Local Affairs.
Convicts.—A Morris, Deputy Sheriff of New Hanover, arrived this morning with a couple of colored convicts sentenced to a term of years, at the late term of Court for that county to the Penitentiary.

PERSONAL.—Col. John H. Wheeler, the distinguished military officer, is here on a work of great value.

MEETING OF CITY CHARITABLE ORGANIZATION.—Committees of the several city charitable organizations embracing the fire companies and others that have been appointed on the "Committee of Arrangements" for the celebration on the 24th June, in aid of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, met at the office of the Southern Express Company this afternoon. A grand dinner is contemplated, we learn, in connection with other things in which it is hoped to realize a handsome sum for the benefit of the Orphan.

MAYOR'S COURT.—Evil deeds are scarce in the city, and only one case graced the presence of our new Mayor this morning. Sally Jones, (col.), made complaint against her husband William Jones, to the effect that he, William, had beaten her, and in divers ways maltreated her. William was marched in, but quickly proved satisfactorily by his mother that the accusation was unjust and maliciously made—in fact that Sally had been on a little bender, and was much in the humor as, is often the case of having the honor of appearing in Court. His Honor dismissed the case with a reprimand to the doctory Sally.

OAK CITY MILLS.—A new enterprise is about being inaugurated in this city, the object of which is to establish a steam mill to furnish fresh ground meal to city patrons, and the surrounding section, and it is proposed to commence the same either in June or July. The capacity of the mill will reach four hundred bushels per day. It is to be a stock company with a capital of twenty-five thousand dollars, to be increased if necessary. J. J. Thomas, Jr., of Williamson, Upchurch & Thomas, has been selected as President with S. C. White, Cashier of the State National Bank, as Secretary and Treasurer. Directors: W. C. Pace, Dr. T. D. Martin, W. G. Upchurch, Capt. A. B. Andrews, and J. J. Thomas, Jr.

THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION.—This excursion was carried out according to programme. A large party assembling at the church, they marched in procession, headed by the Citizens Cornet Band, to the depot, where they embarked for Kitterell Springs, which point they reached at 10 o'clock. Major Blackwell welcomed them heartily, and gave up his hotel and elegant grounds to the Managers and the school.

THE METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION.—The school exercises consisting of singing, and short addresses, took place, and afterwards the girls and boys wandered over the beautiful grounds, here and there viewing points of interest, chatting and merry making and quaffing the water of the famous spring, etc. A most plentiful supply of good things in the stable way, was of course taken along, and invited guests, scholars and all, were fully supplied.

After a day of most pleasurable enjoyment the participants returned to the city at 7 o'clock, with nothing but the brightest realization of their happy annual excursion, and with the wish for a return of so joyful an occasion always in the future. We are sorry we were deprived of the pleasure of accompanying them.

FERRADE TO JOE HOLDEN LAST NIGHT.—Joe Holden, the new Mayor, was serenaded by his friends with Stanley's band last night about half past nine o'clock, at the residence of his father the Ex Governor. Some two hundred and fifty persons were present, with a considerable sprinkling of white citizens. In answer to calls, Joe appeared on the portico, and addressed the crowd for about an hour. He said in substance, that city Reform inaugurated in the Radical party, he was glad to know, had been successful, and he and his friends intended to still further carry out his good work in county affairs.

He was chairman of the county Radical Executive Committee, and it was the intention of himself and friends to have a fair and open convention, and a barbecue at the Baptist Grove, on the 15th instant, the same day Tim Lee's convention was held, intimating very strongly, that they were not going to put up with the latter's packed convention, as he termed it. His party was tired of the heavy load, they had been carrying. In fact his whole speech insinuated that Tim had not been doing the clearest thing; that he would have to be unloaded, and others would share the same fate.

He referred to the misapprehension of the school fund money, and though he called his name, his language was so plain and broad that the negroes even knew what he was talking about, and of whom. It was a strong talk for Gen. Gorman for Sheriff, who occupied a prominent seat with several of the new reformers, though rosters of that same old brigade who have been deep enough in the treasury, and yet smell loud of the special tax bonds, etc. We did not see the Governor, but we have no doubt he was in sound of the horn. Joe declared he was a reformed man, and he was now going to do right. (we hope so, and congratulate him on that portion of his remarks) He said they had been trying to keep him down, and he would not let them do so.

Tim Lee walked up on the portico during Joe's remarks, and was invited by Tim to uncover his pate to one who was there, and in a moment or two retired, evidently satisfied, that the house was divided, and those present were "agin him." His quantity seemed not to be disturbed, and he worked away, puffing his cigar as if nothing was occurring.

Joe thanked those Democrats of the city, who had voted for him, and told his Radical friends, that he and they should strive to do something, and have in the future some men nominated for place, as would still further commend their support.

With heavy things at certain persons in the city who had been running the Radical party in their own way, he proposed to now break faith with, and in speaking of county scrip paid to jurors, he touched upon Judge Bunting, without naming him, as one of the men who would have to come out of the court house.

