has to be settled, I stand where I did in the caucuses." He recognized the departed Sumner, as far heaven—word or perhaps in the other direction, we could not decipher he dared go, and said he desired to be Sumner's representative in North Carolina, a further representative of the glorious FIFTY RIGHTS.

He concluded his harangue with some praise of everything that was white and returned our weeping eyes (f) upon we old whipped friend, Mr. Jim Blair, and whispered a "toss."

Get Gorman now came into the ring and said he wanted this thing done fair, he didn't care a d— which whipped—

He wanted the voting done in the same manner as in the late city Convention. Tim Lee said he wanted the meeting to endorse Argo or Harris, else open, then instruct delegates according to that vote, and then went on to orate about the breach of pocket accusations, and into a new address Box 163, City Postoffice, ap 24-33t