Tim, we hear, is ready for the fray, and that Joe has commenced the skirmish, we may look for the battle on the sixteenth inst. Tim says he don't care so much for the Sheriff, but this cry of so-called reform coming from Joe and his adherents, he intends to fight heavy and long. Unlimber your guns.

THE PROHIBITION LAW.—Since the action of city liquor dealers in the matter of testing the Prohibition Law, and as eliminated the irregularity of the election for the want of proper registration, the prohibitionists have also consulted counsel, and questions propounded and answered by them, as will be seen in the following correspondence:

RALEIGH, May 7, 1874.
Messrs. Smith & Strong, Battle & Son and Wm. L. Pace, Counsel for Prohibition Executive Committee:
GENTLEMEN:—Please inform us at your earliest convenience,
1st. What class of dealers in spirituous liquors should be prohibited from further sale?
2d. Who of them, if any, are entitled to continue?
3d. Who is empowered to enforce the law, and how shall we proceed to compel it?
4th. If any action from the other side can suspend the law?
5th. All other proceedings that should be taken by us, if any?

Very respectfully,
Your obt. serv't,
V. BALLARD,
Chairman Prohib. Ex. Com.

Mr. V. BALLARD, Chairman Prohibition Ex. Committee:
SIR:—We have received your letter of to-day, have carefully examined the questions upon which you ask our opinion, and now send you our answer.

1. We think the broad language of the Act of the General Assembly embraces all persons, and absolutely forbids the sale of spirituous liquors by any of them for one year from this time. None are protected by licenses so obtained since the ratification of this act. The cases decided in different States, where similar laws have been enacted, leave it somewhat in doubt whether it forbids the sale by persons who obtained licenses before the ratification, which licenses have not yet expired. We are inclined to think that they too are forbidden to sell from this time.

2. The second question is answered by our answer to the first. We are of opinion that none of them are entitled to continue to sell.

3. This law is to be enforced like any other criminal law. Any person may apply to a Justice of the Peace for a warrant against an offender, to have him arrested and dealt with according to law.

4. We do not think that the operation of the law can be suspended by any action of the other side. If they succeed in getting an injunction, we think we can have it dissolved, at least before the Supreme Court. Even if an injunction be granted, it cannot protect a seller from prosecution and punishment.

5. We do not consider it necessary that the body which you represent should take any further action at present.

Very respectfully yours,
Wm. H. BATTLE & SON,
SMITH & STRONG,
W. H. PACE.

Judge Watts, as announced yesterday, will hear counsel in the matter of an injunction on the sixteenth inst. The fight promises to be interesting and lively.

We observed yesterday in transit from Baltimore to Snow Hill, a chair intended for Mr. J. F. Jones, of Green. This article of furniture was manufactured expressly for Mr. Jones, who it will be remembered, is a very stout man, weighing, we believe, about six hundred pounds. The chair in mammoth proportions, is thirty inches across the seat, and constructed with a view of offering simple accommodation. We are assured however by those who profess to know, that in the present past it is by actual measurement at least six inches too small.—Newbern Times.

A Buffalo street-car conductor refused to permit a female in "bloomer costume" to ride on his car, believing her to be a woman dressed in man's clothes. The case was carried to court, when the conductor's counsel stated that there was an ordinance against a female wearing a man's dress, and thought that worn by the woman came very near to it. The justice, however, held that the bloomer was female costume.

A RELIGIOUS REVIVAL AT PETERSBURG.—A special from Petersburg to the New York Herald says: "A great religious revival is reported among the colored people of Petersburg. On Sunday last five hundred converts were baptized in the Appomattox river. A feature of the occasion was that when each convert came out of the water he began the most extravagant manifestations of delight and ecstatic joy ever witnessed, and so violent were these demonstrations at times that it often required the strength of four or five able-bodied men to quiet the excited colored Christians. Immediately after the ordinance was celebrated the converts were attired in a regular uniform and formed in line. A procession was then formed, headed by the converts and clergymen, the whole numbering about ten thousand men, who marched back to the church, where the jubilee was continued until midnight amid the greatest religious enthusiasm."

A DAUGHTER OF BOHEMIA.—The scene of the story by Christian Reid, "A Daughter of Bohemia," is laid somewhere in the Southern States—just where, we are not told. It is an exceedingly clever novel, and possesses an uncommonly workmanlike appearance. The author's talents, as distinguished from genius, are quite unusual—perhaps unequalled by any of our story writers. It remains to be seen whether she has the knowledge of human nature or other gifts of spirit to correspond with them. The characterization is not particularly good, except, perhaps, in the heroine, who is an uncommonly living and free figure. Miss Reid has genuine narrative abilities and great skill in dialogue. It is true that the author has nothing to tell us except a good story, but that is quite enough; readers of a good story always are and ought to be grateful.—New York Evening Post.
